U. S. Soldier Fatally Injured Before Iloilo.

THE FILIPINOS WERE HOSTILE.

Streets Were Barricaded—Reported Some Buildings Were Kerosened to Destroy Them at First Shot of Bombardment. Dispatch From Otis Not Made Public.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Colonel Potter, the special messenger of Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul had gone on board the Newport.

Colonel Potter reported that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship as the printers on shore declined to do the work, and when the text of the proclamation was read to them, ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

Privates Harry Silvey and Frank Kirkpatrick of the Sixth United States artillery, while guarding a water boat astern of the Newport, were attacked by the natives of the crew. Private Silvey's skull was fractured fatally and Private Kirkpatrick fell overboard, but escaped with a flesh wound.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday, and Colonel Potter reported that the United States troops would probably land on Guimaras island, about midway between the island of Panay and the island of Negros, where a camp would be established.

MADRID, Jan. 9.—Advices were received here from a leading merchant at Iloilo to the effect that agricultural operations in the vicinity of Iloilo had not been interrupted and that all the insurgents respect the Europeans both at Iloilo and on the island of Negros.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The war department received another dispatch from Major General Otis, commanding the United States troops in the Philippines. The officials observed an unusual reticence with respect to its contents, but it was understood that that contained was not of an unfavorable character or such as to give undue concern to the administration. So far as the officials were willing to admit the dispatch showed no material change in the conditions existing at the time of previous advices. One cabinet officer said it contained nothing of a character alarming, serious or exciting. There had been no collision with the insurgents, he added, and not a shot had been fired. The dispatch, however, was believed to have been of sufficient importance to bring to the immediate attention of the president, and the latter, Secretary Alger, Secretary Long and Adjutant General Corbin were in conference for some time at the White House, probably on that matter.

The president's proclamation to the Filipinos had been published in Manila, but General Otis did not say what extent it had been made known to the inhabitants in the other parts of the group of islands, nor whether it had been published at Iloilo. At the latter place General Miller had been directed to land the troops under his command, but the dispatch from General Otis did not indicate whether this had been done or not.

Aguinaldo Issued Manifesto.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Within a few hours of the proclamation issued by Major General Otis in behalf of President McKinley the agents of Aguinaldo billed Manila with a manifesto which attracted considerable attention. The revolutionary president protested against General Otis signing himself military governor of the Philippines.

DEFENDED THE BEEF.

Egan Made Public a Letter Giving the Approval of Some of the Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Commissary General Egan of the army made public a letter from Lieutenant Colonel A. L. Smith of the subsistence department touching the use of refrigerated beef furnished to troops in Porto Rico from that landed at Ponce. In this letter Col. Smith says in part:

Among others to whom the refrigerated beef was issued I remember the following officers as having spoken of the immensely superiority of it over the native beef:

Major H. P. Birmingham, surgeon of the general hospital; Captain Irvine, Eleventh infantry, who was acting as commissary for the steamship Panama (I think), loaded with convalescent enroute to the United States; Captain W. F. Evans, commanding battalion Nineteenth infantry; Captain Hoppin, Second cavalry, commanding cavalry squadron.

There were no preparations made for the receiving and taking care of the beef on shore. It had to be unloaded by lighters and thrown on the floor of the commissary storehouse until the troops called for it in open wagons. It was, therefore, subjected to the worst possible conditions in handling. It was frequently to 15 hours off the vessel before being issued. One issue to Captain Hoppin was over 24 hours in the storehouse. Notwithstanding this the meat was in good condition except pieces which had not been sufficiently protected, but could be trimmed off with some loss. The officers without exception to whom I spoke condemned the use of the native beef, which had to be consumed the same day it was slaughtered.

CANNED MEAT DEFINED.

Secretary Wilson Called Upon an Official For a Statement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In view of the statements which have gained wide circulation regarding nutritive value of American canned meat tending to injure foreign and domestic trade in these goods, Secretary Wilson called upon the director of the office of experiment stations for a statement of the conclusions of scientific experts on this matter. The statement declared that "the high nutritive value of American canned meats has been established repeatedly by thorough and impartial tests conducted by scientific experts." Then follows a long account of certain investigations.

CUBAN BANDITS CAUGHT.

Will Be Put on Trial—Santiago People Were Still Excited Over the Customs.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Jan. 9.—Senor Paredi, the mayor of Santiago, cabled to Havana daily regarding the situation, explaining that the local excitement growing out of the original proposal of the United States to concentrate the receipts at Havana was not allayed and that the people wanted provincial and municipal autonomy. It was understood here that General Wood, with Demetrios Castillo, would reach the United States on or before tomorrow and arrangements had been made for a special cable service to inform the people here as to developments after General Wood's arrival in Washington. Lieutenant Colonel Ray reported from Guantanamo that a Cuban major a short time ago took to the woods with several of his men, became a bandit and killed five men. The entire band was captured and will be put on trial.

A STEEL AND WIRE TRUST.

Y., Oliver and Snyder Steel company of Pittsburgh, Oliver Wire company of Pittsburgh and other companies as well.

The new company will have a capital stock $40,000,000 preferred 7 per cent cumulative, having lien on assets prior to the common stock, and $50,000,000 common stock.

CHANGED A RIVER'S COURSE.

Land From a small Mountain Slid Into the Fraser, Causing a Flood.

VANCOUVER B. C., Jan. 9.—Near Spencer bridge on the Canadian Pacific railway, about 100 feet of a small mountain, anywhere from 20 to 50 feet in depth, crashed into Fraser river, damming it completely and sending the water in torrents over the fertile Nicola valley.

The Fraser was about half a mile out of its course. The district was sparsely settled and no lives had been lost so far as known. Barns and houses, however, were caught in the flood and carried away and thousands of acres of valuable land will never be reclaimed from the muddy waters of the Fraser in its new course.

Evacuation Commission Arrived.

TAMPA, Fla., Jan. 9.—The members of the Cuban evacuation commission, who left Havana on the steamer Mascotte, arrived at Port Tampa. The party left for Washington in a special Pullman car attached to the Florida and East Indian limited via the Plant system. The commissioners will likely arrive in Washington early tomorrow morning.

Miss Sophia Dallas Dead.

Southern Plant to Resume.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., Jan. 9.—O. P. Perrin floated bonds for $300,000 in the Watts steel plant and the plant is to resume. This is the largest basic steel works in the south and employs 700 workmen. It was built in 1896 at a cost of $750,000.

TO AID THE CUBANS.

Relief Association Endorsed by Alger.

SECOND SUPPLY SHIP GOING.

The Load Will Include Many Foods Especially Adapted to Women and Children—Scheme of Industrial Relief Expected to Do Much Good.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The secretary of war furnished the Cuban industrial relief fund of New York with credentials to General Brooke, military governor of Cuba, commending the relief association to him as a distributing agent of food supplies sent and to be sent by the government to the suffering Cubans. A second shipload of these supplies, which was being prepared, will include many foods specially adapted to the needs of women and children as well as to the Cuban soldiers and laborers. It was believed that a discriminating use of this food, in connection with the industrial features of the relief fund would result in the gradual transfer of many from the charitably aided class to the self-sustaining class.

This recognition of the industrial relief fund, and acceptance of its co-operation in the charities to be administered by the war department will undoubtedly inspire the philanthropic public to furnish promptly all the money that can profitably be used in equipping this work with implements, seeds, cattle and all the industrial necessities which the government has no legal means of providing.

WARNED BY WARING.

Reported, Before He Died, as to Havana's Filth—May Send Scourge to Our Shores.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The report of the late Colonel Waring, who was sent to Havana to look into sanitary conditions, was made public. He described the awful filth of the city and made recommendations which would, if followed out, cost about $10,000,000. It ought to be done at once, he said, and uttered an awful warning, in which he declared in part:

"It needs only the immigration of fresh material, which the enterprise of an American population is sure to bring in, to create a sacrifice such as has not yet been known. Commerce, says Col. Waring, will carry the terrible scourge of yellow fever to our shores until we rise again in a war of humanity and at all costs wipe out an enemy with which no military valor can cope."

He further said in part: "Would it not be wise to accept at once the fact that we are confronted with a danger compared with which war is insignificant and proceed to meet it and conquer it while we may? We cannot afford to wait until we have fed it and strengthened it with the lives of our people. The necessary reforms will call for costly works even now. But every month's delay will make them more costly and more imperative. We can set about these reforms now calmly and judiciously. Later, under the impulse of panic, we should work at far greater disadvantage."

The work, he said, should be done before June 1, 1899.

MINISTERS AROUSED.

A Hot Fight Commenced on Keeping Saloons Open on Sunday at Akron.

AKRON, Jan. 9.—The ministers of the city started a crusade against the Sunday saloons by preaching sermons against the evil and urging their parishioners to co-operate in the movement to crush it out. The Ministerial alliance will likely start today in the active work of arresting saloonkeepers who have been openly violating the law, and have already a number of affidavits which have been secured by two detectives who have been at work quietly during the past few weeks.

Independent of the efforts of the ministers, a number of business men who were engaged in a similar movement two years ago claim they will renew their efforts, and expect to succeed where the ministers may fail. The work of these men two years ago succeeded in closing the saloons in the city and secured the passage of a screen ordinance, but within the last few months the saloons have been running almost as freely on Sunday as the other six days of the week. Both of these movements are entirely independent of the Anti-Saloon League.

WANTS THEM IMPRISONED.

Monnett Talked of His Fight Against Standard Officials.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—Attorney General Cleveland does not agree with Attorney Virgil P. Kiene, that the new petition filed in the supreme court to have the Standard Oil company ousted from this state will in any way interfere with the former proceedings in contempt, which are still pending before the supreme court. In an interview here Mr. Monnett said the Standard had admitted that $3,500,000 had been paid to stockholders in Ohio since the court had ordered the trust dissolved in Ohio.

"The court has been snubbed by the officials of the trust," said Mr. Monnett, "in their refusal to produce their books, and the only thing for the court to do for their contempt is to order the officials committed to jail. In order to bring this issue before the supreme court of the United States habeas corpus proceedings will have to be commenced in United States supreme court to get the Standard Oil officials out of jail. I hope to be able to have their charter revoked, and when I succeed I hope that the other 44 states in this country will follow in the footsteps of Ohio, not only to crush out the Standard Oil trust, but all other trusts."

EXPECTED TODAY.

A Decision May Be Announced In the Quay Case—Defendants Absent During Arguments.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The petition of United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Haywood to have the indictments, charging them with conspiracy and the unlawful use of the state's money, removed from the quarter sessions court of this county, was argued at length before the supreme court Saturday. At the close of the argument the court adjourned until today, when it is expected that a decision will be handed down. Attorneys David T. Watson of Pittsburgh and Rufus E. Shapley of Philadelphia conducted the argument on behalf of the defense, and ex-District Attorney Graham for the commonwealth. All of defendants were absent.

The petition clearly shows that this prosecution was instigated by the express malice of a judge of said county and through a political conspiracy to abuse the processes of the courts for improper political purposes, and that in pursuance of said conspiracy an attempt is now being made to subject the petitioners to the disgrace, inconvenience, hardship, expense and peril of a trial before a jury upon four insufficient indictments which charge no offense known to the law, and to subject one of the defendants to trial upon an indictment irregularly formed without any previous affidavit, hearing and binding over according to law. Therefore, this court should make said rule absolute, and the writ of certiorari should be quashed, and upon the return of the record this court should take such action as will prevent the further prosecution of said indictments, or the trial of the petitioners thereunder.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Three People Perished In a Blaze at Pittsburgh—Others Injured One Fatally.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—Three people were killed and several others quite seriously injured in a fire at the Hotel Richelieu, on Liberty avenue, about 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Several other guests were also injured, but so slightly as not to require much attention and their cases were not reported. The list of dead and seriously injured includes:

The dead: Amos S. Landis, aged 28, Grapeville, Pa., suffocated.

George A. Waters, aged 28, Camden, N. J., suffocated.

Mrs. Kate Boyle, aged 28, Pittsburgh, suffocated.

Some of the injured: Dr. Robert Blakesley, Plymouth, Pa., spinal column broken.

Henry Painter, Grapeville, Pa., eye burned.

John L. Mills, proprietor of the hotel, hands burned.

William Garrison, Clearfield, Pa., severely burned.

There were others slightly injured, who immediately left for other hotels where the slight attention they needed could be secured.

The exact origin of the fire was unknown, but it was believed to have started on the second floor. Several of the guests were of the opinion that it was caused by the explosion by which they were all awakened to their danger, while others believe that the fire had been progressing for some time and that it was the blaze that caused the explosion.

DINGLEY BETTER.

President McKinley Called to Inquire as to His Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The reports from Representative Dingley's bedside are a trifle more encouraging and his family believe there is still a chance for him to rally.

The president called in person at the hotel and made inquiries concerning the sick man. Mr. Dingley's two sons from Kalamazoo, Mich., arrived in the city.

School Children Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 9.—A heavy windstorm swept over the remote section of Scott county. At Boles a schoolhouse was blown down and three pupils were killed, another was fatally wounded and a dozen or more sustained more or less serious injuries.

FLAGS NOT MOLESTED.

Spanish Flags In Front of Two Havana Clubs.

AN INSPECTOR HAS YELLOW FEVER

The Doctor Who Attended Him Arrested For Practicing Without License and Not Reporting the Case—One Louisiana Soldier Murdered Another.

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—Two large Spanish flags appeared over the Clerks' and Asturians' clubs, facing the principal plaza. Their appearance created considerable adverse comment among the Cubans, who, it was said, requested General Brooke to have the flags removed. No action was taken in the matter at headquarters, where it was generally conceded that Spanish flags may float as well as those of other nationalities.

Surgeon General Sternberg recommended the old Spanish camp known as Las Animas as the best site for a yellow fever hospital for the United States troops.

Inspector Doane, who was sent here by the secretary of war to act as inspector of customs, took yellow fever. Inspector Doane had been attended by Dr. C. C. Joliffe. The latter is a discharged army contract surgeon, who came saying that he would establish a hospital. Dr. Joliffe was arrested by the United States authorities and locked up on a charge of practicing without a license, unlawfully wearing the United States uniform and failing to report that Doane's case was contagious.

Private John D. Hughes, Company E, Second Louisville volunteers, was shot and killed by Private Joseph Buckley of the same company. The trouble began in a trivial quarrel. Buckley threatened to kill Hughes. Hughes paid no attention to the threat, but Buckley proceeded to another camp, secured a rifle and cartridge, returned to Buena Vista, waited for his opportunity and shot Hughes through the heart, killing him instantly.

Buckley then surrendered to Captain Hernandon, officer of the day, and was conveyed to Camp Quemados, where he was placed under guard. When questioned about the murder he said he was not drunk, but had killed Hughes deliberately. Buckley, who is a New Orleans man, had a bad reputation before his enlistment. This is said to be his third homicide.

TO UNSEAT FORMER SOLDIERS.

Contests For Seats In the Coming West Virginia Legislature.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The legislature will assemble next Wednesday and party leaders are already here for the preliminary work in the organization of that body. Although the balloting for a successor to Senator Faulkner does not begin until Monday, Jan. 23, two weeks hence, the most important action, affecting the senatorship as well as both parties in the state, will be taken within the next three days.

The legislature is so close politically that its control will depend upon its organization, as that will carry with it the probable settlement of contested seats. Among these contests are two for the seats of Republican members who served in the army during the Spanish war. Although they did not resign the Democrats elected members in their places and have entered proceedings in the courts to secure the seats.

Pullman to Be Free Town.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The Pullman Palace Car company accepted the decision of the supreme court of Illinois sustaining the contention of Attorney General M. T. Malone. The Pullman company has instructed its attorneys to close the suit. Thus will end as a feudal institution the town of Pullman. Its churches and schools, its hotel, its magnificent Arcade hall, the market house, the public library and 2,000 brick residences will be sold to the highest bidder. The Pullman Iron and Steel company will be reorganized. The brick works will pass from the control of the company.

Hon. Reuben Goodrich Dead.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Jan. 9.—Hon. Reuben Goodrich died here, aged 79. He was appointed by President Lincoln receiver of the United States land office. He was removed by President Johnson for political reasons, but again appointed by President Grant, when he served eight years. He left a widow and two children.

Alexander Bradford Upshaw Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Alexander Bradford Upshaw is dead, aged 48 years. OLEVAND, Jan. 9.—Attorney General Monnett does not agree with Attorney Virgil P. Kline, that the new petition filed in the supreme court to have the Standard Oil company ousted from this state will in any way interfere with the former proceedings in contempt, which are still pending before the supreme court. In an interview here Mr. Monnett said the Standard had admitted that $3,500,000 had been paid to stockholders in Ohio since the court had ordered the trust dissolved in Ohio.

"The court has been snubbed by the officials of the trust," said Mr. Monnett, "in their refusal to produce their books, and the only thing for the court to do for their contempt is to order the officials committed to jail. In order to bring this issue before the supreme court of the United States habeas corpus proceedings will have to be commenced in United state supreme court to get the Standard Oil officials out of jail. I hope to be able to have their charter revoked, and when I succeed I hope that the other 44 states in this country will follow in the footsteps of Ohio, not only to crush out the Standard Oil trust, but all other trusts."

EXPECTED TODAY.

A Decision May Be Announced In the Quay Case—Defendants Absent During Arguments.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The petition of United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Haywood to have the indictments, charging them with conspiracy and the unlawful use of the state's money, removed from the quarter sessions court of this county, was argued at length before the supreme court Saturday. At the close of the argument the court adjourned until today, when it is expected that a decision will be handed down. Attorneys David T. Watson of Pittsburgh and Rufus E. Shapley of Philadelphia conducted the argument on behalf of the defense, and ex-District Attorney Graham for the commonwealth. All of defendants were absent.

The petition clearly shows that this prosecution was instigated by the express malice of a judge of said county and through a political conspiracy to abuse the processes of the courts for improper political purposes, and that in pursuance of said conspiracy an attempt is now being made to subject the petitioners to the disgrace, inconvenience, hardship, expense and peril of a trial before a jury upon four insufficient indictments which charge no offense known to the law, and to subject one of the defendants to trial upon an indictment irregularly formed without any previous affidavit, hearing and binding over as to law. Therefore, this court should make said rule absolute, and the writ of certiorari should be quashed, and upon the return of the record this court should take such action as will prevent the further prosecution of said indictments, or the trial of the petitioners thereunder.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Three People Perished In a Blaze at Pittsburgh—Others Injured One Fatally.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 9.—Three people were killed and several others quite seriously injured in a fire at the Hotel Richelieu, on Liberty avenue, about 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Several other guests were also injured, but so slightly as not to require much attention and their cases were not reported. The list of dead and seriously injured includes:

The dead: Amos S. Landis, aged 28, Grapeville, Pa., suffocated.

George A. Waters, aged 28, Camden, N. J., suffocated.

Mrs. Kate Boyle, aged 28, Pittsburgh, suffocated.

Some of the injured: Dr. Robert Blakesley, Plymouth, Pa., spinal column broken.

Henry Painter, Grapeville, Pa., eye burned.

John L. Mills, proprietor of the hotel, hands burned.

William Garrison, Clearfield, Pa., severely burned.

There were others slightly injured, who immediately left for other hotels where the slight attention they needed could be secured.

The exact origin of the fire was unknown, but it was believed to have started on the second floor. Several of the guests were of the opinion that it was caused by the explosion by which they were all awakened to their danger, while others believe that the fire had been progressing for some time and that it was the blaze that caused the explosion.

DINGLEY BETTER.

President McKinley Called to Inquire as to His Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The reports from Representative Dingley's bedside are a trifle more encouraging and his family believe there is still a chance for him to rally.

The president called in person at the hotel and made inquiries concerning the sick man. Mr. Dingley's two sons from Kalamazoo, Mich., arrived in the city.

School Children Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 9.—A heavy windstorm swept over the remote section of Scott county. At Boles a schoolhouse was blown down and three pupils were killed, another was fatally wounded and a dozen or more sustained more or less serious injuries.

FLAGS NOT MOLESTED.

Spanish Flags In Front of Two Havana Clubs.

AN INSPECTOR HAS YELLOW FEVER

The Doctor Who Attended Him Arrested For Practicing Without License and Not Reporting the Case—One Louisiana Soldier Murdered Another.

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—Two large Spanish flags appeared over the Clerks' and Asturians' clubs, facing the principal plaza. Their appearance created considerable adverse comment among the Cubans, who, it was said, requested General Brooke to have the flags removed. No action was taken in the matter at headquarters, where it was generally conceded that Spanish flags may float as well as those of other nationalities.

Surgeon General Sternberg recommended the old Spanish camp known as Las Animas as the best site for a yellow fever hospital for the United States troops.

Inspector Doane, who was sent here by the secretary of war to act as inspector of customs, took yellow fever. Inspector Doane had been attended by Dr. C. C. Joliffe. The latter is a discharged army contract surgeon, who came saying that he would establish a hospital. Dr. Joliffe was arrested by the United States authorities and locked up on a charge of practicing without a license, unlawfully wearing the United States uniform and failing to report that Doane's case was contagious.

Private John D. Hughes, Company E, Second Louisville volunteers, was shot and killed by Private Joseph Buckley of the same company. The trouble began in a trivial quarrel. Buckley threatened to kill Hughes. Hughes paid no attention to the threat, but Buckley proceeded to another camp, secured a rifle and cartridge, returned to Buena Vista, waited for his opportunity and shot Hughes through the heart, killing him instantly.

Buckley then surrendered to Captain Hernandon, officer of the day, and was conveyed to Camp Quemados, where he was placed under guard. When questioned about the murder he said he was not drunk, but had killed Hughes deliberately. Buckley, who is a New Orleans man, had a bad reputation before his enlistment. This is said to be his third homicide.

TO UNSEAT FORMER SOLDIERS.

Contests For Seats In the Coming West Virginia Legislature.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The legislature will assemble next Wednesday and party leaders are already here for the preliminary work in the organization of that body. Although the balloting for a successor to Senator Faulkner does not begin until Monday, Jan. 23, two weeks hence, the most important action, affecting the senatorship as well as both parties in the state, will be taken within the next three days.

The legislature is so close politically that its control will depend upon its organization, as that will carry with it the probable settlement of contested seats. Among these contests are two for the seats of Republican members who served in the army during the Spanish war. Although they did not resign the Democrats elected members in their places and have entered proceedings in the courts to secure the seats.

Pullman to Be Free Town.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The Pullman Palace Car company accepted the decision of the supreme court of Illinois sustaining the contention of Attorney General M. T. Maloney. The Pullman company has instructed its attorneys to close the suit. Thus will end as a feudal institution the town of Pullman. Its churches and schools, its hotel, its magnificent Arcade hall, the market house, the public library and 2,000 brick residences will be sold to the highest bidder. The Pullman Iron and Steel company will be reorganized. The brick works will pass from the control of the company.

EAST LIVERPOOL, O., MONDAY, JAN. 9, 1899.

ATTACKED BY NATIVES

U. S. Soldier Fatally Injured Before Iloilo.

THE FILIPINOS WERE HOSTILE.

Streets Were Barricaded—Reported Some Buildings Were Kerosened to Destroy Them at First Shot of Bombardment. Dispatch From Otis Not Made Public.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Colonel Potter, the special messenger of Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul had gone on board the Newport.

Colonel Potter reported that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship as the printers on shore declined to do the work, and when the text of the proclamation was read to them ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

Privates Harry Silvey and Frank Kirkpatrick of the Sixth United States artillery, while guarding a water boat astern of the Newport, were attacked by the natives of the crew. Private Silvey's skull was fractured fatally and Private Kirkpatrick fell overboard, but escaped with a flesh wound.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday, and Colonel Potter reported that the United States troops would probably land on Guimaras island, about midway between the island of Panay and the island of Negros, where a camp would be established.

MADRID, Jan. 9.—Advices were received here from a leading merchant at Iloilo to the effect that agricultural operations in the vicinity of Iloilo had not been interrupted and that all the insurgents respect the Europeans both at Iloilo and on the island of Negros.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The war department received another dispatch from Major General Otis, commanding the United States troops in the Philippines. The officials observed unusual reticence with respect to its contents, but it was understood that that contained nothing of a character alarming, serious or exciting. There had been no collision with the insurgents, he added, and not a shot had been fired. The dispatch, however, was believed to have been of sufficient importance to bring to the immediate attention of the president, and the latter, Secretary Alger, Secretary Long and Adjutant General Corbin were in conference for some time at the White House, probably on that matter.

The president's proclamation to the Filipinos had been published in Manila, but General Otis did not say what extent it had been made known to the inhabitants in the other parts of the group of islands, nor whether it had been published at Iloilo. At the latter place General Miller had been directed to land the troops under his command, but the dispatch from General Otis did not indicate whether this had been done or not.

Aguinaldo Issued Manifesto.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Within a few hours of the proclamation issued by Major General Otis in behalf of President McKinley the agents of Aguinaldo billed Manila with a manifesto which attracted considerable attention. The revolutionary president protested against General Otis signing himself military governor of the Philippines.

DEFENDED THE BEEF.

Egan Made Public a Letter Giving the Approval of Some of the Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Commissary General Egan of the army made public a letter from Lieutenant Colonel A. L. Smith of the subsistence department touching the use of refrigerated beef furnished to troops in Porto Rico from that landed at Ponce. In this letter Col. Smith says in part:

Among others to whom the refrigerated beef was issued I remember the following officers as having spoken of the immensely superiority of it over the native beef:

Major H. P. Birmingham, surgeon of the general hospital; Captain Irvine, Eleventh infantry, who was acting as commissary for the steamship Panama (I think), loaded with convalescents en route to the United States; Captain W. F. Evans, commanding battalion Nineteenth infantry; Captain Hoppin, Second cavalry, commanding cavalry squadron.

There were no preparations made for the receiving and taking care of the beef on shore. It had to be unloaded by lighters and thrown on the floor of the commissary storehouse until the troops called for it in open wagons. It was, therefore, subjected to the worst possible treatment in handling. It was frequently to 15 hours off the vessel before being issued. One issue to Captain Hoppin was over 24 hours in the storehouse. Notwithstanding this the meat was in good condition except pieces which had not been sufficiently protected, but could be trimmed off with some loss.

The officers without exception to whom I spoke condemned the use of the native beef, which had to be consumed the same day it was slaughtered.

CANNED MEAT DEFINED.

Secretary Wilson Called Upon an Official For a Statement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In view of the statements which have gained wide circulation regarding nutritive value of American canned meat tending to injure foreign and domestic trade in these goods, Secretary Wilson called upon the director of the office of experiment stations for a statement of the conclusions of scientific experts on this matter. The statement declared that "the high nutritive value of American canned meats has been established repeatedly by thorough and impartial tests conducted by scientific experts."

Then follows a long account of certain investigations.

CUBAN BANDITS CAUGHT.

Will Be Put on Trial—Santiago People Were Still Excited Over the Customs.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Jan. 9.—Senor Facardi, the mayor of Santiago, cabled to Havana daily regarding the situation, explaining that the local excitement growing out of the original proposal of the United States to concentrate the receipts at Havana was not allayed and that the people wanted provincial and municipal autonomy. It was understood here that General Wood, with Demetrius Castillo, would reach the United States on or before tomorrow and arrangements had been made for a special cable service to inform the people here as to developments after General Wood's arrival in Washington.

Lieutenant Colonel Ray reported from Guantanamo that a Cuban major a short time ago took to the woods with several of his men, became a bandit and killed five men. The entire band was captured and will be put on trial.

A STEEL AND WIRE TRUST.

Y.; Oliver and Snyder Steel company of Pittsburg, Oliver Wire company of Pittsburg and other companies as well.

The new company will have a capital stock $40,000,000 preferred 7 per cent cumulative, having lien on assets prior to the common stock, and $50,000,000 common stock.

CHANGED A RIVER'S COURSE.

Land From a Small Mountain Slid Into the Fraser, Causing a Flood.

VANCOUVER B. C., Jan. 9.—Near Spencer River, on the Canadian Pacific railway, about 100 feet of a small mountain, anywhere from 20 to 50 feet in depth, crashed into Fraser river, damming it completely and sending the water in torrents over the fertile Nicola valley.

The Fraser was about half a mile out of its course. The district was sparsely settled, and no lives had been lost so far as known. Barns and houses, however, were caught in the flood and carried away and thousands of acres of valuable land will never be reclaimed from the muddy waters of the Fraser in its new course.

Evacuation Commission Arrived.

Southern Plant to Resume.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., Jan. 9.—O. P. Perrin floated bonds for $300,000 in the Watts steel plant and the plant is to resume. This is the largest basic steel works in the south and employs 700 workmen. It was built in 1893 at a cost of $750,000.

TO AID THE CUBANS.

SECOND SUPPLY SHIP GOING.

The Load Will Include Many Foods Especially Adapted to Women and Children—Scheme of Industrial Relief Expected to Do Much Good.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The secretary of war furnished the Cuban industrial relief fund of New York with credentials to General Brooke, military governor of Cuba, commending the relief association to him as a distributing agent of food supplies sent and to be sent by the government to the suffering Cubans. A second shipload of these supplies, which was being prepared, will include many foods specially adapted to the needs of women and children as well as to the Cuban soldiers and laborers. It was believed that a discriminating use of this food, in connection with the industrial features of the relief fund would result in the gradual transfer of many from the charitably aided class to the self-sustaining class.

This recognition of the industrial relief fund, and acceptance of its co-operation in the charities to be administered by the war department will undoubtedly inspire the philanthropic public to furnish promptly all the money that can profitably be used in equipping this work with implements, seeds, cattle and all the industrial necessities which the government has no legal means of providing.

WARNED BY WARING.

Reported, Before He Died, as to Havana's Filth—May Send Scourge to Our Shores.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The report of the late Colonel Waring, who was sent to Havana to look into sanitary conditions, was made public. He described the awful filth of the city and made recommendations which would, if followed out, cost about $10,000,000. It ought to be done at once, he said, and uttered an awful warning, in which he declared in part:

"It needs only the immigration of fresh material, which the enterprise of an American population is sure to bring in, to create a sacrifice such as has not yet been known. Commerce, says Col. Waring, will carry the terrible scourge of yellow fever to our shores until we rise again in a war of humanity and at all costs wipe out an enemy with which no military valor can cope."

He further said in part: "Would it not be wise to accept at once the fact that we are confronted with a danger compared with which war is insignificant and proceed to meet it and conquer it while we may? We cannot afford to wait until we have fed it and strengthened it with the lives of our people. The necessary reforms will call for costly works even now. But every month's delay will make them more costly and more imperative. We can set about these reforms now calmly and judiciously. Later, under the impulse of panic, we should work at far greater disadvantage."

The work, he said, should be done before June 1, 1899.

MINISTERS AROUSED.

A Hot Fight Commenced on Keeping Saloons Open on Sunday at Akron.

AKRON, Jan. 9.—The ministers of the city started a crusade against the Sunday saloons by preaching sermons against the evil and urging their parishioners to co-operate in the movement to crush it out. The Ministerial alliance will likely start today in the active work of arresting saloonkeepers who have been openly violating the law, and have already a number of affidavits which have been secured by two detectives who have been at work quietly during the past few weeks.

Independent of the efforts of the ministers, a number of business men who were engaged in a similar movement two years ago claim they will renew their efforts, and expect to succeed where the ministers may fail. The work of these men two years ago succeeded in closing the saloons in the city and secured the passage of a screen ordinance, but within the last few months the saloons have been running almost as freely on Sunday as the other six days of the week. Both of these movements are entirely independent of the Anti-Saloon League.

WANTS THEM IMPRISONED.

Monnett Talked of His Fight Against Standard Officials.

which are still pending before the supreme court. In an interview here Mr. Monnett said the Standard had admitted that $3,500,000 had been paid to stockholders in Ohio since the court had ordered the trust dissolved in Ohio.

"The court has been snubbed by the officials of the trust," said Mr. Monnett, "in their refusal to produce their books, and the only thing for the court to do for their contempt is to order the officials committed to jail. In order to bring this issue before the supreme court of the United States habeas corpus proceedings will have to be commenced in United States supreme court to get the Standard Oil officials out of jail. I hope to be able to have their charter revoked, and when I succeed I hope that the other 44 states in this country will follow in the footsteps of Ohio, not only to crush out the Standard Oil trust, but all other trusts."

EXPECTED TODAY.

A Decision May Be Announced in the Quay Case—Defendants Absent During Arguments.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The petition of United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Haywood to have the indictments, charging them with conspiracy and the unlawful use of the state's money, removed from the quarter sessions court of this county, was argued at length before the supreme court Saturday. At the close of the argument the court adjourned until today, when it is expected that a decision will be handed down. Attorneys David T. Watson of Pittsburg and Rufus E. Shapley of Philadelphia conducted the argument on behalf of the defense, and ex-District Attorney Graham for the commonwealth. All of defendants were absent.

The petition clearly shows that this prosecution was instigated by the express malice of a judge of said county and through a political conspiracy to abuse the processes of the courts for improper political purposes, and that in pursuance of said conspiracy an attempt is now being made to subject the petitioners to the disgrace, inconvenience, hardship, expense and peril of a trial before a jury upon four insufficient indictments which charge no offense known to the law, and to subject one of the defendants to trial upon an indictment irregularly formed without any previous affidavit, hearing and binding over according to law. Therefore, this court should make said rule absolute, and the writ of certiorari should be quashed, and, upon the return of the record this court should take such action as will prevent the further prosecution of said indictments, or the trial of the petitioners thereunder.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

The exact origin of the fire was unknown, but it was believed to have started on the second floor. Several of the guests were of the opinion that it was caused by the explosion by which they were all awakened to their danger, while others believe that the fire had been progressing for some time and that it was the blaze that caused the explosion.

This is said to be his third homicide.

Contests For Seats in the Coming West Virginia Legislature.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The legislature will assemble next Wednesday and party leaders are already here for the preliminary work in the organization of that body. Although they did not resign the Democrats elected members in their places and have entered proceedings in the courts to secure the seats.

GOT AWAY WITH SHOES

Women Succeeded In Robbing a Merchant.

WORKED A NEAT LITTLE PLAN

It Was Carried Out to Perfection—One Looked For a Pair of Overshoes While the Other Selected What She Wanted and Escaped Undetected.

A case of shoplifting occurred in the city Saturday evening.

Early in the evening two women entered the store of W. H. Gass, and one of them stated that she wished to purchase a pair of rubbers, and the other woman said she would wait while her friend secured the overshoes. The clerk then turned and began selecting a pair of overshoes and did not watch the woman who was waiting. After he had finished waiting on the woman the two women turned and went out of the store.

Shortly after they had left it was discovered that a pair of shoes was missing and as they had only been taken down from the shelf a short time before it was not a hard task to trace the theft to the women.

The proprietor of the store knows the parties, but does not wish to prosecute but will do so unless the shoes are returned at once.

POPULAR MUSIC.

Wonderful Hold It Has on the Public.

About five years ago, when "After the Ball," composed by Charles K. Harris, was announced it soon proved to be one of the most popular pieces that had ever taken hold of public fancy. Mr. Harris was originally a negro banjo player with a minstrel company, but the immense sale of his song set him on his feet, and he opened a great publishing house. While his other compositions have not appealed to the public as did "After the Ball," he has made some happy and profitable hits. "Cast Aside" was one, while "Break the News to Mother" is his latest. His success has led other composers to enter the field, and for a time Paul Dresser seemed to be running with him neck and neck. After his "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" his "Banks of the Wabash" seemed to have favor with the singers. He has not written anything very popular of late, but composers such as the authors of "Bred in Old Kentucky" seem to have taken advantage of his inactivity, and we may look for a number of hits from their pens soon. At the time of these successes there have appeared a number of negro marches, of which Kerry Mills has made a tremendous success, "Georgia Campmeeting" proving even more popular than his "Rastus on Parade." It may be of interest to the lovers of this class of music to know that Mr. Mills has brought into the field a new march song entitled "Whistling Refus," which promises to find as much favor with the public as his former successes.

All productions of these popular authors can be found in the magnificent collection of sheet music at Smith & Phillips, Washington and Fourth streets.

NEW CUP CHALLENGER.

Sir Thomas Lipton Talks of His Yacht, the Shamrock.

WILL BE LARGER THAN VALKYRIE

The Yacht Will Grow Up In an Irish Shipyard After Metals and Materials Have Been Furnished by the Thorneycrofts—Will Be of Lighter Construction Than Dunraven's Boat of 1895—Very Large Sail Plan.

The Boston Herald of a recent date has the following cable from its Glasgow correspondent:

The other day I ran across Sir Thomas Lipton in Glasgow and had quite a pleasant chat with him, and it was only after being quite hard pressed that he cared to say anything about his new venture—the cup challenger—except that the Shamrock would ultimately grow up in the great shipbuilding yard of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland.

Sir Thomas Lipton came to this city on business and also for a pleasure trip and to enjoy the holidays and take a run to Fairlie for a crack with young Fife.

I asked Sir Thomas Lipton if the Shamrock would be built by the Thorneycrofts, and he gave me this reply: "Well, hardly to the extent your question would seem to imply."

"Can you tell me, then, where the Shamrock will be built and launched?"

"You can say that the metals, fittings and other things needed in the metal line will be wrought into shape by Thorneycrofts. Then all the metal will be boxed up and shipped to Harland & Wolff's yard, Belfast, Ireland, where the Irish firm will build her. So, you see, she will be built on Irish soil and launched in Irish waters."

"Are you at liberty to speak of the Shamrock in a general way?"

"I am not, and being sharp in the hunt for the America's cup it is prudent that nothing be said about her, at least at this time."

"When do you expect the Shamrock will be launched?"

"All of us are in hopes that she will be afloat by mid-March, in time for an early trial."

"Have you decided on your skipper?"

"Yes, that important question has been thrashed out well. All possible contingencies have been considered, and Mr. Fife has made the tender to Captain Archie Hogarth, and he has accepted."

"What about having two skippers?"

"Oh, yes, that matter was also considered, and Fife says that it is absolutely necessary to have two good men to take charge of the ship, one to be the helmsman and chief and the other to look after the trim of sails and all other matters which need attention in working the Shamrock into her best form for the races. You see, this America's cup racing is a great affair nowadays, and he who goes into it must be prepared in all ways. Lord Dunraven found it necessary to have two skippers. Of course you must know that the Americans have had two skippers in the last three matches for the cup."

"Have you any objection to telling the American people the name of the second man?"

"None at all. Captain Ben Parker, who is now in charge of the German emperor's yacht the Meteor, is the man. Negotiations are in progress looking to the loan of Captain Parker for the cup race. The captain has raced in American waters and once sailed the Herreshoff boat, the 20 rater Isolda, very near to a sister boat of the Niagara. Both Hogarth and Parker are comparatively young men."

"Will the Shamrock do any racing on this side before leaving for New York?"

"Yes, it is my expectation and great desire that the Shamrock will be finished and ready to take part in the Thames matches which are to take place in early April. From the Thames we intend to do the round of British regattas to the Clyde, where the Shamrock will take part in the Clyde fortnight racing. After doing the Clyde we will cross over to Ireland and race it out there for a couple of regattas off Bangor, where the club's headquarters, the Royal Ulster, under which I challenge, are located. I intend to give prizes for the races in Irish waters."

"With the Ailsa, the Meteor and the Satanita under yawl rig the coming season, you will hardly have any suitable trial horse for comparison."

"The Valkyrie III will do the matches with us, as Mr. McCalmont will fit her out. This will be a great help, and we greatly appreciate the favor."

"Have you decided when the Shamrock will leave for America?"

"The exact day, no, but somewhere in the latter end of July, quite soon after the Bangor regatta is over. The Shamrock will sail from Belfast and will go out by the north of Ireland under yawl rig."

The reason given for setting up the Shamrock first by the Thorneycrofts is that they are superior metal workers and have had more experience in building light, strong vessels than anybody else, though Harland & Wolff always do first class work, but have not given the same attention to light metal work that the London firm has. Watson is aiding Mr. Fife in his effort to win back the cup and is giving him the benefit of his experience. Mr. Fife expects to save several thousand pounds of weight in the spars of the Shamrock as compared either with Valkyrie III or the Defender.

Captain Hogarth will be the head skipper, and he will insist on picking the crew, which will be as Scotch as the Thistle itself. He is a Port Bannatyne man and formerly raced the yachts Yvonne, the 20 rater Isolda after Ben Parker left her, and the 85 footer Caluna. Last season Hogarth raced the big Isolda, a Fife boat of 72 feet water line.

From authentic sources I learn that the Shamrock will have wholesome beam and will be larger than Valkyrie III and of lighter construction, of less displacement and more ballast. She will have a very large sail plan, the material for which is being made under special contract. Fife never took such an interest in any of his boats—in fact, he never had the free hand to do as he liked, regardless of expense.

Fife has not said much about the Shamrock, but those who know him best say that he goes into the America's cup matches with great confidence in himself and feels that he has designed the Shamrock strong in all around sailing. Young Fife, who has raced with Charlie Barr and Archie Hogarth, thinks that Archie is the better man of the two, and that he is Barr's master at a start. Young Fife is an expert helmsman and knows when a yacht is well sailed and cared for.

REMARKABLE LIFE SAVERS.

Department at Washington Receiving Many Queer Inventions.

The destruction of the City of Portland and other recent marine disasters have started the wheels going in the brains of more than one inventive crank. The department officials in Washington have been during the past few weeks flooded with all sorts of propositions for saving life at sea. These have been turned over to General Dumont, chief steamboat inspector. He has a separate file devoted to papers from persons who want the government to pay fancy prices for the privilege of owning useless and silly patents.

The other day a man wrote to the department at great length, telling of a new nonsinkable, self baling lifeboat, equipped with comforts and conveniences enough to keep a party alive at sea for an indefinite period. So confident was he in the virtues of his boat that he made the generous offer of letting a congressional committee test it. He proposed to drop them overboard some place on the ocean and let them drift around until picked up by a passing steamer. He protested that they would live as elegantly and as happily in his boat as in the best appointed hotel, even if they were not found for a month or more. It is needless to say that no congressmen volunteered to make a practical test of this craft.

Another man proposed that all steam ships hereafter be compelled to include in their equipment a battery of guns, with a magazine room full of shells containing oil. When overwhelmed by a storm and a rough sea, his plan was to fire the shells overboard so that they would explode about 500 yards distant, scatter oil about the water and thus calm the sea. Still another uncrowned Edison has drawn plans for a wonderful looking structure which he calls a life preserving tank with parachute attachment. His invention is portrayed in sky blue ink and shows his model undisturbed in a sea running mountains high and standing large steamships on end. A special network of wire is provided to protect the legs and feet of the passengers. The most wonderful part of his device was a parachute which trails along in the water behind the tank. The theory was that the wind would inflate the parachute and drag the tank along to shore.—Special St. Louis Republic.

NEW HOME FOR SAILORS

Features of Proposed Building For Enlisted Men of Navy.

A BAR WITHOUT ANY LIQUOR.

The Home Will Be Built at Brooklyn Under the Young Men's Christian Association's Auspices—Physical, Intellectual and Moral Uplifting of Sailors Its Purpose.

Plans are under way for the erection in Brooklyn, on a site near the New York navy yard, of a building to cost at least $100,000 and to contain the very latest and best ideas obtained from experience in England and America designed to effect the physical, social, intellectual and spiritual uplifting of enlisted men in the United States navy. The plan also contemplates the erection of similar buildings, though perhaps not quite so large, in Boston, Newport, Norfolk, San Francisco and perhaps Manila and Havana. It still further contemplates similar social work for enlisted men in the United States army, the whole being a comprehensive movement in the direction of Christian work in both army and navy similar to that done in the British and French armies.

Those who are behind the project are members of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, working through its recently formed army and navy department, at the head of which subcommittee is Commodore J. W. Philip. The Brooklyn building is to be known as the "naval branch" and is selected because the New York navy yard is the highway between the entire United States navy and civil life.

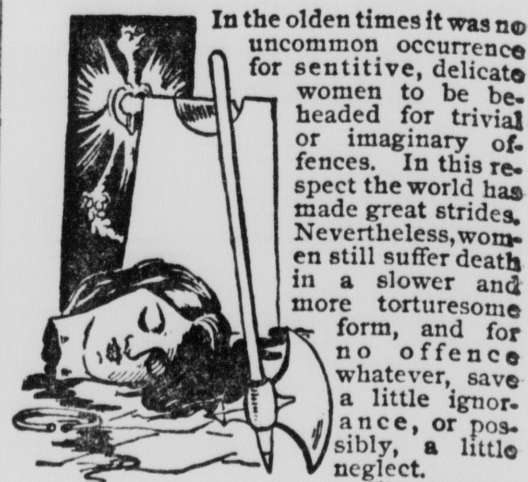

The building proposed for Brooklyn and the special ones talked of for Boston, Newport, Norfolk and San Francisco are to be exclusively for enlisted men in the navy. The army work is to take a little different form. The Brooklyn building will look not unlike a hotel and will be for the most part modeled after buildings devoted to a similar purpose, under charge of the famous Miss Weston, and located at Portsmouth and Devonport, in England. The chief features of its interior will be two. One of these will be the cabins. These are the rooms, but they will not be rooms exactly. They will more nearly resemble staterooms on ships, but will be separated with wire screens, so that each lodger will be by himself. They will be kept scrupulously clean, and the charge for them per night will be 10 to 20 cents. On this basis it is expected to make the branch self supporting when the building is provided for. The other feature will be the bar—yes, bar. It will be in a prominent room on the first floor and open to everybody—enlisted men and the public. It will look like a bar, and people will treat it as a bar. But it will have for sale nothing intoxicating.

This naval branch will have a library and reading room and small rooms for Bible classes, and also for educational classes. There are 12,000 men in the American navy, and with the completion of the new warships there will be perhaps half as many more. This Brooklyn building and also the Boston, San Francisco and other buildings are to be Young Men's Christian associations for sailors. But they will treat sailors as men, as all associations are coming to do more and more as the true spirit of religious effort comes to be better understood, not making the religious part too conspicuous, and yet never permitting it to be forgotten that the institution is a Christian one.

One of the results of the war with Spain is a movement to inaugurate systematic Christian effort for all enlisted men. The Young Men's Christian association sent Secretary William B. Millar to England, Scotland and France immediately after the protocol was signed and the work in New York slackened. Mr. Millar visited all of the institutions for enlisted men in the countries named and has recently returned home. His ideas the committee now propose to put into effect for the benefit of American enlisted men.

Contemplated work in the American army by the Young Men's Christian association includes an extension of that heretofore done. Twelve men are with the forces in Cuba, several are at Manila and three are in Porto Rico. Special attention is to be given to the work at camps that may be established, and in the permanent posts at Chicago, Fort Snelling, Fort Porter, Fort Warren, Fort Myer and Fort Hamilton.

The work of the naval branch involves the organization of associations on each man-of-war. This has been done to some extent and with success. Tickets are sold to enlisted men at $6 a year; $4 of the $6 goes to the central committee to be divided among the 20 or more associations in seaboard cities, beginning at Portland, Me., and extending all around the coast to Seattle, Wash. Membership tickets held by these naval men are good in any association they happen to visit in these cities. The other $2 goes to the local association on board the ship. A chief thing attained by these ship associations is a chaplain. The United States government provides a chaplain on ships carrying a certain number of men. Those carrying fewer have no chap-

In the olden times it was no uncommon occurrence for sensitive, delicate women to be headed for trivial or imaginary offences. In this respect the world has made great strides. Nevertheless, women still suffer death in a slower and more tortuous form, and for no offence whatever, save a little ignorance, or possibly, a little neglect. The woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organs, whether she realizes it or not, is being slowly but surely tortured to death. She suffers almost continually with sick headache. She has pains in the back, what she calls "stitches" in the side and shooting pains everywhere. She experiences burning and dragging down sensations. She becomes weak, nervous and despondent. She neglects her home, and is petulant with her husband. If she consults the average physician, there is not one chance in ten that he will hit upon the real cause of her trouble. He will attribute her bad feelings to stomach, liver, heart or nervous trouble. A woman in this condition should consult some eminent and skillful specialist who has had a wide experience. Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., has, with the assistance of a staff of able physicians, prescribed for many thousands of women. He has invented a wonderful medicine for ailing women, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has stood the test for thirty years. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in witchhood and motherhood, making them strong and well. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, nervous women into healthy, happy wives and mothers.

"I was an invalid for over a year with change of life," writes Mrs. C. Smith, of Orr, Cascade Co., Mont. "I had pains across the pit of my stomach and such extreme weakness I could hardly walk. I took one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and five of his 'Favorite Prescription' and am entirely well."

The pains were so severe that I was often obliged to stay in bed, not being able to get up. Women Succeeded In Robbing a Merchant.

WORKED A NEAT LITTLE PLAN

It Was Carried Out to Perfection—One Looked For a Pair of Overshoes While the Other Selected What She Wanted and Escaped Undetected.

A case of shoplifting occurred in the city Saturday evening.

Early in the evening two women entered the store of W. H. Gass, and one of them stated that she wished to purchase a pair of rubbers, and the other woman said she would wait while her friend secured the overshoes. The clerk then turned and began selecting a pair of overshoes and did not watch the woman who was waiting. After he had finished waiting on the woman the two women turned and went out of the store.

Shortly after they had left it was discovered that a pair of shoes was missing and as they had only been taken down from the shelf a short time before it was not a hard task to trace the theft to the women.

The proprietor of the store knows the parties, but does not wish to prosecute but will do so unless the shoes are returned at once.

POPULAR MUSIC.

Wonderful Hold It Has on the Public.

About five years ago, when "After the Ball," composed by Charles K. Harris, was announced it soon proved to be one of the most popular pieces that had ever taken hold of public fancy. Mr. Harris was originally a negro banjo player with a minstrel company, but the immense sale of his song set him on his feet, and he opened a great publishing house. While his other compositions have not appealed to the public as did "After the Ball," he has made some happy and profitable hits. "Cast Aside" was one, while "Break the News to Mother" is his latest. His success has led other composers to enter the field, and for a time Paul Dresser seemed to be running with him neck and neck. After his "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" his "Banks of the Wabash" seemed to have favor with the singers. He has not written anything very popular of late, but composers such as the authors of "Bred in Old Kentucky" seem to have taken advantage of his inactivity, and we may look for a number of hits from their pens soon. At the time of these successes there have appeared a number of negro marches, of which Kerry Mills has made a tremendous success, "Georgia Campmeeting" proving even more popular than his "Rastus on Parade." It may be of interest to the lovers of this class of music to know that Mr. Mills has brought into the field a new march song entitled "Whistling Refus," which promises to find as much favor with the public as his former successes.

All productions of these popular authors can be found in the magnificent collection of sheet music at Smith & Phillips, Washington and Fourth streets.

NEW CUP CHALLENGER.

Sir Thomas Lipton Talks of His Yacht, the Shamrock.

WILL BE LARGER THAN VALKYRIE

The Yacht Will Grow Up In an Irish Shipyard After Metals and Materials Have Been Furnished by the Thorneycrofts—Will Be of Lighter Construction Than Dunraven's Boat of 1895—Very Large Sail Plan.

The Boston Herald of a recent date has the following cable from its Glasgow correspondent:

The other day I ran across Sir Thomas Lipton in Glasgow and had quite a pleasant chat with him, and it was only after being quite hard pressed that he cared to say anything about his new venture—the cup challenger—except that the Shamrock would ultimately grow up in the great shipbuilding yard of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland.

Sir Thomas Lipton came to this city on business and also for a pleasure trip and to enjoy the holidays and take a run to Fairlie for a crack with young Fife.

I asked Sir Thomas Lipton if the Shamrock would be built by the Thorneycrofts, and he gave me this reply:

"Well, hardly to the extent your question would seem to imply."

"Can you tell me, then, where the Shamrock will be built and launched?"

"You can say that the metals, fittings and other things needed in the metal line will be wrought into shape by Thorneycrofts. The work of the naval branch involves the organization of associations on each man-of-war. This has been done to some extent and with success. Tickets are sold to enlisted men at $6 a year; $4 of the $6 goes to the central committee to be divided among the 20 or more associations in seaboard cities, beginning at Portland, Me., and extending all around the coast to Seattle, Wash. Membership tickets held by these naval men are good in any association they happen to visit in these cities. The other $2 goes to the local association on board the ship. In the olden times it was no uncommon occurrence for sensitive, delicate women to be beheaded for trivial or imaginary offences. In this respect the world has made great strides. Nevertheless, women still suffer death in a slower and more tortuous form, and for no offence whatever, save a little ignorance, or possibly, a little neglect. The woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organs, whether she realizes it or not, is being slowly but surely tortured to death. She suffers almost continually with sick headache. She has pains in the back, what she calls "stitches" in the side and shooting pains everywhere. She experiences burning and dragging down sensations. She becomes weak, nervous and despondent. She neglects her home, and is petulant with her husband. If she consults the average physician, there is not one chance in ten that he will hit upon the real cause of her trouble. He will attribute her bad feelings to stomach, liver, heart or nervous trouble. A woman in this condition should consult some eminent and skillful specialist who has had a wide experience. Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., has, with the assistance of a staff of able physicians, prescribed for many thousands of women. He has invented a wonderful medicine for ailing women, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has stood the test for thirty years. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood, making them strong and well. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, nervous women into healthy, happy wives and mothers.

"I was an invalid for over a year with change of life," writes Mrs. C. Smith, of Orr, Cascade Co., Mont. "Had pains across the pit of my stomach and such extreme weakness I could hardly walk. Took one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and am entirely well."

I suffered terribly for two or three years, alternately better and worse, with severe pains across the small of my back and up my sides, particularly my right side. The pains were so severe that I was often obliged to stay in bed, not being able to get up. ### Another Tribe of African Dwarfs.

The German colonists of Africa have recently discovered another tribe of dwarfs. They dwell in what is called the hinterland of Kamerun, are of a dark brown color, and none of the adults are more than three feet high. The only deformity of these dwarfs consists in their abnormally large feet. The tribe is called the Bagelli. The Germans have brought seven natives to the Kamerun, one of them being a woman who is about 19 years old.—New York Journal.

GOT AWAY WITH SHOES

Women Succeeded In Robbing a Merchant.

WORKED A NEAT LITTLE PLAN

It Was Carried Out to Perfection—One Looked For a Pair of Overshoes While the Other Selected What She Wanted and Escaped Undetected.

A case of shoplifting occurred in the city Saturday evening.

Early in the evening two women entered the store of W. H. Gass, and one of them stated that she wished to purchase a pair of rubbers, and the other woman said she would wait while her friend secured the overshoes. The clerk then turned and began selecting a pair of overshoes and did not watch the woman who was waiting. After he had finished waiting on the woman the two women turned and went out of the store.

Shortly after they had left it was discovered that a pair of shoes was missing and as they had only been taken down from the shelf a short time before it was not a hard task to trace the theft to the women.

The proprietor of the store knows the parties, but does not wish to prosecute but will do so unless the shoes are returned at once.

POPULAR MUSIC.

Wonderful Hold It Has on the Public.

About five years ago, when "After the Ball," composed by Charles K. Harris, was announced it soon proved to be one of the most popular pieces that had ever taken hold of public fancy. Mr. Harris was originally a negro banjo player with a minstrel company, but the immense sale of his song set him on his feet, and he opened a great publishing house. While his other compositions have not appealed to the public as did "After the Ball," he has made some happy and profitable hits. "Cast Aside" was one, while "Break the News to Mother" is his latest. His success has led other composers to enter the field, and for a time Paul Dresser seemed to be running with him neck and neck. After his "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" his "Banks of the Wabash" seemed to have favor with the singers. He has not written anything very popular of late, but composers such as the authors of "Bred in Old Kentucky" seem to have taken advantage of his inactivity, and we may look for a number of hits from their pens soon. At the time of these successes there have appeared a number of negro marches, of which Kerry Mills has made a tremendous success, "Georgia Campmeeting" proving even more popular than his "Rastus on Parade." It may be of interest to the lovers of this class of music to know that Mr. Mills has brought into the field a new march song entitled "Whistling Refus," which promises to find as much favor with the public as his former successes.

All productions of these popular authors can be found in the magnificent collection of sheet music at Smith & Phillips, Washington and Fourth streets.

NEW CUP CHALLENGER.

Sir Thomas Lipton Talks of His Yacht, the Shamrock.

WILL BE LARGER THAN VALKYRIE

The Yacht Will Grow Up In an Irish Shipyard After Metals and Materials Have Been Furnished by the Thorneycrofts—Will Be of Lighter Construction Than Dunraven's Boat of 1895—Very Large Sail Plan.

The Boston Herald of a recent date has the following cable from its Glasgow correspondent:

The other day I ran across Sir Thomas Lipton in Glasgow and had quite a pleasant chat with him, and it was only after being quite hard pressed that he cared to say anything about his new venture—the cup challenger—except that the Shamrock would ultimately grow up in the great shipbuilding yard of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland.

Sir Thomas Lipton came to this city on business and also for a pleasure trip and to enjoy the holidays and take a run to Fairlie for a crack with young Fife.

I asked Sir Thomas Lipton if the Shamrock would be built by the Thorneycrofts, and he gave me this reply:

"Well, hardly to the extent your question would seem to imply."

"Can you tell me, then, where the Shamrock will be built and launched?"

"You can say that the metals, fittings and other things needed in the metal line will be wrought into shape by Thorneycrofts. Then all the metal will be boxed up and shipped to Harland & Wolff's yard, Belfast, Ireland, where the Irish firm will build her. So, you see, she will be built on Irish soil and launched in Irish waters."

"Are you at liberty to speak of the Shamrock in a general way?"

"I am not, and being sharp in the hunt for the America's cup it is prudent that nothing be said about her, at least at this time."

"When do you expect the Shamrock will be launched?"

"All of us are in hopes that she will be afloat by mid-March, in time for an early trial."

"Have you decided on your skipper?"

"Yes, that important question has been thrashed out well. All possible contingencies have been considered, and Mr. Fife has made the tender to Captain Archie Hogarth, and he has accepted."

"What about having two skippers?"

"Oh, yes, that matter was also considered, and Fife says that it is absolutely necessary to have two good men to take charge of the ship, one to be the helmsman and chief and the other to look after the trim of sails and all other matters which need attention in working the Shamrock into her best form for the races. You see, this America's cup racing is a great affair nowadays, and he who goes into it must be prepared in all ways. Lord Dunraven found it necessary to have two skippers. Of course you must know that the Americans have had two skippers in the last three matches for the cup."

"Have you any objection to telling the American people the name of the second man?"

"None at all. Captain Ben Parker, who is now in charge of the German emperor's yacht the Meteor, is the man. Negotiations are in progress looking to the loan of Captain Parker for the cup race. The captain has raced in American waters and once sailed the Herreshoff boat, the 20 rater Isolda, very near to a sister boat of the Niagara. Both Hogarth and Parker are comparatively young men."

"Will the Shamrock do any racing on this side before leaving for New York?"

"Yes, it is my expectation and great desire that the Shamrock will be finished and ready to take part in the Thames matches which are to take place in early April. From the Thames we intend to do the round of British regattas to the Clyde, where the Shamrock will take part in the Clyde fortnight racing. After joining the Clyde we will cross over to Ireland and race it out there for a couple of regattas off Bangor, where the club's headquarters, the Royal Ulster, under which I challenge, are located. I intend to give prizes for the races in Irish waters."

"With the Ailsa, the Meteor and the Satanita under yawl rig the coming season, you will hardly have any suitable trial horse for comparison."

"The Valkyrie III will do the matches with us, as Mr. McCalmont will fit her out. This will be a great help, and we greatly appreciate the favor."

"Have you decided when the Shamrock will leave for America?"

"The exact day, no, but somewhere in the latter end of July, quite soon after the Bangor regatta is over. The Shamrock will sail from Belfast and will go out by the north of Ireland under yawl rig."

The reason given for setting up the Shamrock first by the Thorneycrofts is that they are superior metal workers and have had more experience in building light, strong vessels than anybody else, though Harland & Wolff always do first class work, but have not given the same attention to light metal work that the London firm Messrs. Watson is aiding Mr. Fife in his effort to win back the cup and is giving him the benefit of his experience. Mr. Fife expects to save several thousand pounds of weight in the spars of the Shamrock as compared either with Valkyrie III or the Defender.

Captain Hogarth will be the head skipper, and he will insist on picking the crew, which will be as Scotch as the Thistle itself. He is a Port Bannatyne man and formerly raced the yachts Yvonne, the 20 rater Isolda after Ben Parker left her, and the 85 footer Caluna. Last season Hogarth raced the big Isolda, a Fife boat of 72 feet water line.

From authentic sources I learn that the Shamrock will have wholesome beam and will be larger than Valkyrie III and of lighter construction, of less displacement and more ballast. She will have a very large sail plan, the material for which is being made under special contract. Fife never took such an interest in any of his boats—in fact, he never had the free hand to do as he liked, regardless of expense.

Fife has not said much about the Shamrock, but those who know him best say that he goes into the America's cup matches with great confidence in himself and feels that he has designed the Shamrock strong in all around sailing. Young Fife, who has raced with Charlie Barr and Archie Hogarth, thinks that Archie is the better man of the two, and that he is Barr's master at a start. Young Fife is an expert helmsman and knows when a yacht is well sailed and cared for.

REMARKABLE LIFE SAVERS.

Department at Washington Recently Invented Many Queer Inventions.

The destruction of the City of Port land and other recent marine disasters have started the wheels going in the brains of more than one inventive crank. The department officials in Washington have been during the past few weeks flooded with all sorts of propositions for saving life at sea. These have been turned over to General Dumont, chief steamboat inspector. He has a separate file devoted to papers from persons who want the government to pay fancy prices for the privilege of owning useless and silly patents.

The other day a man wrote to the department at great length, telling of a new nonsinkable, self baling lifeboat, equipped with comforts and conveniences enough to keep a party alive at sea for an indefinite period. So confident was he in the virtues of his boat that he made the generous offer of letting a congressional committee test it. He proposed to drop them overboard some place on the ocean and let them drift around until picked up by a passing steamer. He protested that they would live as elegantly and as happily in his boat as in the best appointed hotel, even if they were not found for a month or more. It is needless to say that no congressmen volunteered to make a practical test of this craft.

Another man proposed that all steam ships hereafter be compelled to include in their equipment a battery of guns, with a magazine room full of shells containing oil. When overwhelmed by a storm and a rough sea, his plan was to fire the shells overboard so that they would explode about 500 yards distant, scatter oil about the water and thus calm the sea. Still another uncrowned Edison has drawn plans for a wonderful looking structure which he calls a life preserving tank with parachute attachment. His invention is portrayed in sky blue ink and shows his model undisturbed in a sea running mountains high and standing large steamships on end. A special network of wire is provided to protect the legs and feet of the passengers. The most wonderful part of his device was a parachute which trails along in the water behind the tank. The theory was that the wind would inflate the parachute and drag the tank along to shore.—Special St. Louis Republic.

How paltry a thing they both will know That grudge of a hundred years ago— How shall that blemish of wrath and blame In the blazonry of their common fame?

NEW HOME FOR SAILORS

Features of Proposed Building For Enlisted Men of Navy.

A BAR WITHOUT ANY LIQUOR.

The Home Will Be Built at Brooklyn Under the Young Men's Christian Association's Auspices—Physical, Intellectual and Moral Uplifting of Sailors Its Purpose.

Plans are under way for the erection in Brooklyn, on a site near the New York navy yard, of a building to cost at least $100,000 and to contain the very latest and best ideas obtained from experience in England and America designed to effect the physical, social, intellectual and spiritual uplifting of enlisted men in the United States navy. The plan also contemplates the erection of similar buildings, though perhaps not quite so large, in Boston, Newport, Norfolk, San Francisco and perhaps Manila and Havana. It still further contemplates similar social work for enlisted men in the United States army, the whole being a comprehensive movement in the direction of Christian work in both army and navy similar to that done in the British and French armies.

Those who are behind the project are members of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, working through its recently formed army and navy department, at the head of which subcommittee is Commodore J. W. Philip. The Brooklyn building is to be known as the "naval branch" and is selected because the New York navy yard is the highway between the entire United States navy and civil life.

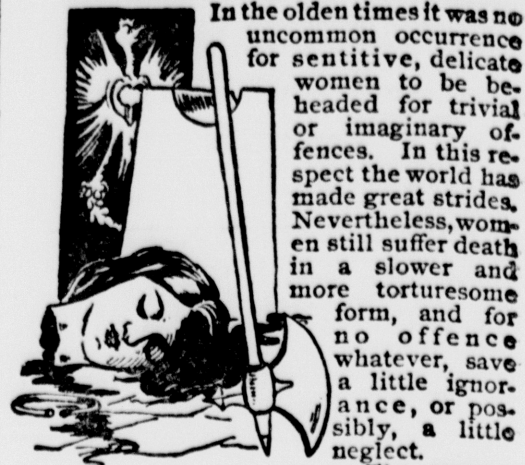

The building proposed for Brooklyn and the special ones talked of for Boston, Newport, Norfolk and San Francisco are to be exclusively for enlisted men in the navy. The army work is to take a little different form. The Brooklyn building will look not unlike a hotel and will be for the most part modeled after buildings devoted to a similar purpose, under charge of the famous Miss Weston, and located at Portsmouth and Devonport, in England. The chief features of its interior will be two. One of these will be the cabins. These are the rooms, but they will not be rooms exactly. They will more nearly resemble staterooms on ships, but will be separated with wire screens, so that each lodger will be by himself. They will be kept scrupulously clean, and the charge for them per night will be 10 to 20 cents. On this basis it is expected to make the branch self supporting when the building is provided for. The other feature will be the bar—yes, bar. It will be in a prominent room on the first floor and open to everybody—enlisted men and the public. It will look like a bar, and people will treat it as a bar. But it will have for sale nothing intoxicating.

This naval branch will have a library and reading room and small rooms for Bible classes, and also for educational classes. There are 12,000 men in the American navy, and with the completion of the new warships there will be perhaps half as many more. This Brooklyn building and also the Boston, San Francisco and other buildings are to be Young Men's Christian associations for sailors. But they will treat sailors as men, as all associations are coming to do more and more as the true spirit of religious effort comes to be better understood, not making the religious part too conspicuous, and yet never permitting it to be forgotten that the institution is a Christian one.

One of the results of the war with Spain is a movement to inaugurate systematic Christian effort for all enlisted men. The Young Men's Christian association sent Secretary William B. Millar to England, Scotland and France immediately after the protocol was signed and the work in New York slackened. Mr. Millar visited all of the institutions for enlisted men in the countries named and has recently returned home. His ideas the committee now propose to put into effect for the benefit of American enlisted men.

Contemplated work in the American army by the Young Men's Christian association includes an extension of that heretofore done. Twelve men are with the forces in Cuba, several are at Manila and three are in Porto Rico. Special attention is to be given to the work at camps that may be established, and in the permanent posts at Chicago, Fort Snelling, Fort Porter, Fort Warren, Fort Myer and Fort Hamilton.

The work of the naval branch involves the organization of associations on each man-of-war. This has been done to some extent and with success. # ASSAULTED BY A MAN

After Being Induced to Go to the Lower Reservoir.

A MOST PECULIAR INCIDENT

The Stranger Asked the Lad to Deliver a Note, and Accompanying Him to a Point on the Hill Choked Him Into Unconsciousness.

One of the most fiendish and peculiar crimes ever reported to the police was committed in the city Saturday afternoon.

Early Saturday afternoon as the nine year old son of a prominent resident of the city, who had been taking a drawing lesson, was returning home along Fifth street he was accosted by a strange man who said: "Sonny you have got gum boots on and are just the boy I want to deliver a note for me up at Huston's." The boy replied that he didn't know where Huston's residence was, but the man offered him 25 cents and said he would show him the house, as he was going up there. The boy asked him why he didn't deliver the note himself, and the man answered that there was a ditch to cross and he didn't want to get his feet wet.

The man then started with the boy and walked up Kossuth street to College, thence along College street to Robinson street, then went up to Thompson avenue and then cut across the fields until they reached the reservoir. They went along the fence until they had reached the corner, and then went along the southside of the fence until they had almost reached the other end and the boy said: "I wonder if the water works gate is open." The man then choked him until he was unconscious and left him lying in the snow, and again made his way to the city.

The boy when he regained consciousness made his way home and told the story to his parents who at first thought it was a boy's story, but the ice and snow was frozen hard on his coat indicating that he was in the snow for some time, while on his throat were the imprint of a thumb and four fingers.

The father of the boy yesterday afternoon started out to see if he could follow the tracks of the boy and man, and with a friend went to Thompson hill where they had no trouble in finding the tracks in the field. The boy had walked in a straight line, while his companion, who wore a pointed shoe, had followed a zig-zag course. At the corner of the reservoir the evidence that a struggle had taken place was very apparent, and the place where the boy lay was clearly outlined in the snow.

The boy is far-sighted, and stated that when he came too and started down the hill he saw the man running across the bridge. He describes his assailant as being of medium height with reddish brown hair and brown eyes and his face was covered with pimples. He was well dressed, and had a white flower in his button hole, and wore a brown overcoat and a brown stiff hat and a pair of dark tan shoes.

There seems to be little doubt that the man intended to choke the boy until he was unconscious and then throw him into the reservoir, but was foiled in his attempt as the gate of the reservoir was locked. What the fellow meant by his fiendish actions is a mystery.

The affair was reported to the police, and they will make every effort to capture the man.

DISCREET M'KEEVER

He Jumped From the Sleigh and Allowed the Horse to Go.

Last night William McKeever went sleighriding, but did not have the usual good time.

He had gone but a short distance when the animal began to kick. McKeever got out of the sleigh. The horse ran down Franklin street and cut across into Seventh street and struck a fence. It then turned and ran down the pavement and struck a telephone pole where it left the sleigh and ran to the livery stable.

Physicians Are Improving.

Dr. W. N. Bailey, of East Market street, who has been suffering with the fever for sometime, is rapidly improving. He will be able to be out within a short time.

The Spanish Oath.

In Austria a Christian witness is sworn before a crucifix between two lighted candles, and, holding up his right hand, says, "I swear by God, the Almighty and All Wise, that I will speak the pure and full truth, and nothing but the truth, in answer to anything I may be asked by the court."

Jewish witnesses, while using the same words, add to their solemnity by placing their hands on the page of a Bible on which is printed the third commandment.

A Belgian witness swears to be veracious in these words, "I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help me God and all the saints."

The Spanish oath is more elaborate. The witness, kneeling on his right knee, places his hand on the sacred book, and, being asked by the judge, "Will you swear to God and by those holy gospels to speak the truth to all you may be asked?" answers, "Yes, I swear." Thereupon the judge says, "Then, if thus you do God will reward you, and if not you will require of you." In some parts of the country the ceremony is different. The witness forms a cross by placing the middle of his thumb on the middle of his forefinger, and, kissing his thumb—a practice which would probably be very familiar to some English witnesses—exclaims, "By this cross I swear!"—Law Notes.

The Ruling Passion.

A celebrated musical critic was recently married in church, and after the ceremony, as the wedding procession marched down the aisle, the organist played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." When near the door, the bridegroom stopped in the march and addressed the wondering assembly thus:

"I know I am committing a breach of etiquette as well as propriety in doing this, but I am not to blame. It is my mental organization which has become ineffably sensitive by reason of the critical nature of my duties."

Then he drew from the pocket of his dress coat a well thumbed copy of the score of "Lohengrin." Opening it at the march, he went over to the organist and said:

"What offended my ear was the fact that in the seventeenth bar of the da capo passage you flatted very badly, and in the andante movement you slurred the appoggiatura. Now," putting his finger upon the passage, "let us try that again."

Once more the organ pealed forth, and this time the player, conscious that the great critic was listening to him, accomplished his duty with credit to himself and to the great satisfaction of the critic.—Pick Me Up.

Making It Effective.

"I'll give you 30 days in the work-house," said the judge. "I ought to give you six months."

"Thanks for the clemency," said the culprit.

"No clemency at all, I assure you. I am afraid if you staid that long you might get used to it and not mind it."

HOBSON'S NEW RECORD

Kisses One Hundred and Sixty-three Women In Chicago.

JUST HOW THE LIEUTENANT DID IT

Some Women Who Wanted to Shake Hands Changed Their Minds and Kissed. Men Cheering—Eccentricity of the Headgear of the Fair Sex Caused Recourse to Strategy—He Finished in Good Form.

Say that I am old and sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me.
Say I'm poor, but also add—
Hobson kissed me!

—Ballad of an Ancient Dame, A. D. 1950.

Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson, promoter of the gentle art of kissing, was kissed just 163 times the other night on the stage of the Auditorium in Chicago. A cold blooded man kept tab and volunteered the further information that several women scored twice. This lip exercise occupied three-quarters of an hour and was witnessed by 4,000 persons. Lieutenant Hobson finished in good form, though the same cannot be said for several of the women.

The kissing climax came at the end of Lieutenant Hobson's desultory talk on naval affairs off Santiago during the recent war. He talked under the auspices of the naval reserve and the Press club. At the conclusion an invitation was extended to all who wished to meet the hero to walk in line upon the stage. Almost the whole audience formed in line.

The first woman to place her lips beneath the mustache was Mrs. Thomas Dewerson Knight, the second her sister. They are daughters of ex-Governor Towle of North Carolina. Hobson looked down the long line and saw it thick with women. He braced himself into an easy position, where his equilibrium was safe in case of an unexpected or forcible attack from heavy craft, and dealt out his good things in a quick, business like manner.

The lieutenant was quiet and gentlemanly in action. The women extended their right hands, which he grasped with the right hand that sent the Merrimac to the bottom. Back would go a woman's head, her eyes would look into his and then he would bend over and plant a smack directly on her lips. Then a goody shake of the little hand and the little woman passed along murmuring, "Oh, isn't he lovely!"

The eccentricity of headgear interfered somewhat with the success of the business. The lieutenant was occasionally compelled to dive low and bob up beneath the widespreading hats. Again, the agitation of the women precluded the possibility of exercising the tactical knowledge he possesses. They waited not, but rushed in, striking him on the nose, between the eyes and in the mouth with the protruding front of their elaborate millinery creations. Once or twice he was noticed to halt an enthusiastic worshiper, gently tilt her hat backward, kiss her, place the hat back in place and send her on her way rejoicing.

Lieutenant Hobson appears to be thoroughly drilled in his part. He loses no time. There are no lingering osculations—just plain, brotherly kisses. He knows his duty, and he does it like a man. He cuts off mushy conversation by speeding the parting and welcoming the coming. He does not say "Next," but means it.

Occasionally women shook hands with him who had determined not to kiss him, but temptation overcame them, and at the last moment they furnished amusement by relenting, turning back and taking what was theirs without the asking. The general salutation was: "Lieutenant, I have read so much about you. Oh, I'm happy to meet you!" and the naval hero was ready for the next. Meanwhile the crowd of men shouted cheers of encouragement—"Don't weaken, lieutenant!" "Kiss them to a standstill!" and other like remarks, punctuated with yells and shrill whistling.

Lieutenant Hobson in his talk did not dwell at any length on his own exploit in sinking the Merrimac. He told how well the Spanish treated him, how he was released and how he hoped the war would result in a great and powerful navy for the United States. He complimented the Spanish on their bravery and Illinois upon the record of her sons on land and sea. His voice was not quite strong enough to be heard with advantage in the big Auditorium, but he acquitted himself with much credit.

ASSAULTED BY A MAN

After Being Induced to Go to the Lower Reservoir.

A MOST PECULIAR INCIDENT

The Stranger Asked the Lad to Deliver a Note, and Accompanying Him to a Point on the Hill Choked Him Into Unconsciousness.

One of the most fiendish and peculiar crimes ever reported to the police was committed in the city Saturday afternoon.

Early Saturday afternoon as the nine year old son of a prominent resident of the city, who had been taking a drawing lesson, was returning home along Fifth street he was accosted by a strange man who said: "Sonny you have got gum boots on and are just the boy I want to deliver a note for me up at Huston's." The boy replied that he didn't know where Huston's residence was, but the man offered him 25 cents and said he would show him the house, as he was going up there. The boy asked him why he didn't deliver the note himself, and the man answered that there was a ditch to cross and he didn't want to get his feet wet.

The man then started with the boy and walked up Kossuth street to College, thence along College street to Robinson street, then went up to Thompson avenue and then cut across the fields until they reached the reservoir. They went along the fence until they had reached the corner, and then went along the southside of the fence until they had almost reached the other end and the boy said: "I wonder if the water works gate is open." The man then choked him until he was unconscious and left him lying in the snow, and again made his way to the city.

The boy when he regained consciousness made his way home and told the story to his parents who at first thought it was a boy's story, but the ice and snow was frozen hard on his coat indicating that he was in the snow for some time, while on his throat were the imprint of a thumb and four fingers.

The father of the boy yesterday afternoon started out to see if he could follow the tracks of the boy and man, and with a friend went to Thompson hill where they had no trouble in finding the tracks in the field. The boy had walked in a straight line, while his companion, who wore a pointed shoe, had followed a zig-zag course. At the corner of the reservoir the evidence that a struggle had taken place was very apparent, and the place where the boy lay was clearly outlined in the snow.

The boy is far-sighted, and stated that when he came too and started down the hill he saw the man running across the bridge. He describes his assailant as being of medium height with reddish brown hair and brown eyes and his face was covered with pimples. He was well dressed, and had a white flower in his button hole, and wore a brown overcoat and a brown stiff hat and a pair of dark tan shoes.

There seems to be little doubt that the man intended to choke the boy until he was unconscious and then throw him into the reservoir, but was foiled in his attempt as the gate of the reservoir was locked. What the fellow meant by his fiendish actions is a mystery.

The affair was reported to the police, and they will make every effort to capture the man.

DISCREET M'KEEVER

He Jumped From the Sleigh and Allowed the Horse to Go.

Last night William McKeever went sleighriding, but did not have the usual good time.

He had gone but a short distance when the animal began to kick. McKeever got out of the sleigh. The horse ran down Franklin street and cut across into Seventh street and struck a fence. It then turned and ran down the pavement and struck a telephone pole where it left the sleigh and ran to the livery stable.

Physicians Are Improving.

Dr. W. N. Bailey, of East Market street, who has been suffering with the fever for sometime, is rapidly improving. He will be able to be out within a short time.

Dr. C. B. Ogden, who has been suffering with the grip, continues to improve.

Coal Office Removed.

I will remove my office from Broadway to Walnut street, north of Horn switch. Will be ready to transact business on Dec. 27. We kindly solicit your patronage. See us in our new quarters. W. H. FRAZIER.

The Spanish Oath.

In Austria a Christian witness is sworn before a crucifix between two lighted candles, and, holding up his right hand, says, "I swear by God, the Almighty and All Wise, that I will speak the pure and full truth, and nothing but the truth, in answer to anything I may be asked by the court."

Jewish witnesses, while using the same words, add to their solemnity by placing their hands on the page of a Bible on which is printed the third commandment.

A Belgian witness swears to be veracious in these words, "I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help me God and all the saints."

The Spanish oath is more elaborate. The witness, kneeling on his right knee, places his hand on the sacred book, and, being asked by the judge, "Will you swear to God and by those holy gospels to speak the truth to all you may be asked?" answers, "Yes, I swear." Thereupon the judge says, "Then, if thus you do God will reward you, and if not will require of you." In some parts of the country the ceremony is different. The witness forms a cross by placing the middle of his thumb on the middle of his forefinger, and, kissing his thumb—a practice which would probably be very familiar to some English witnesses—exclaims, "By this cross I swear!"—Law Notes.

The Ruling Passion.

A celebrated musical critic was recently married in church, and after the ceremony, as the wedding procession marched down the aisle, the organist played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." When near the door, the bridegroom stopped in the march and addressed the wondering assembly thus:

"I know I am committing a breach of etiquette as well as propriety in doing this, but I am not to blame. It is my mental organization which has become ineffably sensitive by reason of the critical nature of my duties."

Then he drew from the pocket of his dress coat a well thumbed copy of the score of "Lohengrin." Opening it at the march, he went over to the organist and said:

"What offended my ear was the fact that in the seventeenth bar of the da capo passage you flatted very badly, and in the andante movement you slurred the appoggiatura. Now," putting his finger upon the passage, "let us try that again."

Once more the organ pealed forth, and this time the player, conscious that the great critic was listening to him, accomplished his duty with credit to himself and to the great satisfaction of the critic.—Pick Me Up.

Making It Effective.

"Thanks for the clemency," said the culprit.

"No clemency at all, I assure you. I am afraid if you staid that long you might get used to it and not mind it."—Indianapolis Journal.

They went along the fence until they had reached the corner, and then went along the southside of the fence until they had almost reached the other end and the boy said: "I wonder if the water works gate is open." The man then choked him until he was unconscious and left him lying in the snow, and again made his way to the city.

The boy when he regained consciousness made his way home and told the story to his parents who at first thought it was a boy's story, but the ice and snow was frozen hard on his coat indicating that he was in the snow for some time, while on his throat were the imprint of a thumb and four fingers.

The father of the boy yesterday afternoon started out to see if he could follow the tracks of the boy and man, and with a friend went to Thompson hill where they had no trouble in finding the tracks in the field. The boy had walked in a straight line, while his companion, who wore a pointed shoe, had followed a zig-zag course. At the corner of the reservoir the evidence that a struggle had taken place was very apparent, and the place where the boy lay was clearly outlined in the snow.

The boy is far-sighted, and stated that when he came too and started down the hill he saw the man running across the bridge. He describes his assailant as being of medium height with reddish brown hair and brown eyes and his face was covered with pimples. He was well dressed, and had a white flower in his button hole, and wore a brown overcoat and a brown stiff hat and a pair of dark tan shoes.

There seems to be little doubt that the man intended to choke the boy until he was unconscious and then throw him into the reservoir, but was foiled in his attempt as the gate of the reservoir was locked. What the fellow meant by his fiendish actions is a mystery.

The affair was reported to the police, and they will make every effort to capture the man.

DISCREET M'KEEVER

He Jumped From the Sleigh and Allowed the Horse to Go.

Last night William McKeever went sleighriding, but did not have the usual good time.

He had gone but a short distance when the animal began to kick. McKeever got out of the sleigh. The horse ran down Franklin street and out across into Seventh street and struck a fence. It then turned and ran down the pavement and struck a telephone pole where it left the sleigh and ran to the livery stable.

I will remove my office from Broadway to Walnut street, north of Horn switch. Will be ready to transact business on Dec. 27. We kindly solicit your patronage. See us in our new quarters.

The Spanish Oath.

In Austria a Christian witness is sworn before a crucifix between two lighted candles, and, holding up his right hand, says, "I swear by God, the Almighty and All Wise, that I will speak the pure and full truth, and nothing but the truth, in answer to anything I may be asked by the court."

Jewish witnesses, while using the same words, add to their solemnity by placing their hands on the page of a Bible on which is printed the third commandment.

A Belgian witness swears to be veracious in these words, "I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help me God and all the saints."

The Spanish oath is more elaborate. The witness, kneeling on his right knee, places his hand on the sacred book, and, being asked by the judge, "Will you swear to God and by those holy gospels to speak the truth to all you may be asked?" answers, "Yes, I swear." Thereupon the judge says, "Then, if thus you do God will reward you, and if not will require of you." In some parts of the country the ceremony is different. The witness forms a cross by placing the middle of his thumb on the middle of his forefinger, and, kissing his thumb—a practice which would probably be very familiar to some English witnesses—exclaims, "By this cross I swear!"—Law Notes.

The Ruling Passion.

A celebrated musical critic was recently married in church, and after the ceremony, as the wedding procession marched down the aisle, the organist played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." When near the door, the bridegroom stopped in the march and addressed the wondering assembly thus: "I know I am committing a breach of etiquette as well as propriety in doing this, but I am not to blame. It is my mental organization which has become ineffably sensitive by reason of the critical nature of my duties."

Then he drew from the pocket of his dress coat a well thumbed copy of the score of "Lohengrin." Opening it at the march, he went over to the organist and said:

"What offended my ear was the fact that in the seventeenth bar of the da capo passage you flatted very badly, and in the andante movement you slurred the appoggiatura. Now," putting his finger upon the passage, "let us try that again."

Once more the organ pealed forth, and this time the player, conscious that the great critic was listening to him, accomplished his duty with credit to himself and to the great satisfaction of the critic.—Pick Me Up.

Making It Effective.

"I'll give you 30 days in the workhouse," said the judge. "I ought to give you six months."

"Thanks for the clemency," said the culprit.

"No clemency at all, I assure you. I am afraid if you state that long you might get used to it and not mind it."—Indianapolis Journal.

LIKELY YALE'S NEXT PRESIDENT.

Rev. Dr. Edward B. Coe of New York the Choice of Mr. Dwight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Yale's president is to be the Rev. Dr. Edward Benton Coe, if he may be persuaded that it is his duty to become president of Yale.

President Dwight wishes to have him as a successor, the clergy admire him, the laity know that he is excellent. But he said:

"I have not heard from the university that this great honor is to be offered to me. I cannot imagine what gave a reason for saying that it was to be presented to me. If it were offered to me would I accept it? I cannot tell. I do not know. I do not wish to be troubled in advance by an event that may, after all, not happen."

Rev. Edward Benton Coe is the senior minister of the Collegiate church, and in the 20 years of his service in the church at Fifth avenue and West Forty-eighth street he had only ardent adherents.

FOUR KILLED IN A WRECK.

Others Injured on a Branch of the Knoxville Division, Southern Railway.

KNOXVILLE, Jan. 9.—Four dead, two injured, one of these perhaps fatally, and the loss of property of the Southern railway to the amount of about $25,000, is the result of a wreck which occurred on the Knoxville and Ohio branch of the Knoxville division of the Southern railway west of Elk Valley. The dead were:

Engineer J. D. Maxey.
Fireman Frank Reddy, colored.
Brakeman Ironza Hoover, colored.
Flagman W. A. Dillon.

TREATY MAY BE REPORTED.

Expected on Wednesday—Debate May Be Postponed Until Next Week.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—It is the expectation that the peace treaty will be reported on Wednesday to the senate and also that some of the appropriation bills will be brought in toward the close of the week. Immediate consideration will be asked for the appropriation bills, but it is possible that the beginning of the debate upon the treaty may be postponed until next week.

There is an effort on foot among the opponents of the treaty to have it discussed in open session, but the indications are against such a course.

Colonel Richard C. Parsons Dead.

CLEVELAND, Jan. 9.—Colonel Richard C. Parsons, who had been a distinguished citizen of Cleveland, died, aged 72 years. As a young man he was a member of the Ohio house of representatives and speaker of that body. Later he was appointed by President Lincoln consul to Rio Janeiro. Subsequently he was marshal of the United States supreme court. He served one term in congress and was instrumental in inaugurating the harbor improvements at this port. For a time he was editor of The Cleveland Herald. At the time of his death Colonel Parsons was referee in bankruptcy.

Piedmont Pleads In Vain.

CUMBERLAND, Md., Jan. 9.—A delegation of citizens from Piedmont have returned from Baltimore, where they went to ask John K. Cowan to use his influence to prevent the removal of the pulp mill. Mr. Cowan is said to have expressed his regrets at the loss which would be sustained, but said he was powerless to prevent it. A report from Bayard, W. Va., is to the effect that an indignation meeting will be held there against this city for what is alleged to be unjust prosecution of the pulp mill.

Steamer Wooler a Wreck.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—The British steamer Loch Etive, bound from Newcastle-on-Tyne to Alexandria, Egypt, passed Penich, on the south side of the peninsula of that name, and signaled that she has rescued four members of the crew of the British steamer Wooler, from Barry on Dec. 30 for Las Palmas, Canary islands, which vessel sank. The remainder of the crew of the Wooler were missing.

An Auriferous Bear.

Something over a bucketful of nuggets and coarse dust was found in the gizzard of a bear lately received from the Skaguay trail, Alaska. As bears do not pick up gravel like the chickens to aid their digestion nor swallow stones like some marine animals to hold them down it is naturally concluded that the bear had eaten a returning Klondiker and his treasure.—Portland, Oregonian

HOBSON'S NEW RECORD

JUST HOW THE LIEUTENANT DID IT

Some Women Who Wanted to Shake Hands Changed Their Minds and Kissed. Men Cheering—Eccentricity of the Headgear of the Fair Sex Caused Recourse to Strategy—He Finished in Good Form.

Say that I am old and sad,
Say that health and wealth have missed me,
Say I'm poor, but also add—

—Ballad of an Ancient Dame, A. D. 1900.

Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson, promoter of the gentle art of kissing, was kissed just 163 times the other night on the stage of the Auditorium in Chicago. A cold blooded man kept tab and volunteered the further information that several women scored twice. This lip exercise occupied three-quarters of an hour and was witnessed by 4,000 persons. Lieutenant Hobson finished in good form, though the same cannot be said for several of the women.

The kissing climax came at the end of Lieutenant Hobson's desultory talk on naval affairs off Santiago during the recent war. He talked under the auspices of the naval reserve and the Press club. At the conclusion an invitation was extended to all who wished to meet the hero to walk in line upon the stage. Almost the whole audience formed in line.

The first woman to place her lips beneath the mustache was Mrs. Thomas Dewerson Knight, the second her sister. They are daughters of ex-Governor Towle of North Carolina. Hobson looked down the long line and saw it thick with women. He braced himself into an easy position, where his equilibrium was safe in case of an unexpected or forcible attack from heavy craft, and dealt out his good things in a quick, business like manner.

The lieutenant was quiet and gentlemanly in action. The women extended their right hands, which he grasped with the right hand that sent the Merrimac to the bottom. Back would go a woman's head, her eyes would look into his and then he would bend over and plant a smack directly on her lips. Then a goodly shake of the little hand and the little woman passed along murmuring, "Oh, isn't he lovely!"

The eccentricity of headgear interfered somewhat with the success of the business. The lieutenant was occasionally compelled to dive low and bob up beneath the widespread hats. Again, the agitation of the women precluded the possibility of exercising the tactical knowledge he possesses. They waited not, but rushed in, striking him on the nose, between the eyes and in the mouth with the protruding front of their elaborate millinery creations. Once or twice he was noticed to halt an enthusiastic worshiper, gently tilt her hat backward, kiss her, place the hat back in place and send her on her way rejoicing.

Lieutenant Hobson appears to be thoroughly drilled in his part. He loses no time. There are no lingering osculations—just plain, brotherly kisses. He knows his duty, and he does it like a man. He cuts off mushy conversation by speeding the parting and welcoming the coming. He does not say "Next," but means it.

Occasionally women shook hands with him who had determined not to kiss him, but temptation overcame them, and at the last moment they furnished amusement by relenting, turning back and taking what was theirs without the asking. The general salutation was: "Lieutenant, I have read so much about you. Oh, I'm happy to meet you!" and the naval hero was ready for the next. Meanwhile the crowd of men shouted cheers of encouragement—"Don't weaken, lieutenant!" "Kiss them to a standstill!" and other like remarks, punctuated with yells and shrill whistling.

Lieutenant Hobson in his talk did not dwell at any length on his own exploit in sinking the Merrimac. He told how well the Spanish treated him, how he was released and how he hoped the war would result in a great and powerful navy for the United States. He complimented the Spanish on their bravery and Illinois upon the record of her sons on land and sea. His voice was not quite strong enough to be heard with advantage in the big Auditorium, but he acquitted himself with much credit. —Special New York World.

UNION PAPERS.

All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns

THE Democrats, who have been hoping Admiral Dewey could be induced to carry their flag during the next campaign, are disconsolate. The admiral's relatives say he has not voted for almost half a century, but he is a Republican.

FAST driving is a nuisance at any time, but it is much more to be condemned in winter. No one would complain if Liverpool was provided with a speedway, but when its level streets are not long the police should see that pedestrians are not imposed upon.

THE whole country hears with regret of the illness of Mr. Dingley. He has for years been a prominent figure in congress and his work for the Republican party has been conscientiously carried out. His retirement at this time would be unfortunate, since he is a strong man, a leader with influence.

THERE is no reason to believe that Uncle Sam will not quickly whip the Philippine insurgents into submission if he decides that peace can be secured in no other way. Spain had Aguinaldo soundly thrashed before Admiral Dewey sailed into Manila bay, and what Spain has done in the way of fighting, this country can do with little difficulty.

GAMBLING.

Mayor Bough deserves warm commendation for his battle against gamblers and gambling in East Liverpool. The curse of gaming is a fearful one when it takes possession of the heart and life of a human being, and is second only in its debasing power and evil influence to the curse of the rum or alcohol habit. They are twin devils, magic powers in the hands of Satan, and annually carry thousands down to disaster, death and hell. Old men, middle aged men and young men of East Liverpool are victims to the gaming habit, and it is high time that our law abiding citizens should awaken to a knowledge of the fact. More than one business man of this city is in the toils and embrace of this monster of chance. Many young men in our midst are taking lessons out of this devil's book, and the lessons thus taught surely unfit them for legitimate business and render them dangerous as employees for positions of trust and honor. Prominent merchants, all over the land, have had this fact demonstrated to their sorrow and financial loss, and local business men will do well to see that they have no gamblers in their employ. As for the professional gamblers and proprietors of gambling halls, they are simply law breakers, outlaws and criminals, unfit to associate with and to be avoided by every honest man or woman. The gambling halls must cease their nefarious work in this city. Every honest, right-minded and good citizen will commend and sustain our chief magistrate in his war against the gambling dens. Finally, there is gaming and gaming. Turn on the light.

Again Shows Great Courage. Dewey's desire to return to the United States shows that either he has not been kept informed as to the Hobsonizing process or that he is even a braver man than has been supposed.—Chicago Record.

ASKED TO BE LOCKED UP

They Were Accommodated and Evidence Developed.

BREWERY HAD BEEN ROBBED

So They Were Held on Suspicion—Two Boys, Arrested For Stealing Umbrellas, Were Fined—The Amount Was Paid and They Were Released.

John Purpuri and Edward Hoover went in Mayor Bough's office Saturday afternoon and said to that official they desired to be locked up just for fun. The mayor was busy at the time and when they told him they lived in the city they were told to go home. They were very drunk, and in their top pockets were several dried herrings. Chief Johnson saw the men as they were going out, and upon hearing their desire accommodated them and put them behind the bars. The men were on their way to East Palestine, where they said they worked.

A hurried conference between the mayor and Chief Johnson then took place. The latter went to the Purpuri home in the Jolly property back of the Thomas knob factory, and in a coal house found a small keg said to contain porter, and taken from the Greenwood brewery, and a dishpan filled with string sausage, the property of William Clay, a butcher in West Market street. The articles were taken to city hall where they are being kept. These goods were stolen Friday night, and a suspicion rests upon those now in custody.

Those who robbed the brewery gained an entrance by breaking a window. The sausage was taken from a stand in front of Clay's store. The men have no charge against them as yet, but will probably have one this evening, although the men do not know why they are being held.

Frank Langley, aged 15 years, and Thomas McGuire, aged 11 years, were arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer McMillan. They were taken to jail and put in cell No. 2, where they remained until this morning when they were released after their parents arranged the payment of fines and costs amounting to $19.40 in each case. The boys were passing the store of A. S. Young Saturday and took two umbrellas from a lot standing in front of the store. A charge of larceny was placed against them by Mr. Young, who had the stolen property returned to him.

Sidney Burrows and Thomas Boyd were enjoying themselves near the Golding flint mill office yesterday afternoon by yelling like Indians. Officer Mahony gathered them in, and this morning the mayor asked each for $9.60. They could not pay and are still in jail. Boyd would not have been arrested had he left city hall when Chief Johnson wanted him, but instead he started to argue the case, which caused his arrest.

Yesterday Chief Johnson had a sign pasted on the jail door which read: "Officers will not allow any one to see prisoners today." It had reference to the people who were arrested Saturday.

No complaints were made about the fast driving yesterday and no arrests have been made as a result of any complaints.

The officers are now working on several cases which will make interesting reading when published. They will not talk about them at present.

a note secured by mortgage on 151 acres in Center township.

W. G. Steele, as assignee of William Steele, has instituted proceedings against William Steele, the parish of Trinity church, Lisbon, to quiet and perfect title to lot 161 in Lisbon.

Court convened at 10:30 this morning. A motion for a new trial in the case of Wing & Evans against Specialty Glass company was allowed.

In the Pryor murder case an application will be made this afternoon for leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty and to plead to the indictment. It is understood a motion will be made to quash the indictment on the ground that the grand jury was not properly drawn.

A marriage license was issued to David Weaver and Henrietta Akelson.

TWO JURIES.

They Were Drawn From the Wheel This Morning.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—[Special]—The grand and petit juries for the next term of court were drawn this morning. They are as follows:

DIED SUDDENLY

C. B. Simms Passed Away Saturday Night, Aged 53 Years.

Claybourne B. Simms died Saturday night at his home in Lincoln avenue from heart trouble, aged 53 years.

Deceased had been a resident of the city for many years and was very well and favorably known. Two sons, Richard and Charles, are left to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of his brother, B. C. Simms, Reverend Crawford officiating. Interment will be private. The friends of the deceased may view his remains at the residence of his brother between the hours of 7 and 9 this evening, and 9 and 11 tomorrow morning.

On San Juan Hill.

All is now still on San Juan hill,
And over El Caney's ground
Soft shadows float and the wood dove's note
Is the only living sound.
The palm trees stand in a dreamlike land,
And the hot winds faint and die
On the tasseled mass of the guinea grass
And the coffee bushes dry.

The tufted mirth of the patient earth
And the mystery of the trees
Are ever the same, and the war's red flame
Disturbs not the dream of these.
The trenches, ablaze through the dreadful days,
Lie bleached in the tropic sun,
And the smell of death with the stifling breath
Of the battle is passed and done.

But memory stands with outstretched hands
Alone on that alien shore.
Where the graves are made, her feet are staid—
Staid never to wander more.
Forever she stands with outstretched hands,
Her white brow bound with yew,
And over the walls of the hills she calls
And over the sea's wide blue.

Her cry is the cry of the bended sky
And the cry of the voiceless clay,
And the soundless deeps where nature keeps
The mystery of her sway.
Not a breeze but brings on its rushing wings
Her message again and again—
"They carried the height in as brave a fight
As was ever fought by men."
—Robert Burns Wilson in New York Sun.

A Bachelor's Honeymoon.

Manager Norris was exceedingly lucky in booking "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" which had such a phenomenal run at Hoyt's theatre and it will be presented at the Grand tonight. The play is on the order of "Other People's Money" and every member of the cast is an artist. It should be greeted by a packed house.

—Mrs. Mollie Layton, of Peake street, who spent the holidays in Banksville with friends, returned to the city Saturday evening.

—Miss Belle Whit left this morning for Wheeling where she will spend some days with relatives. Miss Lindsay, of that place, who has been visiting in the city returned with Miss Whit.

Hobson Waltz Now.

It is now the Hobson waltz. The Atlanta girls were the ones to start the Hobson waltz, and they came very near waltzing the nation's hero to a frazzle. It was at the Capital City club, and Hobson was the lion of the occasion. Like all army and navy men, he is a perfect waltzer. When the dancing began and Hobson asked one of the girls to dance, he came very near sealing his doom. The word went round that So-and-so had danced with Hobson. Before he had had a breathing spell he was whirling around with another fair young woman. Panting for breath, he continued to dance until almost exhausted.—Special New York World.

Holds the Record as a Mail Handler.

W. H. Patton of Chattanooga, a postal route agent on the Chattanooga and Rome division of the Southern railroad, broke the record recently in an examination. He handled 10,815 cards, distributing them to postoffices in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Mississippi, in five hours and 27 minutes, with only 19 errors. His percentage was 99.89 out of a possible 100. Chief Clerk Welch says this beats the world's record, and is the best ever made in an examination either in the United States or England.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Blind Devotion.

The blind devotion with which an old servant did his duty was illustrated on one occasion when his master had a dinner party. During the dinner Henry was very nervous and made two or three blunders.

His master showed his annoyance and cast angry glances at his servant, but the poor man could not settle quietly to his work.

At last, when the dessert had been placed quietly on the table, he stole timidly behind his master's chair and said:

"Please, sir, can you spare me now? My house has been on fire for the last hour and a half!"—London Answers.

THE Democrats, who have been hoping Admiral Dewey could be induced to carry their flag during the next campaign, are disconsolate. The admiral's relatives say he has not voted for almost half a century, but he is a Republican.

FAST driving is a nuisance at any time, but it is much more to be condemned in winter. No one would complain if Liverpool was provided with a speedway, but when its level streets are not long the police should see that pedestrians are not imposed upon.

THE whole country hears with regret of the illness of Mr. Dingley. He has for years been a prominent figure in congress and his work for the Republican party has been conscientiously carried out. His retirement at this time would be unfortunate, since he is a strong man, a leader with influence.

THERE is no reason to believe that Uncle Sam will not quickly whip the Philippine insurgents into submission if he decides that peace can be secured in no other way. Spain had Aguineldo soundly thrashed before Admiral Dewey sailed into Manila bay, and what Spain has done in the way of fighting, this country can do with little difficulty.

GAMBLING.

Mayor Bough deserves warm commendation for his battle against gamblers and gambling in East Liverpool. The curse of gaming is a fearful one when it takes possession of the heart and life of a human being, and is second only in its debasing power and evil influence to the curse of the rum or alcohol habit. They are twin devils, magic powers in the hands of Satan, and annually carry thousands down to disaster, death and hell. Old men, middle aged men and young men of East Liverpool are victims to the gaming habit, and it is high time that our law abiding citizens should awaken to a knowledge of the fact. More than one business man of this city is in the toils and embrace of this monster of chance. Many young men in our midst are taking lessons out of this devil's book, and the lessons thus taught surely unfit them for legitimate business and render them dangerous as employes for positions of trust and honor. Prominent merchants, all over the land, have had this fact demonstrated to their sorrow and financial loss, and local business men will do well to see that they have no gamblers in their employ. As for the professional gamblers and proprietors of gambling halls, they are simply law breakers, outlaws and criminals, unfit to associate with and to be avoided by every honest man or woman. The gambling halls must cease their nefarious work in this city. Every honest, right-minded and good citizen will commend and sustain our chief magistrate in his war against the gambling dens. Finally, there is gaming and gaming. Turn on the light.

Again Shows Great Courage.

Dewey's desire to return to the United States shows that either he has not been kept informed as to the Hobsonizing process or that he is even a braver man than has been supposed.—Chicago Record.

ASKED TO BE LOCKED UP

They Were Accommodated and Evidence Developed.

BREWERY HAD BEEN ROBBED

So They Were Held on Suspicion—Two Boys, Arrested For Stealing Umbrellas, Were Fined—The Amount Was Paid and They Were Released.

John Purpuri and Edward Hoover went in Mayor Bough's office Saturday afternoon and said to that official they desired to be locked up just for fun. The mayor was busy at the time and when they told him they lived in the city they were told to go home. They were very drunk, and in their top pockets were several dried herrings. Chief Johnson saw the men as they were going out, and upon hearing their desire accommodated them and put them behind the bars. The men were on their way to East Palestine, where they said they worked.

A hurried conference between the mayor and Chief Johnson then took place. The latter went to the Purpuri home in the Jolly property back of the Thomas knob factory, and in a coal house found a small keg said to contain porter, and taken from the Greenwood brewery, and a dishpan filled with string sausage, the property of William Clay, a butcher in West Market street. The articles were taken to city hall where they are being kept. These goods were stolen Friday night, and a suspicion rests upon those now in custody.

Those who robbed the brewery gained an entrance by breaking a window. The sausage was taken from a stand in front of Clay's store. The men have no charge against them as yet, but will probably have one this evening, although the men do not know why they are being held.

Frank Langley, aged 15 years, and Thomas McGuire, aged 11 years, were arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer McMillan. They were taken to jail and put in cell No. 2, where they remained until this morning when they were released after their parents arranged the payment of fines and costs amounting to $19.40 in each case. The boys were passing the store of A. S. Young Saturday and took two umbrellas from a lot standing in front of the store. A charge of larceny was placed against them by Mr. Young, who had the stolen property returned to him.

Sidney Burrows and Thomas Boyd were enjoying themselves near the Golding flint mill office yesterday afternoon by yelling like Indians. Officer Mahony gathered them in, and this morning the mayor asked each for $9.60. They could not pay and are still in jail. Boyd could not have been arrested had he left city hall when Chief Johnson wanted him, but instead he started to argue the case, which caused his arrest.

Yesterday Chief Johnson had a sign pasted on the jail door which read: "Officers will not allow any one to see prisoners today." It had reference to the people who were arrested Saturday.

No complaints were made about the fast driving yesterday and no arrests have been made as a result of any complaints.

The officers are now working on several cases which will make interesting reading when published. They will not talk about them at present.

MOTION TO QUASH

Will Be Filed In the Pryor Case This Afternoon.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—[Special]—The will of James H. Ford, late of Liverpool, has been admitted to probate, and Louis Ford appointed executor. No bond required. The appraisers are J. J. Kerr, W. K. Gaston and J. F. McGarry.

W. B. Chamberlain, executor of the estate of Jacob Chamberlain, of Palestine, has given an additional bond of $2,400 to secure the proceeds arising from sale of real estate.

John McVicker has filed a petition against E. Arter asking $480.38, due on a note secured by mortgage on 151 acres in Center township.

W. G. Steele, as assignee of William Steele, has instituted proceedings against William Steele, the parish of Trinity church, Lisbon, to quiet and perfect title to lot 161 in Lisbon.

Court convened at 10:30 this morning. A motion for a new trial in the case of Wing & Evans against Specialty Glass company was allowed.

In the Pryor murder case an application will be made this afternoon for leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty and to plead to the indictment. It is understood a motion will be made to quash the indictment on the ground that the grand jury was not properly drawn.

A marriage license was issued to David Weaver and Henrietta Akelson.

TWO JURIES.

They Were Drawn From the Wheel This Morning.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—[Special]—The grand and petit juries for the next term of court were drawn this morning. They are as follows:

Grand jury—J. J. Smith, George Hamilton, E. O. Walter, Wm. Erlanger, Liverpool; David Burnside, J. C. Buswell, Washington; Frank Carnes, Wellsville; P. N. Barnhouse, Perry; Wm. Calvin, Samuel Huston, Middleton; Nelson Burrow, Robert Yates, Hanover; David Firestone, Fairfield; James Williamson, St. Clair; W. H. De Rodes, Elkrun.

Petit jury—Thomas Pickal, Charles Eaton, James McBane, Wm. Findley, Liverpool; Joshua Hoops, B. F. Windle, Butler; George Rogers, Wm. McLeran, Perry; Samuel Biggs, Wellsville; M. C. Allman, Washington; John Murray, Hanover; David Floor, Unity.

DIED SUDDENLY

C. B. Simms Passed Away Saturday Night, Aged 53 Years.

Claybourne B. Simms died Saturday night at his home in Lincoln avenue from heart trouble, aged 53 years.

Deceased had been a resident of the city for many years and was very well and favorably known. Two sons, Richard and Charles, are left to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of his brother, B. C. Simms, Reverend Crawford officiating. Interment will be private. The friends of the deceased may view his remains at the residence of his brother between the hours of 7 and 9 this evening, and 9 and 11 tomorrow morning.

On San Juan Hill.

All is now still on San Juan hill,
And over El Caney's ground
Soft shadows float and the wood dove's note
Is the only living sound.
The palm trees stand in a dreamlike land,
And the hot winds faint and die
On the tasseled mass of the guinea grass
And the coffee bushes dry.

The tufted mirth of the patient earth
And the mystery of the trees
Are ever the same, and the war's red flame
Disturbs not the dream of these.
The trenches, ablaze through the dreadful days,
Lie bleached in the tropic sun,
And the smell of death with the stifling breath
Of the battle is passed and done.

But memory stands with outstretched hands
Alone on that alien shore.
Where the graves are made, her feet are staid—
Staid never to wander more.
Forever she stands with outstretched hands,
Her white brow bound with yew,
And over the walls of the hills she calls
And over the sea's wide blue.

Her cry is the cry of the bended sky
And the cry of the voiceless clay,
And the soundless deeps where nature keeps
The mystery of her sway.
Not a breeze but brings on its rushing wings
Her message again and again—
"They carried the height in as brave a fight
As was ever fought by men."
—Robert Burns Wilson in New York Sun.

A Bachelor's Honeymoon.

Manager Norris was exceedingly lucky in booking "A Bachelor's Honeymoon" which had such a phenomenal run at Hoyt's theatre and it will be presented at the Grand tonight. The play is on the order of "Other People's Money" and every member of the cast is an artist. It should be greeted by a packed house.

PERSONAL MENTION.

—Miss Nina Lee left today for Shelbyville, Ky., where she will resume her studies at the seminary.

—Mrs. Mollie Layton, of Peake street, who spent the holidays in Banksville with friends, returned to the city Saturday evening.

—Miss Belle Whit left this morning for Wheeling where she will spend some days with relatives. Miss Lindsay, of that place, who has been visiting in the city returned with Miss Whit.

Hobson Waltz Now.

It is now the Hobson waltz. The Atlanta girls were the ones to start the Hobson waltz, and they came very near waltzing the nation's hero to a frazzle. It was at the Capital City club, and Hobson was the lion of the occasion. Like all army and navy men, he is a perfect waltzer. When the dancing began and Hobson asked one of the girls to dance, he came very near sealing his doom. The word went round that So-and-so had danced with Hobson. Before he had had a breathing spell he was whirling around with another fair young woman. Panting for breath, he continued to dance until almost exhausted.—Special New York World.

Holds the Record as a Mail Handler.

W. H. Patton of Chattanooga, a postal route agent on the Chattanooga and Rome division of the Southern railroad, broke the record recently in an examination. He handled 10,815 cards, distributing them to postoffices in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Mississippi, in five hours and 27 minutes, with only 19 errors. His percentage was 99.89 out of a possible 100. Chief Clerk Welch says this beats the world's record, and is the best ever made in an examination either in the United States or England.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Blind Devotion.

The blind devotion with which an old servant did his duty was illustrated on one occasion when his master had a dinner party. During the dinner Henry was very nervous and made two or three blunders.

His master showed his annoyance and cast angry glances at his servant, but the poor man could not settle quietly to his work.

At last, when the dessert had been placed quietly on the table, he stole timidly behind his master's chair and said:

"Please, sir, can you spare me now? My house has been on fire for the last hour and a half!"—London Answers.

It was at the Capital City club, and Hobson was the lion of the occasion.
Like all army and navy men, he is a perfect waltzer. When the dancing began and Hobson asked one of the girls to dance, he came very near sealing his doom. The word went round that So-and-so had danced with Hobson. Before he had had a breathing spell he was whirling around with another fair young woman. Panting for breath, he continued to dance until almost exhausted.—Special New York World.

Holds the Record as a Mail Handler.

W. H. Patton of Chattanooga, a postal route agent on the Chattanooga and Rome division of the Southern railroad, broke the record recently in an examination. He handled 10,815 cards, distributing them to postoffices in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky,
Virginia and Mississippi, in five hours and 27 minutes, with only 19 errors.
His percentage was 99.89 out of a possible 100. Chief Clerk Welch says this beats the world's record, and is the best ever made in an examination either in the United States or England.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Blind Devotion.

The blind devotion with which an old servant did his duty was illustrated on one occasion when his master had a dinner party. During the dinner Henry was very nervous and made two or three blunders.

His master showed his annoyance and cast angry glances at his servant, but the poor man could not settle quietly to his work.

At last, when the dessert had been placed quietly on the table, he stole timidly behind his master's chair and said:

"Please, sir, can you spare me now?
My house has been on fire for the last hour and a half!"—London Answers.

Getting Matters Adjusted.

a hat exactly like mine."

"Did you make a fuss about it?"
"No; I gave mine to the cook."—

NOTICE SENT TO ALL THE MEN

Asking Them to Call at the Office and Receive What Money Is Due Them—Motormen Attended Services Yesterday—Board of Arbitration Notified.

There is no change in the strike of street railway men other than that the state board of arbitration has taken the matter in hand and are making inquiries.

This morning Mayor Bough received a telegram from Joseph Bishop, secretary of the board, asking if there was a strike on the line here. The mayor answered, giving the facts, and it is probable the board will come here to investigate and do what it can to bring about a settlement. The board of arbitration is composed of President Selwyn N. Owen, Columbus; Secretary Joseph Bishop, Columbus; John Little, Xenia.

The only other matter of importance affects every motorman. Saturday night each one received a notice to call at the office and turn over what property of the company he had, receiving the money due him to the time of quitting. In speaking of the matter Mr. Healy said:

"The motormen left the service of the company voluntarily and they are no longer considered by us as employees. We owe them money for their services and they have property of the company in their possession. Our notice to them is a request that they call for the money due them and return the company's property."

"Before making any effort to operate our cars we wish to offer the positions available to residents of East Liverpool and Wellsville. If after a reasonable time we are not able to secure the services of local men we will be compelled to employ others."

The motormen attended services yesterday morning at the Second U. P. church. Rev. J. R. Green delivered an excellent sermon on "I have written what I have written." A meeting was held this morning, but the action taken was not made public.

Mr. Bishop Ill.

Mayor Bough this afternoon received a telegram from Secretary Bishop, of the state board, announcing that he was ill, but would be here as soon as he recovered.

IN THE CHURCHES.

Revival Services In Progress at First M. E. Church.

The services last evening were interesting and impressive, eight other persons professing conversion. The church was crowded, hundreds of persons being turned away.

No services were held at the First Presbyterian church yesterday because of the illness of Doctor Lee. It was the intention to have services during this week, but the illness of the pastor prevented it. Miss Bossard, a singer of merit from Delphos, came here to take part in the meetings. She sang beautifully for the Endeavorers last night.

Prof. O. S. Reed being out of the city no preaching services were held at the Christian church. Other services were held as usual.

Commencing tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock an afternoon service will be held in the First M. E. church, and in the evening the usual meetings will be held at the African M. E. church.

Large audiences attended services at the First U. P. church yesterday. Doctor Taggart occupied the pulpit and delivered strong sermons.

Reverend Weary at St. Stephen's church last night preached on "Sanctification" to an interested audience.

The largest congregation that has been in the Methodist Protestant church since the days of Evangelist Isaac Naylor, two years ago, was seen last evening. Rev. Swift preached an interesting and instructive sermon, using for his text Mark x:49. The speaker impressed upon his hearers that all were blind, and unless they arise and go as they are called, then life will be in total darkness.

"Mothers, ye who love your daughters with a love second only to that which the Savior has for sinners, will you give fitting expression to that love by permitting your daughters to keep company and associate with young men who are known to be visitors to the saloons and gambling hells of East Liverpool?"

"Voters of East Liverpool, fathers, brothers, husbands and sons; ministers of the gospel and laymen in the pews; good and law-abiding citizens; professed followers of the Lord and Savior, will you continue to cast your ballots for men who advocate, uphold and sustain the saloon and the gambling hell?"

The Smoky Chimney.

In the designing and construction of houses it has always been the especial fad of Mr. Willis Polk, architect, to build a roomy fireplace, where great logs can burn, and he has always plumed himself on the fact that the fireplaces never fail to draw.

When he erected his bachelor bungalow at Tiburon, the fireplace was the chief pride and glory of the establishment. He told his friends about the solid comfort he enjoyed sitting before the blazing logs, and to still further arouse their envy Polk one night gave a party.

To his infinite chagrin, the chimney smoked abominably and the bungalow was filled to stifling. After they had thoroughly grieved the disconsolate Willis the disgusted guests went home to cough it off.

Next day Polk made a careful examination of chimney and hearth, satisfied himself that everything was now as it should be and then gave another party. That abominable chimney again spoiled it all. It smoked and smoked. Willis was in despair, but the next day it was all right again. At intervals after that Polk entertained friends, and he found that the fireplace never drew when he had company, although at other times it worked perfectly. So he set a little trap, which finally solved the puzzle. It was a little cracker box, placed over the top of the chimney, which caused all the trouble.

Some of his friends had thus thoroughly covered up the chimney every time the young architect had planned an entertainment. —San Francisco News Letter.

Opium.

Like most of nature's products opium is classified in grades. The growers of India, in white turbans and gowns, sit in the blazing sun waiting for their opium to be sorted, when they go to market. The unripe poppy seed pod has been cut into five times and the milky sap dried in the sun and kneaded into cakes, the best of which are covered with dried leaves, and thus brought to market.

Opium of the first class must be tough, smooth and a rich brown shade, bitter to taste and strong of scent.

In 1892 54 per cent of the suicides in India were from the use of opium, and one statistician credits 90 per cent of the women suicides to the same drug. However, twelve-thirteenths of the opium of India is sent to China for smoking. During Victoria's reign the Chinese have paid into the British treasury for Indian opium $1,250,000,000.

The Chinese government does all in its power to check the opium habit, the punishments common in the Chinese army for this habit being extreme. For the first offense a man may have his upper lip cut, for the second he may be decapitated. For the last 60 years on an average a half ton of opium has been sent to China from India every hour. —Atlanta Constitution.

OYSTER HAD A QUEER CHUM

Live Fish Found Between Its Shells by a Cook.

The cook in the cafe in the New York Times building in New York was opening Rockaway oysters the other night. He gave a yell, dropped his knife and jumped away from the bar. As he had pried apart the shell of an exceptionally large specimen the oyster apparently jumped three feet from the shell and began flopping about the bar.

"Oh, Lord!" groaned one of the loungers. "My wife told me I'd see things if I didn't stop drinking. This is my finish."

"Shut up!" snapped a more observing one. "That's no oyster. It's a fish."

It was a sea bass, a little over two inches long and beautifully marked. It lay gasping on the bar. Somebody put it in a tumbler of water. It is supposed that while the oyster was feeding the bass swooped down on it, to be caught when the bivalve closed its shell. Thereupon it ate up the oyster.

Opium.

Like most of nature's products opium is classified in grades. The growers of India, in white turbans and gowns, sit in the blazing sun waiting for their opium to be sorted, when they go to market. The unripe poppy seed pod has been cut into five times and the milky sap dried in the sun and kneaded into cakes, the best of which are covered with dried leaves, and thus brought to market.

Opium of the first class must be tough, smooth and a rich brown shade, bitter to taste and strong of scent. In 1892 54 per cent of the suicides in India were from the use of opium, and one statistician credits 90 per cent of the women suicides to the same drug. However, twelve-thirteenth of the opium of India is sent to China for smoking. During Victoria's reign the Chinese have paid into the British treasury for Indian opium $1,250,000.000.

The Chinese government does all in its power to check the opium habit, the punishments common in the Chinese army for this habit being extreme. For the first offense a man may have his upper lip cut, for the second he may be decapitated. For the last 60 years on an average a half ton of opium has been sent to China from India every hour.—Atlanta Constitution.

OYSTER HAD A QUEER CHUM

Live Fish Found Between Its Shells by a Cook.

The cook in the cafe in the New York Times building in New York was opening Rockaway oysters the other night. He gave a yell, dropped his knife and jumped away from the bar. As he had pried apart the shell of an exceptionally large specimen the oyster apparently jumped three feet from the shell and began flopping about the bar.

"Oh, Lord!" groaned one of the loungers. "My wife told me I'd see things if I didn't stop drinking. This is my finish."

"Shut up!" snapped a more observing one. "That's no oyster. It's a fish."

It was a sea bass, a little over two inches long and beautifully marked. It lay gasping on the bar. Somebody put it in a tumbler of water. It is supposed that while the oyster was feeding the bass swooped down on it, to be caught when the bivalve closed its shell. Thereupon it ate up the oyster.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE

Not a Car Passed Over the Street Railway.

NOTICE SENT TO ALL THE MEN

Asking Them to Call at the Office and Receive What Money Is Due Them—Motormen Attended Services Yesterday—Board of Arbitration Notified.

There is no change in the strike of street railway men other than that the state board of arbitration has taken the matter in hand and are making inquiries.

This morning Mayor Bough received a telegram from Joseph Bishop, secretary of the board, asking if there was a strike on the line here. The mayor answered, giving the facts, and it is probable the board will come here to investigate and do what it can to bring about a settlement. The board of arbitration is composed of President Selwyn N. Owen, Columbus; Secretary Joseph Bishop, Columbus; John Little, Xenia.

The only other matter of importance affects every motorman. Saturday night each one received a notice to call at the office and turn over what property of the company he had, receiving the money due him to the time of quitting. In speaking of the matter Mr. Healy said:

"The motormen left the service of the company voluntarily and they are no longer considered by us as employees. We owe them money for their services and they have property of the company in their possession. Our notice to them is a request that they call for the money due them and return the company's property.

"Before making any effort to operate our cars we wish to offer the positions available to residents of East Liverpool and Wellsville. If after a reasonable time we are not able to secure the services of local men we will be compelled to employ others."

The motormen attended services yesterday morning at the Second U. P. church. Rev. J. R. Green delivered an excellent sermon on "I have written what I have written." A meeting was held this morning, but the action taken was not made public.

Mr. Bishop Ill.

Mayor Bough this afternoon received a telegram from Secretary Bishop, of the state board, announcing that he was ill, but would be here as soon as he recovered.

IN THE CHURCHES.

Revival Services In Progress at First M. E. Church.

At the First M. E. church yesterday morning a large congregation assembled to hear Dr. Clark Crawford deliver an excellent sermon on "Faith." Revival services were held in the church last week, and 19 persons confessed conversion. Two were added to the list yesterday morning. The services last evening were interesting and impressive, eight other persons professing conversion. The church was crowded, hundreds of persons being turned away.

No services were held at the First Presbyterian church yesterday because of the illness of Doctor Lee. It was the intention to have services during this week, but the illness of the pastor prevented it. Miss Bossard, a singer of merit from Delphos, came here to take part in the meetings. She sang beautifully for the Endeavorers last night.

Prof. O. S. Reed being out of the city no preaching services were held at the Christian church. Other services were held as usual.

The revival services being conducted by Amanda Smith at the African M. E. church are being very largely attended, and last evening the church was crowded to its capacity. Commencing tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock an afternoon service will be held in the First M. E. church, and in the evening the usual meetings will be held at the African M. E. church.

Large audiences attended services at the First U. P. church yesterday. Doctor Taggart occupied the pulpit and delivered strong sermons.

Reverend Weary at St. Stephen's church last night preached on "Sanctification" to an interested audience.

The largest congregation that has been in the Methodist Protestant church since the days of Evangelist Isaac Naylor, two years ago, was seen last evening. Rev. Swift preached an interesting and instructive sermon, using for his text Mark x:49. The speaker impressed upon his hearers that all were blind, and unless they arise and go as they are called, then life will be in total darkness.

SOME LEADING QUESTIONS.

Good Citizens of East Liverpool Will Make Answer.

The following questions have been handed to a representative of the NEWS REVIEW, with the request that they be accorded space in this paper. They are of decided interest to many residents of East Liverpool:

"Parents, will your son be made a better man and more worthy citizen by his association with gamblers and by visiting gambling dens of any class or character?"

"Business men, when you are looking for an employe, one to whom you desire to entrust important business interests, requiring earnest effort and application of full intelligence and brain power, wide-awake and indefatigable in the pursuance of keen legitimate business traits, will you seek for him inside of or at the door of a saloon or in the inner circle of a poker or gambling joint or den?"

"Mothers, ye who love your daughters with a love second only to that which the Savior has for sinners, will you give fitting expression to that love by permitting your daughters to keep company and associate with young men who are known to be visitors to the saloons and gambling hells of East Liverpool?"

"Voters of East Liverpool, fathers, brothers, husbands and sons; ministers of the gospel and laymen in the pews; good and law-abiding citizens; professed followers of the Lord and Savior, will you continue to cast your ballots for men who advocate, uphold and sustain the saloon and the gambling hell?"

"One and all thus questioned. Will you make answer now as you will wish you had done when in the presence of the righteous Judge?"

A JANITOR

The Smoky Chimney.

In the designing and construction of houses it has always been the especial fad of Mr. Willis Polk, architect, to build a roomy fireplace, where great logs can burn, and he has always plumed himself on the fact that the fireplaces never fail to draw.

When he erected his bachelor bungalow at Tiburon, the fireplace was the chief pride and glory of the establishment. He told his friends about the solid comfort he enjoyed sitting before the blazing logs, and to still further arouse their envy Polk one night gave a party.

To his infinite chagrin, the chimney smoked abominably and the bungalow was filled to stifling. After they had thoroughly gaped the disconsolate Willis the disgusted guests went home to sough it off.

Next day Polk made a careful examination of chimney and hearth, satisfied himself that everything was now as it should be and then gave another party. That abominable chimney again spoiled it all. It smoked and smoked. Willis was in despair, but the next day it was all right again. At intervals after that Polk entertained friends, and he found that the fireplace never drew when he had company, although at other times it worked perfectly. So he set a little trap, which finally solved the puzzle. It was a little cracker box, placed over the top of the chimney, which caused all the trouble.

STRUCK BY THE PONY

Thomas Cochran Seriously Injured This Morning

WHILE NEAR THOMPSON PLANT

He Is a Trackwalker Employed by the Railroad Company to Go Over the Line Between This Place and Dry Run, and Was Starting When Accident Happened.

Thomas Cochran, employed by the Cleveland and Pittsburgh company as track walker between this place and Dry Run, was seriously injured at the Thompson pottery this morning by being struck by the pony, in charge of Engineer Workman and Conductor Jordan, as it was entering the siding at that place.

Cochran had just started on his first trip, and was walking very close to the north rail of the siding. As he thought the pony was going east on the main track he did not change his path. The engine struck him in the legs knocking him down, and the bumpers struck him in the small of the back. The pony was stopped and the injured man, who lay as if dead, was taken to his home in Calcutta road by the patrol.

Doctor Noble, the company physician at Wellsville, was summoned and came to the city on the 7:57 train. An examination of the man proved that a number of bones were broken, and internal injuries sustained. This afternoon his condition was such that he will recover.

Such accidents as these are common on all roads, and are caused by people walking too close to the track. The space between the freight platforms is used by many people during the day as a thoroughfare, and that more accidents do not happen is something short of a miracle.

SNOW BALL BATTLES.

No One Was Hurt, but There Was Much Amusement.

Small boys and young men have taken advantage of the snow to indulge in snow ball battles wherever they believed they were free from the interference of the police. At times this was taken to include the Diamond, and Saturday evening a crowd engaged in the sport without injury to anyone, as passing pedestrians were not disturbed.

Sunday afternoon a tall man was vigorously assaulted by a crowd of small boys in West Market street. He became angry, but was compelled to retreat. A number of similar cases are reported.

BIG BRICK PLANT.

Will Be Built by Captain Porter and the Carnegie Company.

It is stated that Capt. John Porter, the brick manufacturer, has become associated with a number of officials of the Carnegie Steel company, and purchased a lot of valuable clay land at Port Homer. It is their intention to build the largest brick manufacturing plant in the country.

Mr. Porter was questioned about the matter yesterday and refused to deny or confirm the statement. Later developments show the story to be substantially true.

Packing Department Resumes.

The packing department of the Standard pottery will resume work tomorrow, after a two weeks' shut down. The firm has a large number of orders on hand and other departments will resume within a short time.

Escaped Serious Injury.

Dr. Bert George, yesterday afternoon while coming out of the Columbian club, slipped on the stairs and fell to the bottom. He was considerably shaken up by the accident but not injured.

Little Improvement.

Everson Macrum, who has been in the city for some time, is still ill at the home of his father, N. G. Macrum in Second street. His eyes continue to annoy him greatly.

George Potter Ill.

George Potter, of Avondale street, is suffering from a severe attack of the grip. He is unable to leave his room, although his condition is much improved today.

Professor Armstrong Here.

Prof. Gordon Armstrong, of the high school, who has been spending his vacation with relatives in the southern part of the state, returned to the city Saturday evening.

JOHNSON'S NOSE PETRIFIED

Surgeon Finds a Klondiker Whose Nasal Organ Has Turned to Stone.

A man with a stone nose is the latest freak to turn up at the city dispensary in St. Louis. About 1 o'clock the other afternoon an individual giving his name as Joseph Johnson, 52 years old, walked into the office of Dr. Maro Hughes and applied for treatment. Pointing to his nose, he said there was something the matter with it, but he had not the slightest idea what it was. He said he could smell perfectly. Indeed his sense of smell, he declared, was abnormally good. Still he suspected something was wrong, because when he accidentally scratched it with a pin it was very hard and had no feeling.

The physician made an examination and found that his patient was suffering with hypertrophy of the nose, with analgesia. He was very much surprised, for it was the first well developed, chronic case he had ever seen, and he became deeply interested. While the patient sat in the chair Dr. Hughes got up and took down his medical books and compared the case to be sure of all its symptoms. The more he examined the more deeply interested did he become. All of the signs were present. The nose was dark, almost purple, and was extremely hard, like stone. While the patient could smell and realize when there was pressure upon it, he had not the slightest feeling in it.

The disease is a nervous affliction, and in cases so strangely developed as that of Johnson is incurable. The treatment is by electricity. As they had not the appliances in the office and as the case was incurable, the doctor dismissed his patient, directing him to some thoroughly equipped hospital. Joseph Johnson came from the north. He was formerly of Colorado, where he was a miner. During the gold fever he went to Klondike and came back last spring. This summer he spent fishing in the lakes of the north, and he came to St. Louis on a little fisherman's boat. Being very tired and worn, he stopped in the city and spent the night at the Salvation Army barracks. — New York Journal.

EARTH'S NEW MOTION.

French Scientist Explains Observed Variations in Latitudes.

From observations extending over a period of seven years M. Albrecht has demonstrated that the earth has a new movement in addition to the recognized 11. The twelfth movement is that of the terrestrial pole to the extent of 15 to 17 minutes per annum, giving rise to a slight variation of latitudes, which has been observed in all countries.

M. Albrecht attributes this displacement more especially to the variation of the equilibrium produced by the movement of the ocean's atmosphere. The newly discovered movement is supposed to have been a potent agent in affecting the relative distribution of land and water in the equatorial zone, which theory is corroborated by the actual state thereof. M. Albrecht says:

"One of the results of the change in the position of the polar axis and the variations of the intensities of centrifugal force on the equatorial zone would be that for points diametrically opposed the decrease in centrifugal force at one point would necessarily imply an increase at the opposite point, so that if a subsidence took place in one elevation it should be the result in the other, so that wherever the equator traverses land representing elevation it should be found traversing the ocean or low land at the opposite end of the diameter corresponding to this elevated land surface." — Paris Cablegram Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Regular Polygot.

A gentleman in a rural district drew down upon his head a storm of adverse criticism by marrying a second wife shortly after the demise of his first. Two of those good ladies who look generally upon the surface of things and who are ever ready with condemnation were discussing the disgraceful affair "Why, my dear, there's his poor wife hardly cold in her grave, and he goes and marries another!" "Dreadful!" declared the other. "I never heard of such a thing." "I should think not indeed," went on No. 1 angrily. "Marrying wife after wife like that—why, the man's a regular polygot!" — Cornhill Magazine.

The Last of the Patches.

I was born in 1837, and I have personal recollections of a lady in the early forties using them. The curate of — lodged in a farmhouse contiguous to my father's place. His wife was a tall, fine, handsome woman, dressed in black when I first saw her, and had patches—"beauty spots" they were called—on her forehead, cheek (left, I think) and chin. I told my mother on returning home, and she replied they were "beauty spots" and "the fashion." I have a most vivid recollection of seeing her and her husband on the occasion. A handsomer couple you would rarely meet. — Notes and Queries.

WONDERS OF LIQUID AIR

Strange Experiments Before American Chemical Society.

CHARLES E. TRIPLE'S EXHIBIT.

Copper Immersed in the Steaming Fluid Became Soft and Steel Grew Brittle as Glass—Immersed Rubber Ball Froze and Then Cracked—Audience Given a Cold Bath—Diamond Burned in Oxygen.

At the session of the American Chemical society in the College of the City of New York the other evening Charles E. Tripler gave an interesting demonstration of the manufacture and properties of liquid air. Among those present was Professor Raoul Pictet of Geneva, who was one of the first scientists to liquefy oxygen.

Great interest was manifested by the spectators in the extraordinary experiments made by Mr. Tripler. Several gallons of liquid air were brought into the laboratory, and Mr. Tripler sprinkled it over the crowd. The liquid, which is extremely cold to the touch, evaporated in a moment.

Curious effects of the liquid air on different metals were shown. Copper immersed in the steaming fluid in a few moments became soft. Steel grew brittle as glass and was easily broken. Mr. Tripler filled a tin cup with the liquid, gave the cup a squeeze, and it fell at his feet in fragments.

A piece of steel bicycle tubing plunged into the liquid and then struck with a hammer crumbled to pieces. A rubber ball dipped into liquid air froze white and hard, and when thrown to the floor cracked like an eggshell.

Whisky poured into a glass containing liquid air at 312 degrees F. froze in a few moments. Alcohol requires a temperature 200 degrees below zero to freeze it, but Mr. Tripler formed an icicle out of a glass of alcohol by pouring it into the extraordinary fluid.

To show the paradoxical nature of the liquid Mr. Tripler filled a teakettle with it and placed it on a lighted gas stove. Then he poured a glass of water into the kettle. As the heat of the stove increased the liquid air grew colder, until the water was taken from the kettle in the form of a lump of ice.

"This is the air we breathe, nothing less," said Mr. Tripler. "It is oxygen and nitrogen, and the nitrogen boils off first." He obtained pure oxygen by pouring the liquid from one glass to another to hasten evaporation. Then, placing some of the liquid in a rock salt cup he showed that oxygen gas is magnetic, the fluid attaching itself to a magnet overhead.

Professor R. Ogden Doremus, at the close of the session performed an interesting experiment by burning a diamond in liquid oxygen. He placed the diamond in a coil of platinum and passed an electric current through the coil until the diamond became white hot. Plunged into the liquid oxygen, the little gem burned away with a brilliant glow. — New York Herald.

RARE OLD BIBLE.

Volume Published by John Eliot, the Apostle to Indians, Found.

William W. Tooker of Sag Harbor has added to his collection of Indian relics an Eliot Bible. This rare book was translated into the Indian language and published by Rev. John Eliot, the apostle of the Indians of North America, in 1680.

The Bible is one of the very few of that edition in existence. It is prized highly by the collector of antiquities. The imprint shows the Bible to have been printed in Cambridge, "For the Right Honorable Corporation in London, for the propagation of the Gospel among the Indians in New England, in 1680."

The book is bound in heavy leather, and, considering its age, is well preserved. The Bible was found in the garret of a New Jersey farmer's house. — Special Philadelphia Press.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others? The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

STRUCK BY THE PONY

Thomas Cochran Seriously Injured This Morning

WHILE NEAR THOMPSON PLANT

He Is a Trackwalker Employed by the Railroad Company to Go Over the Line Between This Place and Dry Run, and Was Starting When Accident Happened.

Thomas Cochran, employed by the Cleveland and Pittsburgh company as track walker between this place and Dry Run, was seriously injured at the Thompson pottery this morning by being struck by the pony, in charge of Engineer Workman and Conductor Jordan, as it was entering the siding at that place.

Cochran had just started on his first trip, and was walking very close to the north rail of the siding. As he thought the pony was going east on the main track he did not change his path. The engine struck him in the legs knocking him down, and the bumpers struck him in the small of the back. The pony was stopped and the injured man, who lay as if dead, was taken to his home in Calcutta road by the patrol.

Doctor Noble, the company physician at Wellsville, was summoned and came to the city on the 7:57 train. An examination of the man proved that a number of bones were broken, and internal injuries sustained. This afternoon his condition was such that he will recover.

Such accidents as these are common on all roads, and are caused by people walking too close to the track. The space between the freight platforms is used by many people during the day as a thoroughfare, and that more accidents do not happen is something short of a miracle.

SNOW BALL BATTLES.

No One Was Hurt, but There Was Much Amusement.

Small boys and young men have taken advantage of the snow to indulge in snow ball battles wherever they believed they were free from the interference of the police. At times this was taken to include the Diamond, and Saturday evening a crowd engaged in the sport without injury to anyone, as passing pedestrians were not disturbed.

Sunday afternoon a tall man was vigorously assaulted by a crowd of small boys in West Market street. He became angry, but was compelled to retreat. A number of similar cases are reported.

BIG BRICK PLANT.

Will Be Built by Captain Porter and the Carnegie Company.

It is stated that Capt. John Porter, the brick manufacturer, has become associated with a number of officials of the Carnegie Steel company, and purchased a lot of valuable clay land at Port Homer. It is their intention to build the largest brick manufacturing plant in the country.

Mr. Porter was questioned about the matter yesterday and refused to deny or confirm the statement. Later developments show the story to be substantially true.

JOHNSON'S NOSE PETRIFIED

Surgeon Finds a Klondiker Whose Nasal Organ Has Turned to Stone.

A man with a stone nose is the latest freak to turn up at the city dispensary in St. Louis. About 1 o'clock the other afternoon an individual giving his name as Joseph Johnson, 52 years old, walked into the office of Dr. Marc Hughes and applied for treatment. Pointing to his nose, he said there was something the matter with it, but he had not the slightest idea what it was. He said he could smell perfectly. Indeed his sense of smell, he declared, was abnormally good. Still he suspected something was wrong, because when he accidentally scratched it with a pin it was very hard and had no feeling.

The physician made an examination and found that his patient was suffering with hypertrophy of the nose, with analgesia. He was very much surprised, for it was the first well developed, chronic case he had ever seen, and he became deeply interested. While the patient sat in the chair Dr. Hughes got up and took down his medical books and compared the case to be sure of all its symptoms. The more he examined the more deeply interested did he become. All of the signs were present. The nose was dark, almost purple, and was extremely hard, like stone. While the patient could smell and realize when there was pressure upon it, he had not the slightest feeling in it.

The disease is a nervous affliction, and in cases so strangely developed as that of Johnson is incurable. The treatment is by electricity. As they had not the appliances in the office and as the case was incurable, the doctor dismissed his patient, directing him to some thoroughly equipped hospital. Joseph Johnson came from the north. He was formerly of Colorado, where he was a miner. During the gold fever he went to Klondike and came back last spring. This summer he spent fishing in the lakes of the north, and he came to St. Louis on a little fisherman's boat. Being very tired and worn, he stopped in the city and spent the night at the Salvation Army barracks. — New York Journal.

EARTH'S NEW MOTION.

French Scientist Explains Observed Variations in Latitudes.

From observations extending over a period of seven years M. Albrecht has demonstrated that the earth has a new movement in addition to the recognized 11. The twelfth movement is that of the terrestrial pole to the extent of 15 to 17 minutes per annum, giving rise to a slight variation of latitudes, which has been observed in all countries.

M. Albrecht attributes this displacement more especially to the variation of the equilibrium produced by the movement of the ocean's atmosphere. The newly discovered movement is supposed to have been a potent agent in affecting the relative distribution of land and water in the equatorial zone, which theory is corroborated by the actual state thereof. M. Albrecht says:

"One of the results of the change in the position of the polar axis and the variations of the intensities of centrifugal force on the equatorial zone would be that for points diametrically opposed the decrease in centrifugal force at one point would necessarily imply an increase at the opposite point, so that if a subsidence took place in one elevation it should be the result in the other, so that wherever the equator traverses land representing elevation it should be found traversing the ocean or low land at the opposite end of the diameter corresponding to this elevated land surface." — Paris Cablegram Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Regular Polygot.

A gentleman in a rural district drew down upon his head a storm of adverse criticism by marrying a second wife shortly after the demise of his first. Two of those good ladies who look generally upon the surface of things and who are ever ready with condemnation were discussing the disgraceful affair. "Why, my dear, there's his poor wife hardly cold in her grave, and he goes and marries another!" "Dreadful!" declared the other. "I never heard of such a thing." "I should think not indeed," went on No. 1 angrily. "Marrying wife after wife like that—why, the man's a regular polygot!" — Cornhill Magazine.

The Last of the Patches.

I was born in 1837, and I have personal recollections of a lady in the early forties using them. The curate of — lodged in a farmhouse contiguous to my father's place. His wife was a tall, fine, handsome woman, dressed in black when I first saw her, and had patches—"beauty spots" they were called—on her forehead, cheek (left, I think) and chin. I told my mother on returning home, and she replied they were "beauty spots" and "in the fashion." I have a most vivid recollection of seeing her and her husband on the occasion. A handsomer couple you would rarely meet. — Notes and Queries.

WONDERS OF LIQUID AIR

Strange Experiments Before American Chemical Society.

CHARLES E. TRIPLER'S EXHIBIT.

Copper Immersed in the Steaming Fluid Became Soft and Steel Grew Brittle as Glass—Immersed Rubber Ball Froze and Then Cracked—Audience Given a Cold Bath—Diamond Burned in Oxygen.

At the session of the American Chemical society in the College of the City of New York the other evening Charles E. Tripler gave an interesting demonstration of the manufacture and properties of liquid air. Among those present was Professor Raoul Pictet of Geneva, who was one of the first scientists to liquefy oxygen.

Great interest was manifested by the spectators in the extraordinary experiments made by Mr. Tripler. Several gallons of liquid air were brought into the laboratory, and Mr. Tripler sprinkled it over the crowd. The liquid, which is extremely cold to the touch, evaporated in a moment.

Curious effects of the liquid air on different metals were shown. Copper immersed in the steaming fluid in a few moments became soft. Steel grew brittle as glass and was easily broken. Mr. Tripler filled a tin cup with the liquid, gave the cup a squeeze, and it fell at his feet in fragments.

A piece of steel bicycle tubing plunged into the liquid and then struck with a hammer crumbled to pieces. A rubber ball dipped into liquid air froze white and hard, and when thrown to the floor cracked like an eggshell.

Whisky poured into a glass containing liquid air at 312 degrees F. froze in a few moments. Alcohol requires a temperature 200 degrees below zero to freeze it, but Mr. Tripler formed an icicle out of a glass of alcohol by pouring it into the extraordinary fluid.

To show the paradoxical nature of the liquid Mr. Tripler filled a teakettle with it and placed it on a lighted gas stove. Then he poured a glass of water into the kettle. As the heat of the stove increased the liquid air grew colder, until the water was taken from the kettle in the form of a lump of ice.

"This is the air we breathe, nothing less," said Mr. Tripler. "It is oxygen and nitrogen, and the nitrogen boils off first." He obtained pure oxygen by pouring the liquid from one glass to another to hasten evaporation. Then, placing some of the liquid in a rock salt cup he showed that oxygen gas is magnetic, the fluid attaching itself to a magnet overhead.

Professor R. Ogden Doremus, at the close of the session performed an interesting experiment by burning a diamond in liquid oxygen. He placed the diamond in a coil of platinum and passed an electric current through the coil until the diamond became white hot. Plunged into the liquid oxygen, the little gem burned away with a brilliant glow. — New York Herald.

RARE OLD BIBLE.

Volume Published by John Eliot, the Apostle to Indians. Found.

William W. Tooker of Sag Harbor has added to his collection of Indian relics an Eliot Bible. This rare book was translated into the Indian language and published by Rev. John Eliot, the apostle of the Indians of North America, in 1680.

The Bible is one of the very few of that edition in existence. It is prized highly by the collector of antiquities. The imprint shows the Bible to have been printed in Cambridge, "For the Right Honorable Corporation in London, for the propagation of the Gospel among the Indians in New England, in 1680."

The book is bound in heavy leather, and, considering its age, is well preserved. The Bible was found in the garret of a New Jersey farmer's house. — Special Philadelphia Press.

Trust Committees Will Finish Their Work.

ORDERS CONTINUE TO COME

One Letter of Instruction Tells Local Managers to Take Care of the Business and See That Customers in Need of Ware Are Not Neglected.

The time is rapidly approaching when the potteries of the city will be placed in operation and a great many people will be given employment, although the date for a general resumption has not been announced.

When the concerns who are now parts of the American Potteries company transferred their plants to the big corporation they were each provided with instructions for the manner in which the business was to be carried on until it was ready to deal with the details of operation. The instructions provided that as soon as the stock had been taken and the appraisement completed, the committees, appointed to check this work, would examine and make their report. Then the managers were to look into the state of their business, and use their judgment as to the time for starting, each one to use the greatest care in handling trade, not permitting those customers in need of ware to suffer because orders were not filled. There are four of these checking committees, and they have done an immense amount of work since their appointment. To Saturday night they had examined eight potteries, and found the stock taking in almost every instance correct. Occasionally they met with errors, but as a rule the card on the bin examined told just what that bin contained. It is a task of no mean proportions, but will in all probability be ended by Wednesday. The reports from these committees are compiled by the force of auditors under A. P. Talliaferro, who came here from New York several weeks ago. These gentlemen are hard at it, but still have a considerable amount of work on hand. The report from each plant must be compared with the books of the company operating that particular pottery before they are sent to New York.

The matter of a permanent injunction against the American Potteries company was listed for argument in the court of Judge Smith in Cincinnati today, but it is believed here a settlement will be reached before the case comes up. It is thought the willingness with which the attorney for Bell Brothers treated with the attorneys for the other side means a desire to arbitrate.

BEGAN TO FALL.

The River Reached Its Highest Point Yesterday.

At noon yesterday the river registered 21.9 feet at the wharf, and began falling. Last night it registered 18 feet at the same point. Considerable ice came from the Allegheny river during the day, but not enough to interfere with navigation. The following boats went down:

Ed Roberts, Mariner, Clifton, Advance, Raymond Horner, Cruiser, Twilight.

The John W. Allen and Fred Wilson came up light. The packets Ben Hur, Kanawha and Keystone State arrived last night, with good consignments of freight and passengers.

The Keystone and Ben Hur will be down tonight, and the Queen City is up tomorrow with the Kanawha down.

RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS.

A Drunken Man Fell to the Pavement in Sixth Street.

Saturday night two men very much under the influence of liquor were going along Sixth street when one of them slipped and fell, striking his head a very hard blow on the sidewalk.

He was picked up and carried into a nearby store where restoratives were applied, and after about an hour he was able to be assisted to his home.

Officers For the Carpenters.

The carpenters' union at their last meeting elected the following officers: President, A. P. Cope; vice president, George Woerner; recording secretary, J. J. Weisend; financial secretary, R. M. Newell; treasurer, C. R. Reese.

Death Caused a Change.

The public installation of Red Men, to have been held Jan. 19, has been dispensed with owing to the death of two past officers, Charles B. Allison and J. R. Mase. The officers recently elected will be installed Thursday evening.

A MISTAKE IN THE BIRD MARKET.

A Persian in the market place
Longed for and so took home a wren.
Yes, his was but a common case,
Such always are the ways of men

Once his, the brown bird please him not,
Almost he wished it would take wing
He loosed the cage door and forgot
The dark, unsinging, lonely thing

Night came and touched with wind and dew
(Alone there in the dim moonshine)
A rose that at the window grew—
And, oh, that sudden song divine

His children started from their sleep,
Their orient eyes with rapture lit.
Their pale young mother hid to weep
Their father did not care a whit.

He only heard the impassioned wall
From that small prison overhead.
'My wren is but a nightingale!
'I'll wring its noisy throat!" he said.

WHAT A WORK IS MAN!

The Human Body the Most Wonderful Thing in the World.

Human beings are of all sizes, but the tall man is less common than the short. Only one in every 208 exceeds the height of six feet. For every foot of stature a man should weigh from 26 to 28 pounds, a proportion that is not the lot of all in these hurrying, scurrying days. An average sized man weighs 140 pounds; a woman 125 pounds. Curiously enough, the mean weight and height of lunatics are below those of sane people. Another unexpected thing in this respect is that a negro's skeleton weighs more than that of an Englishman.

The vitalizing power is the blood, a drop of which takes but 22 seconds to go the round of the body. There passes through the heart once every three minutes an amount of this precious fluid equal to all that is contained in the body. The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing and undreamed of truths. It is estimated that, assuming the average speed of the heart to be 69 beats a minute, the blood travels 207 yards in 60 seconds. In other words, 7 miles an hour, 168 a day or 6,320 per year.

If a man of 84 could have one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life, it would have traversed in that period no less than 5,150,808 miles. The average weight of the brain of an adult male is 3 pounds 8 ounces, of a female 2 pounds 8 ounces. The woman's brain begins to decline in weight after the age of 30, the man's not till ten years later. According to high authorities the nerves, with their branches and minute ramifications connecting with the brain, exceed 10,000,000 in number.

The palms of the hands and soles of the feet are composed of cushions of fat, in order that sudden jolts and violent blows may be successfully resisted and no injury done to the muscles and bones underneath. The muscles—of which the tongue monopolizes 11—and bones of the human structure in combination are capable of more than 1,200 different motions.

The teaching of experience indicates that accidents are far more likely to occur to the right leg and arm than to the left. Further evidence of this fact is supplied by the makers of artificial limbs. They dispose of many more appendages to the right side of the body than to the other. Statistics show that in 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is stronger than the right.

If a man could move his legs proportionally as fast as an ant, he would travel not far from 800 miles an hour.—London Mail.

A Curious Case of Somnambulism.

The modern novelist is very prone to found his plots on the doings of sleepwalkers and hypnotists, but, as usual, "truth is stranger than fiction," and his efforts are outdone by actual occurrences. Here, for example, is a true story from France of a gentleman missing from his bedroom a packet containing more than £2,000 worth of bonds. The thief could not be traced, but shortly afterward the mistress of the house, who had taken the robbery to heart even more than her husband, was taken to a doctor, for she was suffering from nervous prostration.

The doctor, a firm believer in hypnotism, was told of the robbery and, putting two and two together, hypnotized his patient and extorted a confession from her that she had taken the bonds and buried them in the garden. There, upon search being made, they were found, but the lady is as yet quite ignorant of the fact that she herself was the person who hid them.—Chambers Journal.

Where Early Planting Is Desirable.

"I tell a well meaning but perhaps not yet perfectly persistent young friend, who asks me about it," said Mr. Staybolt, "that there is no such thing as an incubator that will hatch out eagles from dollars while you wait; that the only way indeed in which a money crop can be raised is by the most careful and constant cultivation, and I venture to remind him, being young and with the world yet before him, that this is a crop in which it is desirable to begin planting early in order to produce the best results."—New York Sun.

Took the Hint.

"I dearly love birds," he gently sighed, and then she didn't do a thing but hasten to the open piano and softly began singing "I wish I were a bird." They are looking for a nest now. Yonkers Statesman.

OLD SLEUTH'S CAREER.

Author of the Famous Dime Novel Detective Series.

HERO OF COUNTLESS CHILDREN.

His Real Name Was Harlan P. Halsey, and He Was Well Known as a Financier of Ability—His Stories Were All Founded on Newspaper Accounts, and He Wrote at a Marvelous Rate of Speed.

The widespread fame of the late Harlan P. Halsey of Brooklyn, the Old Sleuth of the famous dime novel detective series, was the fruit of untiring industry. It is doubtful if any American writer has been more prolific than that author. E. P. Roe, one of the few whose earnings from his literary work were greater than those of Old Sleuth, wielded a far less ready and tireless pen, for the estimated number of the detective story writer's novels is between 600 and 650. It is said that he earned nearly $500,000 in this way, and that George Munro, the publisher, paid him a salary of $20,000 a year.

Old Sleuth didn't come into being until Mr. Halsey was an experienced writer. His predecessor wrote tales of adventure, war and piracy for the weekly papers 40 years ago. He also wrote poems which were published in the daily papers. When a boy of 16, Halsey wrote a novel, of which in later years he could only remember that it was about 300 pages long and abounded in long and heroic speeches, and that he published it himself. Although he early made a living by his pen, it was not until he appeared as Old Sleuth in the story of "Old Sleuth; or, The Mystery of Bay Ridge," that he laid the foundations of his fame and fortune. The book achieved a reputation, and George Munro asked the author how soon he could turn out another like it.

"In three or four days," said the writer.

"Can you keep on writing 'em at that rate?" the publisher asked.

"Call it once a week," the other suggested.

An agreement was made, and soon the shop windows were full of the Old Sleuth detective series. The high minded, heroic and uniformly successful detective became the hero of half the schoolboys who could raise a dime to buy a copy of the series or borrow the book from a more fortunate mate. Some of the early editions appeared with gay colored covers, commonly representing the hero in the act of thrusting a revolver in the dismayed countenances of a gang of ferocious robbers or rescuing beauteous innocence from a cave of robbers, who obligingly lighted up the scene by flashes from their revolvers. In all these novels virtue was invariably and gloriously triumphant and vice landed in a ready grave, or at least in state prison, which desirable culmination did not save the stories from the reprehension of stern parents and forbidding schoolteachers. Prejudice of this sort, however, rather served to enhance the popularity of the stories.

In time the Old Sleuth series came to an end, but the author kept to his nom de plume and turned out other stories. One of these crystallized into the "Secret Service Series." Like their predecessors, these were brimful of adventure, and the crack of pistol shots might have been used to punctuate the sentences. In behalf of his tales the author was wont to remark that they were true enough to life, only the events were rather thickened. A friend once asked him where he got all his plots. "Straight from real life via the newspapers," said he. "I'm a constant reader of the papers, and I remember all the curious incidents that I read. Then when I come to write the curious incidents go into the story as they occur to me."

One day was his record for the writing of a complete tale, and he would often say that the strain was such as no man of wisdom should repeat. It was his opinion that a man couldn't do himself justice, for a story of say 150,000 to 200,000 words, in less than a week. His writing was done at a marvelous rate of speed and with no less marvelous results as to chirography. Nobody but an expert who was accustomed to the Old Sleuth style could get even a clew to the meaning of his words, and he was often puzzled himself when some word was referred to him for solution. His habit was to push the sheet of paper on which he was writing off the table as soon as it was finished and let it fall where it would. The gathering up of these scattered leaves of thought was the duty of some member of the family. His wife tells of an instance where the heroine of one tale was plunged into a deadly complication of intrigue and left to perish there by the loss of a sheet, finally to be rescued from under a neighboring bookcase, where she had fluttered just at the crisis of the adventure. Besides his detective stories the author wrote of stage matters in an equally dashing vein, and "George Christy; or, The Fortunes of a Minstrel" was a famous book in its time. He also wrote several serious historical works. In later years Old Sleuth became a publisher.

Mr. Halsey in Brooklyn was well known as a financier of ability. He was one of the principal organizers of the Hamilton Trust company and the Kings County Trust company. When Seth Low appointed him to the board of education in 1885, there was much amusement and some comment that Old Sleuth, against whom so many schoolmasters were fulminating, should become identified so prominently with educational matters; but he served for ten years and proved himself a valuable member of the board and an upbuilder of the night schools and drawing classes.—New York Sun.

STUCK IN THE SNOW.

Dangers of Traveling by Sledge in Siberia in Winter.

Traveling by sledge in Siberia in winter has its perils, as the experience of Mr. Robert L. Jefferson and his friends goes to illustrate. The incident is told in "Roughing It In Siberia."

We had chartered six sorry looking horses to drag us on to the next stage. It was night when we started. The driver, maudlin drunk, had to be helped to his seat, and we set off along the narrow roadway at the usual gallop, which, however, soon dwindled into a mere shuffle through the snow. We had gone to sleep, and some hours after our departure Gaskell woke me and said he thought something was wrong.

The sledge was at a standstill, and our shouts to the yemshik brought no response. Black darkness prevailed. I bundled out of the sledge, so benumbed that I could scarcely move. I felt along the sledge, sinking to my knees in the snow.

The driver's perch was empty, and just then I stumbled over one of the horses, which was lying buried up to its neck. It was clear that the driver had fallen from his seat, and that the horses had wandered from the track. The poor beasts were stuck fast, and a closer inspection showed one of them to be dead, literally frozen to death. If we would save ourselves from the same fate, prompt action was necessary.

The other horses were nearly succumbing. They lay flat on their stomachs and nibbled at the snow. We cut the dead animal adrift, and, using the spare rope as whips, we stood on either side of the living and lashed them till our arms ached. At length they moved, and by pushing and pulling we got the sledge turned. Then, step by step, with much floundering and many falls, we began to retrace our way.

All this in pitch darkness in a raw, cold wind and in momentary expectation of one or all of the horses dropping dead.

It was a terrible experience, but we regained the road and finally reached the village.

BLIND MAN'S BUFF.

The Origin of This Favorite Sport of Childhood and Youth.

This favorite sport of childhood and youth is of French origin and very high antiquity, having been introduced into England in the train of the Norman conquerors. Its French name, "Colin Maillard," was that of a brave warrior, the memory of whose exploits still lives in the chronicles of the middle ages.

In the year 999 Liege reckoned among its valiant chiefs one Jean Colin. He acquired the name Maillard from his chosen weapon being a mallet, where-with in fight he used literally to crush his opponents. In one of the feuds which were of perpetual recurrence in those times he encountered the Count de Lorraine in a pitched battle, and, so runs the story, in the first onset Colin Maillard lost both his eyes. He ordered his esquire to take him into the thickest of the fight, and, furiously brandishing his mallet, did such fearful execution that victory soon declared itself for him.

When Robert of France heard of these feats at arms, he lavished favor and honors upon Colin, and so great was the fame of the exploit that it was commemorated in the pantomimic representations that formed part of the rude dramatic performances of the age. By degrees the children learned to act it for themselves, and it took the form of a familiar sport.

The blindfolded pursuer, as, with bandaged eyes and extended hands, he gropes for a victim to pounce upon, seems in some degree to repeat the action of Colin Maillard, the tradition of which is also traceable in the name, blind man's bluff.—Philadelphia Press.

His Reason.

Some of the best of Dean Pigeon's stories come from Halifax (not Sheffield). One of these concerns his verger, one Sagar. Imagine him, a venerable figure with gray hair, skullcap, gown and verger's staff. In ignorance they had married a man to his deceased wife's sister.

Sagar, whose business it was to settle the matter about the banns, was at once cross examined. "Oh, yes, vicar," said he, "I knowed right well! I knowed parties. "But why did you not tell me?" I should have forbidden them." "Well, vicar, it was just this way, do you see. One of the parties was 84 and t'other 86. I says to myself: 'Lord, it can't last long. Let 'em wed, and bother the laws!'"—London News.

The Human Body the Most Wonderful Thing in the World.

Human beings are of all sizes, but the tall man is less common than the short. Only one in every 208 exceeds the height of six feet. For every foot of stature a man should weigh from 26 to 28 pounds, a proportion that is not the lot of all in these hurrying, scurrying days. An average sized man weighs 140 pounds; a woman 125 pounds. Curiously enough, the mean weight and height of lunatics are below those of sane people. Another unexpected thing in this respect is that a negro's skeleton weighs more than that of an Englishman.

The vitalizing power is the blood, a drop of which takes but 22 seconds to go the round of the body. There passes through the heart once every three minutes an amount of this precious fluid equal to all that is contained in the body. The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing and undreamed of truths. It is estimated that, assuming the average speed of the heart to be 69 beats a minute, the blood travels 207 yards in 60 seconds. In other words, 7 miles an hour, 168 a day or 6,320 per year.

If a man of 84 could have one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life, it would have traversed in that period no less than 5,150,808 miles. The average weight of the brain of an adult male is 3 pounds 8 ounces, of a female 2 pounds 8 ounces. The woman's brain begins to decline in weight after the age of 30, the man's not till ten years later. According to high authorities the nerves, with their branches and minute ramifications connecting with the brain, exceed 10,000,000 in number.

The palms of the hands and soles of the feet are composed of cushions of fat, in order that sudden jolts and violent blows may be successfully resisted and no injury done to the muscles and bones underneath. The muscles—of which the tongue monopolizes 11—and bones of the human structure in combination are capable of more than 1,200 different motions.

The teaching of experience indicates that accidents are far more likely to occur to the right leg and arm than to the left. Further evidence of this fact is supplied by the makers of artificial limbs. They dispose of many more appendages to the right side of the body than to the other. Statistics show that in 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is stronger than the right.

If a man could move his legs proportionally as fast as an ant, he would travel not far from 800 miles an hour.—London Mail.

A Curious Case of Somnambulism.

The modern novelist is very prone to found his plots on the doings of sleepwalkers and hypnotists, but, as usual, "truth is stranger than fiction," and his efforts are outdone by actual occurrences. Here, for example, is a true story from France of a gentleman missing from his bedroom a packet containing more than £2,000 worth of bonds. The thief could not be traced, but shortly afterward the mistress of the house, who had taken the robbery to heart even more than her husband, was taken to a doctor, for she was suffering from nervous prostration.

The doctor, a firm believer in hypnotism, was told of the robbery and, putting two and two together, hypnotized his patient and extorted a confession from her that she had taken the bonds and buried them in the garden. There, upon search being made, they were found, but the lady is as yet quite ignorant of the fact that she herself was the person who hid them.—Chambers Journal.

Where Early Planting Is Desirable.

"I tell a well meaning but perhaps not yet perfectly persistent young friend, who asks me about it," said Mr. Staybolt, "that there is no such thing as an incubator that will hatch out eagles from dollars while you wait; that the only way indeed in which a money crop can be raised is by the most careful and constant cultivation, and I venture to remind him, being young and with the world yet before him, that this is a crop in which it is desirable to begin planting early in order to produce the best results."—New York Sun.

OLD SLEUTH'S CAREER.

Author of the Famous Dime Novel Detective Series.

HERO OF COUNTLESS CHILDREN.

His Real Name Was Harlan P. Halsey, and He Was Well Known as a Financier of Ability—His Stories Were All Founded on Newspaper Accounts, and He Wrote at a Marvelous Rate of Speed.

The widespread fame of the late Harlan P. Halsey of Brooklyn, the Old Sleuth of the famous dime novel detective series, was the fruit of untiring industry. It is doubtful if any American writer has been more prolific than that author. E. P. Roe, one of the few whose earnings from his literary work were greater than those of Old Sleuth, wielded a far less ready and tireless pen, for the estimated number of the detective story writer's novels is between 600 and 650. It is said that he earned nearly $500,000 in this way, and that George Munro, the publisher, paid him a salary of $20,000 a year.

Old Sleuth didn't come into being until Mr. Halsey was an experienced writer. His predecessor wrote tales of adventure, war and piracy for the weekly papers 40 years ago. He also wrote poems which were published in the daily papers. When a boy of 16, Halsey wrote a novel, of which in later years he could only remember that it was about 300 pages long and abounded in long and heroic speeches, and that he published it himself. Although he early made a living by his pen, it was not until he appeared as Old Sleuth in the story of "Old Sleuth; or, The Mystery of Bay Ridge," that he laid the foundations of his fame and fortune. The book achieved a reputation, and George Munro asked the author how soon he could turn out another like it.

"In three or four days," said the writer.

"Can you keep on writing 'em at that rate?" the publisher asked.

"Call it once a week," the other suggested.

An agreement was made, and soon the shop windows were full of the Old Sleuth detective series. The high minded, heroic and uniformly successful detective became the hero of half the schoolboys who could raise a dime to buy a copy of the series or borrow the book from a more fortunate mate. Some of the early editions appeared with gay colored covers, commonly representing the hero in the act of thrusting a revolver in the dismayed countenances of a gang of ferocious robbers or rescuing beauteous innocence from a cave of robbers, who obligingly lighted up the scene by flashes from their revolvers. In all these novels virtue was invariably and gloriously triumphant and vice landed in a ready grave, or at least in state prison, which desirable culmination did not save the stories from the reprehension of stern parents and forbidding schoolteachers. Prejudice of this sort, however, rather served to enhance the popularity of the stories.

In time the Old Sleuth series came to an end, but the author kept to his nom de plume and turned out other stories. One of these crystallized into the "Secret Service Series." Like their predecessors, these were brimful of adventure, and the crack of pistol shots might have been used to punctuate the sentences. In behalf of his tales the author was wont to remark that they were true enough to life, only the events were rather thickened. A friend once asked him where he got all his plots. "Straight from real life via the newspapers," said he. "I'm a constant reader of the papers, and I remember all the curious incidents that I read. Then when I come to write the curious incidents go into the story as they occur to me."

One day was his record for the writing of a complete tale, and he would often say that the strain was such as no man of wisdom should repeat. It was his opinion that a man couldn't do himself justice, for a story of say 150,000 to 200,000 words, in less than a week. His writing was done at a marvelous rate of speed and with no less marvelous results as to chirography. Nobody but an expert who was accustomed to the Old Sleuth style could get even a clew to the meaning of his words, and he was often puzzled himself when some word was referred to him for solution. His habit was to push the sheet of paper on which he was writing off the table as soon as it was finished and let it fall where it would. The gathering up of these scattered leaves of thought was the duty of some member of the family. His wife tells of an instance where the heroine of one tale was plunged into a deadly complication of intrigue and left to perish there by the loss of a sheet, finally to be rescued from under a neighboring bookcase, where she had fluttered just at the crisis of the adventure. Besides his detective stories the author wrote of stage matters in an equally dashing vein, and "George Christy; or, The Fortunes of a Minstrel" was a famous book in its time. He also wrote several serious historical works. In later years Old Sleuth became a publisher.

Mr. Halsey in Brooklyn was well known as a financier of ability. He was one of the principal organizers of the Hamilton Trust company and the Kings County Trust company. When Seth Low appointed him to the board of education in 1885, there was much amusement and some comment that Old Sleuth, against whom so many schoolmasters were fulminating, should become identified so prominently with educational matters; but he served for ten years and proved himself a valuable member of the board and an upbuilder of the night schools and drawing classes.—New York Sun.

STUCK IN THE SNOW.

Dangers of Traveling by Sledge in Siberia in Winter.

Traveling by sledge in Siberia in winter has its perils, as the experience of Mr. Robert L. Jefferson and his friends goes to illustrate. The incident is told in "Roughing It In Siberia."

We had chartered six sorry looking horses to drag us on to the next stage. It was night when we started. The driver, maudlin drunk, had to be helped to his seat, and we set off along the narrow roadway at the usual gallop, which, however, soon dwindled into a mere shuffle through the snow. We had gone to sleep, and some hours after our departure Gaskell woke me and said he thought something was wrong.

The sledge was at a standstill, and our shouts to the yemshik brought no response. Black darkness prevailed. I bundled out of the sledge, so numbened that I could scarcely move. I felt along the sledge, sinking to my knees in the snow.

The driver's perch was empty, and just then I stumbled over one of the horses, which was lying buried up to its neck. It was clear that the driver had fallen from his seat, and that the horses had wandered from the track. The poor beasts were stuck fast, and a closer inspection showed one of them to be dead, literally frozen to death. If we would save ourselves from the same fate, prompt action was necessary.

The other horses were nearly succumbing. They lay flat on their stomachs and nibbled at the snow. We cut the dead animal adrift, and, using the spare rope as whips, we stood on either side of the living and lashed them till our arms ached. At length they moved, and by pushing and pulling we got the sledge turned. Then, step by step, with much floundering and many falls, we began to retrace our way.

All this in pitch darkness in a raw, cold wind and in momentary expectation of one or all of the horses dropping dead.

It was a terrible experience, but we regained the road and finally reached the village.

BLIND MAN'S BLUFF.

The Origin of This Favorite Sport of Childhood and Youth.

This favorite sport of childhood and youth is of French origin and very high antiquity, having been introduced into England in the train of the Norman conquerors. Its French name, "Colin Maillard," was that of a brave warrior, the memory of whose exploits still lives in the chronicles of the middle ages.

In the year 999 Liege reckoned among its valiant chiefs one Jean Colin. He acquired the name Maillard from his chosen weapon being a mallet, where-with in fight he used literally to crush his opponents. In one of the feuds which were of perpetual recurrence in those times he encountered the Count de Lourain in a pitched battle, and, so runs the story, in the first onset Colin Maillard lost both his eyes. He ordered his esquire to take him into the thickest of the fight, and, furiously brandishing his mallet, did such fearful execution that victory soon declared itself for him.

When Robert of France heard of these feats at arms, he lavished favor and honors upon Colin, and so great was the fame of the exploit that it was commemorated in the pantomimic representations that formed part of the rude dramatic performances of the age. By degrees the children learned to act it for themselves, and it took the form of a familiar sport.

The blindfolded pursuer, as, with bandaged eyes and extended hands, he gropes for a victim to pounce upon, seems in some degree to repeat the action of Colin Maillard, the tradition of which is also traceable in the name, blind man's bluff.—Philadelphia Press.

His Reason.

Some of the best of Dean Pigon's stories come from Halifax (not Sheffield). One of these concerns his verger, one Sagar. Imagine him, a venerable figure with gray hair, skullcap, gown and verger's staff. In ignorance they had married a man to his deceased wife's sister.

Sagar, whose business it was to settle the matter about the banns, was at once cross examined. "Oh, yes, vicar," said he, "I knowed right well! I knowed parties. "But why did you not tell me?" "I should have forbidden them." "Well, vicar, it was just this way, do you see. One of the parties was 84 and t'other 86. I says to myself: 'Lord, it can't last long. Let 'em wed, and bother the laws!'"—London News.

SOME TIME THIS WEEK

Trust Committees Will Finish Their Work.

ORDERS CONTINUE TO COME

One Letter of Instruction Tells Local Managers to Take Care of the Business and See That Customers in Need of Ware Are Not Neglected.

The time is rapidly approaching when the potteries of the city will be placed in operation and a great many people will be given employment, although the date for a general resumption has not been announced.

When the concerns who are now parts of the American Potteries company transferred their plants to the big corporation they were each provided with instructions for the manner in which the business was to be carried on until it was ready to deal with the details of operation. The instructions provided that as soon as the stock had been taken and the appraisement completed, the committees, appointed to check this work, would examine and make their report. Then the managers were to look into the state of their business, and use their judgment as to the time for starting, each one to use the greatest care in handling trade, not permitting those customers in need of ware to suffer because orders were not filled. There are four of these checking committees, and they have done an immense amount of work since their appointment. To Saturday night they had examined eight potteries, and found the stock taking in almost every instance correct. Occasionally they met with errors, but as a rule the card on the bin examined told just what that bin contained. It is a task of no mean proportions, but will in all probability be ended by Wednesday.

The reports from these committees are compiled by the force of auditors under A. P. Talliaferro, who came here from New York several weeks ago. These gentlemen are hard at it, but still have a considerable amount of work on hand. The report from each plant must be compared with the books of the company operating that particular pottery before they are sent to New York.

The matter of a permanent injunction against the American Potteries company was listed for argument in the court of Judge Smith in Cincinnati today, but it is believed here a settlement will be reached before the case comes up. It is thought the willingness with which the attorney for Bell Brothers treated with the attorneys for the other side means a desire to arbitrate.

BEGAN TO FALL.

The River Reached Its Highest Point Yesterday.

At noon yesterday the river registered 21.9 feet at the wharf, and began falling. Last night it registered 18 feet at the same point. Considerable ice came from the Allegheny river during the day, but not enough to interfere with navigation. The following boats went down:

Ed Roberts, Mariner, Clifton, Adv-
rance, Raymond Horner, Cruiser, Two-light.

The John W. Allen and Fred Wilson came up light. The packets Ben Hur, Kanawha and Keystone State arrived last night, with good consignments of freight and passengers.

The Keystone and Ben Hur will be down tonight, and the Queen City is up tomorrow with the Kanawha down.

RENDERED UNCONSCIOUS.

A Drunken Man Fell to the Pavement in Sixth Street.

Saturday night two men very much under the influence of liquor were going along Sixth street when one of them slipped and fell, striking his head a very hard blow on the sidewalk.

He was picked up and carried into a nearby store where restoratives were applied, and after about an hour he was able to be assisted to his home.

Officers For the Carpenters.

The carpenters' union at their last meeting elected the following officers:

President, A. P. Cope; vice president, George Woesner; recording secretary, J. J. Weisner; financial secretary, R. A. Newell; treasurer, C. R. Reese.

Death Caused a Change.

The public installation of Red Men, to have been held Jan. 19, has been dispensed with owing to the death of two past officers, Charles B. Allison and J. B. Mase. The officers recently elected will be installed Thursday evening.

—William Furnam, of McKeesport, is visiting friends in the city. He will remain here several weeks.

A MISTAKE IN THE BIRD MARKET.

A Persian in the market place
Longed for and so took home a wren.
Yes, his was but a common case,
Such always are the ways of men

Once his, the brown bird please him not.
Almost he wished it would take wing
He loosed the cage door and forgot
The dark, unsinging, lonely thing

Night came and touched with wind and dew
(Alone there in the dim moonshine)
A rose that at the window grew—
And, oh, that sudden song divine

His children started from their sleep.
Their orient eyes with rapture lit.
Their pale young mother hid to weep
Their father did not care a whit.

He only heard the impassioned wail
From that small prison overhead.
"My wren is but a nightingale!"
"I'll wring its noisy throat!" he said.

Friday that his application had been street, left Saturday evening for Pittsburg where he will spend some time with his parents. He will return to the city the last of the week.

who spent several days with his father in this city, returned to his home in the west this morning. He is the largest retail grocer in that place.

Business at the office of the township

LITTLE CLUE APPARENT.

New York Police Seem to Be Groping
In the Dark In the Poisoning Case.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—In the Barnett-
Adams double poisoning mysteries these facts were most prominent: William
J. Kinsley was examining the writing of six persons and said he strongly suspected one. All the evidence was centering upon that person. Mr. Kinsley was waiting for other specimens from the police.

Chemists did not agree about the probability of an amateur being able to compound cyanide of mercury. One said he easily could do it; another that it would be impossible.

Edmund Barnett confirmed the story of his brother having received two poison packages. Evidence was said to have been discovered by detectives who are examining the 100,000 names on the coupons furnished by the makers of the Kuthnow powder. The nature of the evidence was not divulged.

Barnett was a member of the Knickerbocker club, the same organization to which Harry Corush, to whom the poison was sent, which killed Mrs. Adams,

HENRY C. BARNET.

who drank it under the impression that it was bromo seltzer from a bottle sent to Cornish by mail, belonged.

Miss Addie E. Bates, the trained nurse who attended Henry C. Barnett, the Knickerbocker club member, who is alleged to have died from poison, called to see Captain McCluskey. Captain McCluskey gave out the substance of her talk, but nothing seemed to have developed except that some person named Blanche sent him flowers and a note and Barnett expressed surprise at her knowing he was sick.

There was a box marked Kuthnow in the bathroom, which the doctor took away. He afterward said it contained mercury. She thought Barnett had diphtheria.

MURDER OF BLEVINS.

New Castle, Pa., Officials Convinced It
Was Committed by Some Person
Acquainted With Him.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—John
Blevins, 70 years old, city treasurer of
New Castle, was found in his office at the city hall unconscious and dying
shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night.
His head had been beaten to a jelly and the safe broken open and robbed. The room was covered with blood and there was evidence of a terrific struggle. The discovery was made by his son William,
who had become alarmed at his absence. Mr. Blevins died soon after his son reached him.

It is not known just how much money was taken, but it is thought the robbers got about $500. The two tin cash boxes had disappeared. The police are of the opinion that the crime was committed by someone who was well acquainted with the office and with whom the dead man was also well acquainted.

The city council by resolution asked Postmaster John B. Brown, who was formerly a member of the detective firm of Marshall & Brown, to assist in the hunt of the criminal, and he has consented to do so. There is no known clue to work on.

The city council and county commissioners met and each body offered $2,000, making a total of $4,000, for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers.

Confessed a Terrible Murder.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 9.—
Llewellyn Stout, a worthless youth of
17 years, confessed that he murdered
Harvey H. Wurster, night station agent and operator for the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company at Bingen.
Knowing the operator had a small sum in his office, sneaked into his room and brained him. Then he secured the money, took it home and secreted it in a closet, where the detectives found it
by following the directions Stout had given them.

LITTLE CLUE APPARENT.

New York Police Seem to Be Groping
In the Dark in the Poisoning Case.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—In the Barnett-Adams double poisoning mysteries these facts were most prominent: William J. Kinsley was examining the writing of six persons and said he strongly suspected one. All the evidence was centering upon that person. Mr. Kinsley was waiting for other specimens from the police.

Chemists did not agree about the probability of an amateur being able to compound cyanide of mercury. One said he easily could do it; another that it would be impossible.

Edmund Barnett confirmed the story of his brother having received two poison packages. Evidence was said to have been discovered by detectives who are examining the 100,000 names on the coupons furnished by the makers of the Kuthnow powder. The nature of the evidence was not divulged.

Barnett was a member of the Knickerbocker club, the same organization to which Harry Cornish, to whom the poison was sent, which killed Mrs. Adams.

HENRY C. BARNETT.

who drank it under the impression that it was bromo seltzer from a bottle sent to Cornish by mail, belonged.

Miss Addie E. Bates, the trained nurse who attended Henry C. Barnett, the Knickerbocker club member, who is alleged to have died from poison, called to see Captain McCluskey. Captain McCluskey gave out the substance of her talk, but nothing seemed to have developed except that some person named Blanche sent him flowers and a note and Barnett expressed surprise at her knowing he was sick.

There was a box marked Kuthnow in the bathroom, which the doctor took away. He afterward said it contained mercury. She thought Barnett had diphtheria.

MURDER OF BLEVIN'S.

New Castle, Pa., Officials Convinced It
Was Committed by Some Person
Acquainted With Him.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—John Blevins, 70 years old, city treasurer of New Castle, was found in his office at the city hall unconscious and dying shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night. His head had been beaten to a jelly and the safe broken open and robbed. The room was covered with blood and there was evidence of a terrific struggle. The discovery was made by his son William, who had become alarmed at his absence. Mr. Blevins died soon after his son reached him.

It is not known just how much money was taken, but it is thought the robbers got about $500. The two tin cash boxes had disappeared. The police are of the opinion that the crime was committed by someone who was well acquainted with the office and with whom the dead man was also well acquainted.

The city council by resolution asked Postmaster John B. Brown, who was formerly a member of the detective firm of Marshall & Brown, to assist in the hunt of the criminal, and he has consented to do so. There is no known clew to work on.

The city council and county commissioners met and each body offered $2,000, making a total of $4,000, for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers.

Confessed a Terrible Murder.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 9.—Llewellyn Stout, a worthless youth of 17 years, confessed that he murdered Harvey H. Wurster, night station agent and operator for the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company at Bingen. Knowing the operator had a small sum in his office, sneaked into his room and brained him. Then he secured the money, took it home and secreted it in a closet, where the detectives found it by following the directions Stout had given them.

ATTACKED BY NATIVES

U. S. Soldier Fatally Injured Before Iloilo.

THE FILIPINOS WERE HOSTILE.

Streets Were Barricaded—Reported Some Buildings Were Kerosened to Destroy Them at First Shot of Bombardment. Dispatch From Otis Not Made Public.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Colonel Potter, the special messenger of Gen. Otis between Manila and Iloilo, arrived with dispatches from the latter point. The situation when he left there was practically unchanged. The streets were barricaded and it was reported that the principal buildings had been "kerosened," the insurgents having threatened to destroy the whole business section by fire at the first shot of bombardment. The banks were shipping their treasure to United States transport Newport and other vessels. The family of the American vice consul had gone on board the Newport.

Colonel Potter reported that President McKinley's proclamation had to be typewritten aboard ship as the printers on shore declined to do the work, and when the text of the proclamation was read to them ridiculed the notion that conciliation was possible.

Privates Harry Silvey and Frank Kirkpatrick of the Sixth United States artillery, while guarding a water boat astern of the Newport, were attacked by the natives of the crew. Private Silvey's skull was fractured fatally and Private Kirkpatrick fell overboard, but escaped with a flesh wound.

The United States gunboat Petrel arrived at Iloilo on Friday, and Colonel Potter reported that the United States troops would probably land on Guimaras island, about midway between the island of Panay and the island of Negros, where a camp would be established.

MADRID, Jan. 9.—Advices were received here from a leading merchant at Iloilo to the effect that agricultural operations in the vicinity of Iloilo had not been interrupted and that all the insurgents respect the Europeans both at Iloilo and on the island of Negros.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The war department received another dispatch from Major General Otis, commanding the United States troops in the Philippines. The officials observed unusual reticence with respect to its contents, but it was understood that that contained was not of an unfavorable character or such as to give undue concern to the administration. So far as the officials were willing to admit the dispatch showed no material change in the conditions existing at the time of previous advices. One cabinet officer said it contained nothing of a character alarming, serious or exciting. There had been no collision with the insurgents, he added, and not a shot had been fired. The dispatch, however, was believed to have been of sufficient importance to bring to the immediate attention of the president, and the latter, Secretary Alger, Secretary Long and Adjutant General Corbin were in conference for some time at the White House, probably on that matter.

The president's proclamation to the Filipinos had been published in Manila, but General Otis did not say to what extent it had been made known to the inhabitants in the other parts of the group of islands, nor whether it had been published at Iloilo. At the latter place General Miller had been directed to land the troops under his command, but the dispatch from General Otis did not indicate whether this had been done or not.

Aguinaldo Issued Manifesto.

MANILA, Jan. 9.—Within a few hours of the proclamation issued by Major General Otis in behalf of President McKinley the agents of Aguinaldo billed Manila with a manifesto which attracted considerable attention. The revolutionary president protested against General Otis signing himself military governor of the Philippines.

DEFENDED THE BEEF.

Egan Made Public a Letter Giving the Approval of Some of the Army Officers.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—Commissary General Egan of the army made public a letter from Lieutenant Colonel A. L. Smith of the subsistence department touching the use of refrigerated beef furnished to troops in Porto Rico from that landed at Ponce. In this letter Col. Smith says in part:

Among others to whom the refrigerated beef was issued I remember the following officers as having spoken of the immensely superiority of it over the native beef:

Major H. P. Birmingham, surgeon of the general hospital; Captain Irvine, Eleventh infantry, who was acting as commissary for the steamship Panama (I think), loaded with conscripts en route to the United States; Captain W. F. Evans, commanding battalion Nineteenth infantry; Captain Hoppin, Second cavalry, commanding cavalry squadron.

There were no preparations made for the receiving and taking care of the beef on shore. It had to be unloaded by lighters and thrown on the floor of the commissary storehouse until the troops called for it in open wagons. It was, therefore, subjected to the worst possible treatment in handling. It was frequently to 15 hours off the vessel before being issued. One issue to Captain Hoppin was over 24 hours in the storehouse. Notwithstanding this the meat was in good condition except pieces which had not been sufficiently protected, but could be trimmed off with some loss.

The officers without exception to whom I spoke condemned the use of the native beef, which had to be consumed the same day it was slaughtered.

CANNED MEAT DEFINED.

Secretary Wilson Called Upon an Official For a Statement.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—In view of the statements which have gained wide circulation regarding nutritive value of American canned meat tending to injure foreign and domestic trade in these goods, Secretary Wilson called upon the director of the office of experiment stations for a statement of the conclusions of scientific experts on this matter. The statement declared that "the high nutritive value of American canned meats has been established repeatedly by thorough and impartial tests conducted by scientific experts."

Then follows a long account of certain investigations.

CUBAN BANDITS CAUGHT.

Will Be Put on Trial—Santiago People Were Still Excited Over the Customs.

SANTIAGO DE CUBA, Jan. 9.—Senor Bardi, the mayor of Santiago, cabled to Havana daily regarding the situation, explaining that the local excitement growing out of the original proposal of the United States to concentrate the receipts at Havana was not allayed and that the people wanted provincial and municipal autonomy. It was understood here that General Wood, with Demetrius Castillo, would reach the United States on or before tomorrow and arrangements had been made for a special cable service to inform the people here as to developments after General Wood's arrival in Washington.

Lieutenant Colonel Ray reported from Guantanamo that a Cuban major a short time ago took to the woods with several of his men, became a bandit and killed five men. The entire band was captured and will be put on trial.

A STEEL AND WIRE TRUST.

Various Companies to Unite With a $90,000,000 Capitalization.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—It was announced by the American Steel and Wire company officials that the various steel and wire interests in this country are to be consolidated into a new corporation, to be known as the American Steel and Wire company of New Jersey.

The consolidation will include the present American Steel and Wire company, Washburn and Moen Manufacturing company of Worcester, Mass., and Waukegan, Ills., Worcester Wire company of Worcester, Mass., Cleveland Rolling Mill company of Cleveland, New Castle Wire Nail company of New Castle, Pa., Pittsburg Wire company of Pittsburg, Cincinnati Barbed Wire Fence company of Cincinnati, Laidlaw Bale and Tie company of Joliet, Ills., and Kansas City, Consolidated Barb Wire company of Lawrence, Kan., and Joliet, Ills., Newburg Wire Nail company of Newburg, N. Y., Oliver and Snyder Steel company of Pittsburg, Oliver Wire company of Pittsburg and other companies as well.

The new company will have a capital stock $40,000,000 preferred 7 percent cumulative, having lien on assets prior to the common stock, and $50,000,000 common stock.

CHANGED A RIVER'S COURSE.

Land From a Small Mountain Slid Into the Fraser, Causing a Flood.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Jan. 9.—Near Spencer bridge on the Canadian Pacific railway, about 100 acres of a small mountain, anywhere from 20 to 50 feet in depth, crashed into Fraser river, damming it completely and sending the water in torrents over the fertile Nicola valley.

The Fraser was about half a mile out of its course. The district was sparsely settled and no lives had been lost so far as known. Barns and houses, however, were caught in the flood and carried away and thousands of acres of valuable land will never be reclaimed from the muddy waters of the Fraser in its new course.

Evacuation Commission Arrived.

Miss Sophia Dallas Dead.

Southern Plant to Resume.

MIDDLESBOROUGH, Ky., Jan. 9.—O. P. Perrin floated bonds for $300,000 in the Watts steel plant and the plant is to resume. This is the largest basic steel works in the south and employs 700 workmen. It was built in 1893 at a cost of $750,000.

TO AID THE CUBANS.

Relief Association Endorsed by Alger.

SECOND SUPPLY SHIP GOING.

The Load Will Include Many Foods Especially Adapted to Women and Children—Scheme of Industrial Relief Expected to Do Much Good.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The secretary of war furnished the Cuban industrial relief fund of New York with credentials to General Brooke, military governor of Cuba, commending the relief association to him as a distributing agent of food supplies sent and to be sent by the government to the suffering Cubans. A second shipload of these supplies, which was being prepared, will include many foods specially adapted to the needs of women and children as well as to the Cuban soldiers and laborers. It was believed that a discriminating use of this food, in connection with the industrial features of the relief fund would result in the gradual transfer of many from the charitably aided class to the self-sustaining class.

This recognition of the industrial relief fund, and acceptance of its cooperation in the charities to be administered by the war department will undoubtedly inspire the philanthropic public to furnish promptly all the money that can profitably be used in equipping this work with implements, seeds, cattle and all the industrial necessities which the government has no legal means of providing.

WARNED BY WARING.

Reported, Before He Died, as to Havana's Filth—May Send Scourge to Our Shores.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The report of the late Colonel Waring, who was sent to Havana to look into sanitary conditions, was made public. He described the awful filth of the city and made recommendations which would, if followed out, cost about $10,000,000. It ought to be done at once, he said, and uttered an awful warning, in which he declared in part:

"It needs only the immigration of fresh material, which the enterprise of an American population is sure to bring in, to create a sacrifice such as has not yet been known. Commerce, says Col. Waring, will carry the terrible scourge of yellow fever to our shores until we rise again in a war of humanity and at all costs wipe out an enemy with which no military valor can cope."

He further said in part: "Would it not be wise to accept at once the fact that we are confronted with a danger compared with which war is insignificant and proceed to meet it and conquer it while we may? We cannot afford to wait until we have fed it and strengthened it with the lives of our people. The necessary reforms will call for costly works even now. But every month's delay will make them more costly and more imperative. We can set about these reforms now calmly and judiciously. Later, under the impulse of panic, we should work at far greater disadvantage."

The work, he said, should be done before June 1, 1899.

MINISTERS AROUSED.

A Hot Fight Commenced on Keeping Saloons Open on Sunday at Akron.

AKRON, Jan. 9.—The ministers of the city started a crusade against the Sunday saloons by preaching sermons against the evil and urging their parish-loners to co-operate in the movement to crush it out. The Ministerial alliance will likely start today in the active work of arresting saloonkeepers who have been openly violating the law, and have already a number of affidavits which have been secured by two detectives who have been at work quietly during the past few weeks.

Independent of the efforts of the ministers, a number of business men who were engaged in a similar movement two years ago claim they will renew their efforts, and expect to succeed where the ministers may fail. The work of these men two years ago succeeded in closing the saloons in the city and secured the passage of a screen ordinance, but within the last few months the saloons have been running almost as freely on Sunday as the other six days of the week. Both of these movements are entirely independent of the Anti-Saloon League.

WANTS THEM IMPRISONED.

Monnett Talked of His Fight Against Standard Officials.

which are still pending before the supreme court. In an interview here Mr. Monnett said the Standard had admitted that $3,500,000 had been paid to stockholders in Ohio since the court had ordered the trust dissolved in Ohio.

"The court has been snubbed by the officials of the trust," said Mr. Monnett, "in their refusal to produce their books, and the only thing for the court to do for their contempt is to order the officials committed to jail. In order to bring this issue before the supreme court of the United States habeas corpus proceedings will have to be commenced in United state supreme court to get the Standard Oil officials out of jail. I hope to be able to have their charter revoked, and when I succeed I hope that the other 44 states in this country will follow in the footsteps of Ohio, not only to crush out the Standard Oil trust, but all other trusts."

EXPECTED TODAY.

A Decision May Be Announced In the Quay Case—Defendants Absent During Arguments.

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 9.—The petition of United States Senator Matthew Stanley Quay, his son, Richard R. Quay, and ex-State Treasurer Haywood to have the indictments, charging them with conspiracy and the unlawful use of the state's money, removed from the quarter sessions court of this county, was argued at length before the supreme court Saturday. At the close of the argument the court adjourned until today, when it is expected that a decision will be handed down. Attorneys David T. Watson of Pittsburg and Rufus E. Shapley of Philadelphia conducted the argument on behalf of the defense, and ex-District Attorney Graham for the commonwealth. All of defendants were absent.

The ground upon which the writ is asked for as stated in the argument of the defense was concisely presented in part as follows:

The petition clearly shows that this prosecution was instigated by the express malice of a judge of said county and through a political conspiracy to abuse the processes of the courts for improper political purposes, and that in pursuance of said conspiracy an attempt is now being made to subject the petitioners to the disgrace, inconvenience, hardship, expense and peril of a trial before a jury upon four insufficient indictments which charge no offense known to the law, and to subject one of the defendants to trial upon an indictment irregularly formed without any previous affidavit, hearing and binding over according to law. Therefore, this court should make said rule absolute, and the writ of certiorari should be quashed, and, upon the return of the record this court should take such action as will prevent the further prosecution of said indictments, or the trial of the petitioners thereunder.

A FATAL HOTEL FIRE.

Three People Perished In a Blaze at Pittsburg—Others Injured One Fatally.

PITTSBURG, Jan. 9.—Three people were killed and several others quite seriously injured in a fire at the Hotel Richelieu, on Liberty avenue, about 3 o'clock Sunday morning. Several other guests were also injured, but so slightly as not to require much attention and their cases were not reported. The list of dead and seriously injured includes:

The dead:
Amos S. Landis, aged 28, Grapeville, Pa., suffocated.
George A. Waters, aged 28, Camden, N. J., suffocated.
Mrs. Kate Boyle, aged 28, Pittsburg, suffocated.

Some of the injured:
Dr. Robert Blakesley, Plymouth, Pa., spinal column broken.
Henry Fainter, Grapeville, Pa., eye burned.

John L. Mills, proprietor of the hotel, hands burned.
William Garrison, Clearfield, Pa., severely burned.

There were others slightly injured, who immediately left for other hotels where the slight attention they needed could be secured.

The exact origin of the fire was unknown, but it was believed to have started on the second floor. Several of the guests were of the opinion that it was caused by the explosion by which they were all awakened to their danger, while others believe that the fire had been progressing for some time and that it was the blaze that caused the explosion.

DINGLEY BETTER.

President McKinley Called to Inquire as to His Condition.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—The reports from Representative Dingley's bedside are a trifle more encouraging and his family believe there is still a chance for him to rally.

The president called in person at the hotel and made inquiries concerning the sick man. Mr. Dingley's two sons from Kalamazoo, Mich., arrived in the city.

School Children Killed.

LITTLE ROCK, Jan. 9.—A heavy windstorm swept over the remote section of Scott county. At Boles a schoolhouse was blown down and three pupils were killed, another was fatally wounded and a dozen or more sustained more or less serious injuries.

FLAGS NOT MOLESTED.

Spanish Flags In Front of Two Havana Clubs.

AN INSPECTOR HAS YELLOW FEVER

The Doctor Who Attended Him Arrested For Practicing Without License and Not Reporting the Case—One Louisiana Soldier Murdered Another.

HAVANA, Jan. 9.—Two large Spanish flags appeared over the Clerks' and Asturians' clubs, facing the principal plaza. Their appearance created considerable adverse comment among the Cubans, who, it was said, requested General Brooke to have the flags removed. No action was taken in the matter at headquarters, where it was generally conceded that Spanish flags may float as well as those of other nationalities.

Surgeon General Sternberg recommended the old Spanish camp known as Las Animas as the best site for a yellow fever hospital for the United States troops.

Inspector Doane, who was sent here by the secretary of war to act as inspector of customs, took yellow fever. Inspector Doane had been attended by Dr. C. C. Joliffe. The latter is a discharged army contract surgeon, who came saying that he would establish a hospital. Dr. Joliffe was arrested by the United States authorities and locked up on a charge of practicing without a license, unlawfully wearing the United States uniform and failing to report that Doane's case was contagious.

Private John D. Hughes, Company E, Second Louisiana volunteers, was shot and killed by Private Joseph Buckley of the same company. The trouble began in a trivial quarrel. Buckley threatened to kill Hughes. Hughes paid no attention to the threat, but Buckley proceeded to another camp, secured a rifle and cartridge, returned to Buena Vista, waited for his opportunity and shot Hughes through the heart, killing him instantly.

Buckley then surrendered to Captain Hernandez, officer of the day, and was conveyed to Camp Quemados, where he was placed under guard. When questioned about the murder he said he was not drunk, but had killed Hughes deliberately. Buckley, who is a New Orleans man, had a bad reputation before his enlistment. This is said to be his third homicide.

TO UNSEAT FORMER SOLDIERS.

Contests For Seats in the Coming West Virginia Legislature.

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Jan. 9.—The legislature will assemble next Wednesday and party leaders are already here for the preliminary work in the organization of that body. Although the balloting for a successor to Senator Faulkner does not begin until Monday, Jan. 23, two weeks hence, the most important action, affecting the senatorship as well as both parties in the state, will be taken within the next three days.

The legislature is so close politically that its control will depend upon its organization, as that will carry with it the probable settlement of contested seats. Among these contests are two for the seats of Republican members who served in the army during the Spanish war. Although they did not resign the Democrats elected members in their places and have entered proceedings in the courts to secure the seats.

Pullman to Be Free Town.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—The Pullman Palace Car company accepted the decision of the supreme court of Illinois sustaining the contention of Attorney General M. T. Maloney. The Pullman company has instructed its attorneys to close the suit. Thus will end as a feudal institution the town of Pullman. Its churches and schools, its hotel, its magnificent Arcade hall, the market house, the public library and 2,000 brick residences will be sold to the highest bidder. The Pullman Iron and Steel company will be reorganized. The brick works will pass from the control of the company.

Hon. Reuben Goodrich Dead.

TRAVERSE CITY, Mich., Jan. 9.—Hon. Reuben Goodrich died here, aged 79. He was appointed by President Lincoln receiver of the United States land office. He was removed by President Johnson for political reasons, but again appointed by President Grant, when he served eight years. He left a widow and two children.

Alexander Bradford Upshaw Dead.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Alexander Bradford Upshaw is dead, aged 48 years. He was a native of Holly Springs, Mass., has been connected with the Nashville American, was appointed commissioner of Indian affairs in 1889 by Secretary Lamar and was afterward Calvin S. Brice's political and business manager in Ohio.

GOT AWAY WITH SHOES

Women Succeeded In Robbing a Merchant.

WORKED A NEAT LITTLE PLAN

It Was Carried Out to Perfection—One Looked For a Pair of Overshoes While the Other Selected What She Wanted and Escaped Undetected.

A case of shoplifting occurred in the city Saturday evening.

Early in the evening two women entered the store of W. H. Gass, and one of them stated that she wished to purchase a pair of rubbers, and the other woman said she would wait while her friend secured the overshoes. The clerk then turned and began selecting a pair of overshoes and did not watch the woman who was waiting. After he had finished waiting on the woman the two women turned and went out of the store.

Shortly after they had left it was discovered that a pair of shoes was missing and as they had only been taken down from the shelf a short time before it was not a hard task to trace the theft to the women.

The proprietor of the store knows the parties, but does not wish to prosecute but will do so unless the shoes are returned at once.

POPULAR MUSIC.

Wonderful Hold It Has on the Public.

About five years ago, when "After the Ball," composed by Charles K. Harris, was announced it soon proved to be one of the most popular pieces that had ever taken hold of public fancy. Mr. Harris was originally a negro banjo player with a minstrel company, but the immense sale of his song set him on his feet, and he opened a great publishing house. While his other compositions have not appealed to the public as did "After the Ball," he has made some happy and profitable hits. "Cast Aside" was one, while "Break the News to Mother" is his latest. His success has led other composers to enter the field, and for a time Paul Dresser seemed to be running with him neck and neck. After his "Just Tell Them That You Saw Me" his "Banks of the Wabash" seemed to have favor with the singers. He has not written anything very popular of late, but composers such as the authors of "Bred in Old Kentucky" seem to have taken advantage of his inactivity, and we may look for a number of hits from their pens soon. At the time of these successes there have appeared a number of negro marches, of which Kerry Mills has made a tremendous success, "Georgia Campmeeting" proving even more popular than his "Rastus on Parade." It may be of interest to the lovers of this class of music to know that Mr. Mills has brought into the field a new march song entitled "Whistling Refus," which promises to find as much favor with the public as his former successes.

All productions of these popular authors can be found in the magnificent collection of sheet music at Smith & Phillips, Washington and Fourth streets.

All Went Sleighing.

NEW CUP CHALLENGER.

Sir Thomas Lipton Talks of His Yacht, the Shamrock.

WILL BE LARGER THAN VALKYRIE

The Yacht Will Grow Up In an Irish Shipyard After Metals and Materials Have Been Furnished by the Thorneycrofts—Will Be of Lighter Construction Than Dunraven's Boat of 1895—Very Large Sail Plan.

The Boston Herald of a recent date has the following cable from its Glasgow correspondent:

The other day I ran across Sir Thomas Lipton in Glasgow and had quite a pleasant chat with him, and it was only after being quite hard pressed that he cared to say anything about his new venture—the cup challenger—except that the Shamrock would ultimately grow up in the great shipbuilding yard of Harland & Wolff, Belfast, Ireland.

Sir Thomas Lipton came to this city on business and also for a pleasure trip and to enjoy the holidays and take a run to Fairlie for a crack with young Fife.

I asked Sir Thomas Lipton if the Shamrock would be built by the Thorneycrofts, and he gave me this reply:

"Well, hardly to the extent your question would seem to imply."

"Can you tell me, then, where the Shamrock will be built and launched?"

"You can say that the metals, fittings and other things needed in the metal line will be wrought into shape by Thorneycrofts. Then all the metal will be boxed up and shipped to Harland & Wolff's yard, Belfast, Ireland, where the Irish firm will build her. So, you see, she will be built on Irish soil and launched in Irish waters."

"Are you at liberty to speak of the Shamrock in a general way?"

"I am not, and being sharp in the hunt for the America's cup it is prudent that nothing be said about her, at least at this time."

"When do you expect the Shamrock will be launched?"

"All of us are in hopes that she will be afloat by mid-March, in time for an early trial."

"Have you decided on your skipper?"

"Yes, that important question has been thrashed out well. All possible contingencies have been considered, and Mr. Fife has made the tender to Captain Archie Hogarth, and he has accepted."

"What about having two skippers?"

"Oh, yes, that matter was also considered, and Fife says that it is absolutely necessary to have two good men to take charge of the ship, one to be the helmsman and chief and the other to look after the trim of sails and all other matters which need attention in working the Shamrock into her best form for the races. You see, this America's cup racing is a great affair nowadays, and he who goes into it must be prepared in all ways. Lord Dunraven found it necessary to have two skippers. Of course you must know that the Americans have had two skippers in the last three matches for the cup."

"Have you any objection to telling the American people the name of the second man?"

"None at all. Captain Ben Parker, who is now in charge of the German emperor's yacht the Meteor, is the man. Negotiations are in progress looking to the loan of Captain Parker for the cup race. The captain has raced in American waters and once sailed the Herreshoff boat, the 20 rater Isolda, very near to a sister boat of the Niagara. Both Hogarth and Parker are comparatively young men."

"Will the Shamrock do any racing on this side before leaving for New York?"

"Yes, it is my expectation and great desire that the Shamrock will be finished and ready to take part in the Thames matches which are to take place in early April. From the Thames we intend to do the round of British regattas to the Clyde, where the Shamrock will take part in the Clyde fortnight racing. After doing the Clyde we will cross over to Ireland and race it out there for a couple of regattas off Bangor, where the club's headquarters, the Royal Ulster, under which I challenge, are located. I intend to give prizes for the races in Irish waters."

"With the Ailsa, the Meteor and the Satanita under yawl rig the coming season, you will hardly have any suitable trial horse for comparison."

"The Valkyrie III will do the matches with us, as Mr. McCalmont will fit her out. This will be a great help, and we greatly appreciate the favor."

"Have you decided when the Shamrock will leave for America?"

"The exact day, no, but somewhere in the latter end of July, quite soon after the Bangor regatta is over. The Shamrock will sail from Belfast and will go out by the north of Ireland under yawl rig."

The reason given for setting up the Shamrock first by the Thorneycrofts is that they are superior metal workers and have had more experience in building light, strong vessels than anybody else, though Harland & Wolff always do first class work, but have not given the same attention to light metal work that the London firm has. Watson is aiding Mr. Fife in his effort to win back the cup and is giving him the benefit of his experience. Mr. Fife expects to save several thousand pounds of weight in the spars of the Shamrock as compared either with Valkyrie III or the Defender.

Captain Hogarth will be the head skipper, and he will insist on picking the crew, which will be as Scotch as the Thistle itself. He is a Port Bannatyne man and formerly raced the yachts Yvonne, the 20 rater Isolda after Ben Parker left her, and the 85 footer Caluna. Last season Hogarth raced the big Isolda, a Fife boat of 72 feet water line.

From authentic sources I learn that the Shamrock will have wholesome beam and will be larger than Valkyrie III and of lighter construction, of less displacement and more ballast. She will have a very large sail plan, the material for which is being made under special contract. Fife never took such an interest in any of his boats—in fact, he never had the free hand to do as he liked, regardless of expense.

Fife has not said much about the Shamrock, but those who know him best say that he goes into the America's cup matches with great confidence in himself and feels that he has designed the Shamrock strong in all around sailing. Young Fife, who has raced with Charlie Barr and Archie Hogarth, thinks that Archie is the better man of the two, and that he is Barr's master at a start. Young Fife is an expert helmsman and knows when a yacht is well sailed and cared for.

REMARKABLE LIFE SAVERS.

Department at Washington Receiving Many Queer Inventions.

The destruction of the City of Portland and other recent marine disasters have started the wheels going in the brains of more than one inventive crank. The department officials in Washington have been during the past few weeks flooded with all sorts of propositions for saving life at sea. These have been turned over to General Dumont, chief steamboat inspector. He has a separate file devoted to papers from persons who want the government to pay fancy prices for the privilege of owning useless and silly patents.

The other day a man wrote to the department at great length, telling of a new nonsinkable, self baling lifeboat, equipped with comforts and conveniences enough to keep a party alive at sea for an indefinite period. So confident was he in the virtues of his boat that he made the generous offer of letting a congressional committee test it. He proposed to drop them overboard some place on the ocean and let them drift around until picked up by a passing steamer. He protested that they would live as elegantly and as happily in his boat as in the best appointed hotel, even if they were not found for a month or more. It is needless to say that no congressmen volunteered to make a practical test of this craft.

Another man proposed that all steam ships hereafter be compelled to include in their equipment a battery of guns, with a magazine room full of shells containing oil. When overwhelmed by a storm and a rough sea, his plan was to fire the shells overboard so that they would explode about 500 yards distant, scatter oil about the water and thus calm the sea. Still another uncrowned Edison has drawn plans for a wonderful looking structure which he calls a life preserving tank with parachute attachment. His invention is portrayed in sky blue ink and shows his model undisturbed in a sea running mountains high and standing large steamships on end. A special network of wire is provided to protect the legs and feet of the passengers. The most wonderful part of his device was a parachute which trails along in the water behind the tank. The theory was that the wind would inflate the parachute and drag the tank along to shore.—Special St. Louis Republic.

Jonathan and John.

Should Jonathan and John fall out The world would stagger from that bout. With John and Jonathan as one The world's great peace will have begun.

With Jonathan and John at war The hour that havoc hangers for Will strike in ruin of blood and tears— The world set back a thousand years.

With John and Jonathan sworn to stand Shoulder to shoulder, hand by hand, Justice and peace shall build their throne From tropic sea to frozen zone.

When Jonathan and John forget The scar of an ancient wound to fret And smile to think of an ancient feud Which the God of the nations turned to good.

When the bond of common creed and speech And kindred binds them each to each And each in other's victories The pride of his own achievement sees—

How paltry a thing they both will know That grudge of a hundred years ago— How shall that bluish of wrath and blame In the blazonry of their common fame?

NEW HOME FOR SAILORS

Features of Proposed Building For Enlisted Men of Navy.

A BAR WITHOUT ANY LIQUOR.

The Home Will Be Built at Brooklyn Under the Young Men's Christian Association's Auspices—Physical, Intellectual and Moral Uplifting of Sailors Its Purpose.

Plans are under way for the erection in Brooklyn, on a site near the New York navy yard, of a building to cost at least $100,000 and to contain the very latest and best ideas obtained from experience in England and America designed to effect the physical, social, intellectual and spiritual uplifting of enlisted men in the United States navy. The plan also contemplates the erection of similar buildings, though perhaps not quite so large, in Boston, Newport, Norfolk, San Francisco and perhaps Manila and Havana. It still further contemplates similar social work for enlisted men in the United States army, the whole being a comprehensive movement in the direction of Christian work in both army and navy similar to that done in the British and French armies.

Those who are behind the project are members of the international committee of the Young Men's Christian association, working through its recently formed army and navy department, at the head of which subcommittee is Commodore J. W. Philip. The Brooklyn building is to be known as the "naval branch" and is selected because the New York navy yard is the highway between the entire United States navy and civil life.

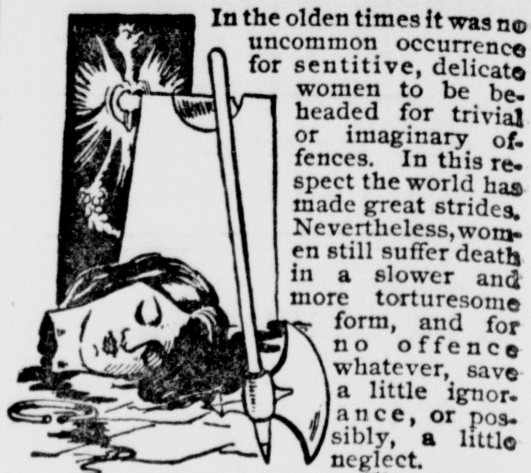

The building proposed for Brooklyn and the special ones talked of for Boston, Newport, Norfolk and San Francisco are to be exclusively for enlisted men in the navy. The army work is to take a little different form. The Brooklyn building will look not unlike a hotel and will be for the most part modeled after buildings devoted to a similar purpose, under charge of the famous Miss Weston, and located at Portsmouth and Devonport, in England. The chief features of its interior will be two. One of these will be the cabins. These are the rooms, but they will not be rooms exactly. They will more nearly resemble staterooms on ships, but will be separated with wire screens, so that each lodger will be by himself. They will be kept scrupulously clean, and the charge for them per night will be 10 to 20 cents. On this basis it is expected to make the branch self supporting when the building is provided for. The other feature will be the bar—yes, bar. It will be in a prominent room on the first floor and open to everybody—enlisted men and the public. It will look like a bar, and people will treat it as a bar. But it will have for sale nothing intoxicating.

This naval branch will have a library and reading room and small rooms for Bible classes, and also for educational classes. There are 12,000 men in the American navy, and with the completion of the new warships there will be perhaps half as many more. This Brooklyn building and also the Boston, San Francisco and other buildings are to be Young Men's Christian associations for sailors. But they will treat sailors as men, as all associations are coming to do more and more as the true spirit of religious effort comes to be better understood, not making the religious part too conspicuous, and yet never permitting it to be forgotten that the institution is a Christian one.

One of the results of the war with Spain is a movement to inaugurate systematic Christian effort for all enlisted men. The Young Men's Christian association sent Secretary William B. Millar to England, Scotland and France immediately after the protocol was signed and the work in New York slackened. Mr. Millar visited all of the institutions for enlisted men in the countries named and has recently returned home. His ideas the committee now propose to put into effect for the benefit of American enlisted men.

Contemplated work in the American army by the Young Men's Christian association includes an extension of that heretofore done. Twelve men are with the forces in Cuba, several are at Manila and three are in Porto Rico. Special attention is to be given to the work at camps that may be established, and in the permanent posts at Chicago, Fort Snelling, Fort Porter, Fort Warren, Fort Meyer and Fort Hamilton.

The work of the naval branch involves the organization of associations on each man-of-war. This has been done to some extent and with success. Tickets are sold to enlisted men at $6 a year; $4 of the $6 goes to the central committee to be divided among the 20 or more associations in seaboard cities, beginning at Portland, Me., and extending all around the coast to Seattle, Wash. Membership tickets held by these naval men are good in any association they happen to visit in these cities. The other $2 goes to the local association on board the ship. A chief thing attained by these ship associations is a chaplain. The United States government provides a chaplain on ships carrying a certain number of men. Those carrying fewer have no chap-

In the olden times it was no uncommon occurrence for sensitive, delicate women to be headed for trivial or imaginary offences. In this respect the world has made great strides. Nevertheless, women still suffer death in a slower and more tortuous form, and for no offence whatever, save a little ignorance, or possibly, a little neglect. The woman who suffers from weakness and disease of the distinctly feminine organs, whether she realizes it or not, is being slowly but surely tortured to death. She suffers almost continually with sick headache. She has pains in the back, what she calls "stitches" in the side and shooting pains everywhere. She experiences burning and dragging down sensations. She becomes weak, nervous and despondent. She neglects her home, and is petulant with her husband. If she consults the average physician, there is not one chance in ten that he will hit upon the real cause of her trouble. He will attribute her bad feelings to stomach, liver, heart or nervous trouble. A woman in this condition should consult some eminent and skillful specialist who has had a wide experience. Dr. R. V. Pierce, for thirty years chief consulting physician to the Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., has, with the assistance of a staff of able physicians, prescribed for many thousands of women. He has invented a wonderful medicine for ailing women, known as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It has stood the test for thirty years. It acts directly on the delicate and important organs concerned in wifehood and motherhood, making them strong and well. It allays inflammation, heals ulceration, soothes pain and tones and builds up the nerves. It transforms weak, nervous women into healthy, happy wives and mothers.

"I was an invalid for over a year with change of life," writes Mrs. C. Smith, of Orr, Cascade Co., Mont. "Had pains across the pit of my stomach and such extreme weakness I could hardly walk. I took one bottle of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and five of his 'Favorite Prescription' and am entirely well."

All East Liverpool People Have to Do Is to Follow the Example of Fellow Citizens.

Facts are stubborn. Some may be disputed. None can be disproved. A fact is the opposite of fiction. It is always hedged about with proof; Has to stand the test of investigation; Or it drifts to the realm of doubt. Investigate closely the following: The closer the scrutiny the more convincing the result.

An East Liverpool citizen speaks here: Speaks from experience and conviction: Relates facts—stubborn facts.

That may be disputed but cannot be disproved.

Mrs. Wm. Dunn, of 102 Sixth street, says: "Doan's Kidney Pills did for me what none of the doctors could do. They told me I had gravel and a little relief was all I could expect. I suffered terribly for two or three years, alternately better and worse, with severe pains across the small of my back and up my sides, particularly my right side. The pains were so severe that I was often obliged to stay in bed, not being able to get up. My limbs swelled so I could hardly walk, and periodically I was taken with such severe pains through the groins that I could hardly stand it. The doctors advised hot applications and gave me bottle after bottle of medicine, but I did not receive any real benefit until I procured Doan's Kidney Pills at the W. & W. Pharmacy. Having seen them so highly recommended by others, I took them and am gratified to say that they helped me almost at once."

Another Tribe of African Dwarfs. The German colonists of Africa have recently discovered another tribe of dwarfs. They dwell in what is called the hinterland of Kamerun, are of a dark brown color, and none of the adults are more than three feet high. # ASSAULTED BY A MAN

After Being Induced to Go to the Lower Reservoir.

A MOST PECULIAR INCIDENT

The Stranger Asked the Lad to Deliver a Note, and Accompanying Him to a Point on the Hill Choked Him Into Unconsciousness.

One of the most fiendish and peculiar crimes ever reported to the police was committed in the city Saturday afternoon.

Early Saturday afternoon as the nine year old son of a prominent resident of the city, who had been taking a drawing lesson, was returning home along Fifth street he was accosted by a strange man who said: "Sonny you have got gum boots on and are just the boy I want to deliver a note for me up at Huston's." The boy replied that he didn't know where Huston's residence was, but the man offered him 25 cents and said he would show him the house, as he was going up there. The boy asked him why he didn't deliver the note himself, and the man answered that there was a ditch to cross and he didn't want to get his feet wet.

The man then started with the boy and walked up Kossuth street to College, thence along College street to Robinson street, then went up to Thompson avenue and then cut across the fields until they reached the reservoir. They went along the fence until they had reached the corner, and then went along the southside of the fence until they had almost reached the other end and the boy said: "I wonder if the water works gate is open." The man then choked him until he was unconscious and left him lying in the snow, and again made his way to the city.

The boy when he regained consciousness made his way home and told the story to his parents who at first thought it was a boy's story, but the ice and snow was frozen hard on his coat indicating that he was in the snow for some time, while on his throat were the imprint of a thumb and four fingers.

The father of the boy yesterday afternoon started out to see if he could follow the tracks of the boy and man, and with a friend went to Thompson hill where they had no trouble in finding the tracks in the field. The boy had walked in a straight line, while his companion, who wore a pointed shoe, had followed a zig-zag course. At the corner of the reservoir the evidence that a struggle had taken place was very apparent, and the place where the boy lay was clearly outlined in the snow.

The boy is far-sighted, and stated that when he came too and started down the hill he saw the man running across the bridge. He describes his assailant as being of medium height with reddish brown hair and brown eyes and his face was covered with pimples. He was well dressed, and had a white flower in his button hole, and wore a brown overcoat and a brown stiff hat and a pair of dark tan shoes.

There seems to be little doubt that the man intended to choke the boy until he was unconscious and then throw him into the reservoir, but was foiled in his attempt as the gate of the reservoir was locked. What the fellow meant by his fiendish actions is a mystery.

The affair was reported to the police, and they will make every effort to capture the man.

DISCREET M'KEEVER

He Jumped From the Sleigh and Allowed the Horse to Go.

Last night William McKeever went sleighriding, but did not have the usual good time.

He had gone but a short distance when the animal began to kick. McKeever got out of the sleigh. The horse ran down Franklin street and cut across into Seventh street and struck a fence. It then turned and ran down the pavement and struck a telephone pole where it left the sleigh and ran to the livery stable.

The Spanish Oath.

In Austria a Christian witness is sworn before a crucifix between two lighted candles, and, holding up his right hand, says, "I swear by God, the Almighty and All Wise, that I will speak the pure and full truth, and nothing but the truth, in answer to anything I may be asked by the court."

Jewish witnesses, while using the same words, add to their solemnity by placing their hands on the page of a Bible on which is printed the third commandment.

A Belgian witness swears to be veracious in these words, "I will speak the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth; so help me God and all the saints."

The Spanish oath is more elaborate. The witness, kneeling on his right knee, places his hand on the sacred book, and, being asked by the judge, "Will you swear to God and by those holy gospels to speak the truth to all you may be asked?" answers, "Yes, I swear." Thereupon the judge says, "Then, if thus you do God will reward you, and if not will require of you." In some parts of the country the ceremony is different. The witness forms a cross by placing the middle of his thumb on the middle of his forefinger, and, kissing his thumb—a practice which would probably be very familiar to some English witnesses—exclaims, "By this cross I swear!"—Law Notes.

The Ruling Passion.

A celebrated musical critic was recently married in church, and after the ceremony, as the wedding procession marched down the aisle, the organist played the wedding march from "Lohengrin." When near the door, the bridegroom stopped in the march and addressed the wondering assembly thus: "I know I am committing a breach of etiquette as well as propriety in doing this, but I am not to blame. It is my mental organization which has become inebriatedly sensitive by reason of the critical nature of my duties."

Then he drew from the pocket of his dress coat a well thumbed copy of the score of "Lohengrin." Opening it at the march, he went over to the organist and said:

"What offended my ear was the fact that in the seventeenth bar of the da capo passage you flatted very badly, and in the andante movement you slurred the appoggiatura. Now," putting his finger upon the passage, "let us try that again."

Once more the organ pealed forth, and this time the player, conscious that the great critic was listening to him, accomplished his duty with credit to himself and to the great satisfaction of the critic.—Pick Me Up.

Making It Effective.

"I'll give you 30 days in the work-house," said the judge. "I ought to give you six months."

"Thanks for the clemency," said the culprit.

"No clemency at all, I assure you. I am afraid if you staid that long you might get used to it and not mind it."

Rev. Dr. Edward B. Coe of New York the Choice of Mr. Dwight.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Yale's president is to be the Rev. Dr. Edward Benton Coe, if he may be persuaded that it is his duty to become president of Yale.

President Dwight wishes to have him as a successor, the clergy admire him, the laity know that he is excellent. But he said:

"I have not heard from the university that this great honor is to be offered to me. I cannot imagine what gave a reason for saying that it was to be presented to me. If it were offered to me would I accept it? I cannot tell. I do not know. I do not wish to be troubled in advance by an event that may, after all, not happen."

Rev. Edward Benton Coe is the senior minister of the Collegiate church, and in the 20 years of his service in the church at Fifth avenue and West Forty-eighth street he had only ardent adherents.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 9.—It is the expectation that the peace treaty will be reported on Wednesday to the senate and also that some of the appropriation bills will be brought in toward the close of the week. Immediate consideration will be asked for the appropriation bills, but it is possible that the beginning of the debate upon the treaty may be postponed until next week.

There is an effort on foot among the opponents of the treaty to have it discussed in open session, but the indications are against such a course.

HOBSON'S NEW RECORD

JUST HOW THE LIEUTENANT DID IT

Some Women Who Wanted to Shake Hands Changed Their Minds and Kissed. Men Cheering—Eccentricity of the Headgear of the Fair Sex Caused Recourse to Strategy—He Finished In Good Form.

Say that I am old and sad.
Say that health and wealth have missed me.
Say I'm poor, but also add—
Hobson kissed me!

—Ballad of an Ancient Dame, A. D. 1900.

Lieutenant Richmond P. Hobson, promoter of the gentle art of kissing, was kissed just 163 times the other night on the stage of the Auditorium in Chicago. A cold blooded man kept tab and volunteered the further information that several women scored twice. This lip exercise occupied three-quarters of an hour and was witnessed by 4,000 persons. Lieutenant Hobson finished in good form, though the same cannot be said for several of the women.

The kissing climax came at the end of Lieutenant Hobson's desultory talk on naval affairs off Santiago during the recent war. He talked under the auspices of the paval reserve and the Press club. At the conclusion an invitation was extended to all who wished to meet the hero to walk in line upon the stage. Almost the whole audience formed in line.

The first woman to place her lips beneath the mustache was Mrs. Thomas Dewerson Knight, the second her sister. They are daughters of ex-Governor Towle of North Carolina. Hobson looked down the long line and saw it thicken with women. He braced himself into an easy position, where his equilibrium was safe in case of an unexpected or forcible attack from heavy craft, and dealt out his good things in a quick, business like manner.

The lieutenant was quiet and gentlemanly in action. The women extended their right hands, which he grasped with the right hand that sent the Merrimac to the bottom. Back would go a woman's head, her eyes would look into his and then he would bend over and plant a smack directly on her lips. Then a goody shake of the little hand and the little woman passed along murmuring, "Oh, isn't he lovely!"

The eccentricity of headgear interfered somewhat with the success of the business. The lieutenant was occasionally compelled to dive low and bob up beneath the widespreading hats. Again, the agitation of the women precluded the possibility of exercising the tactical knowledge he possesses. They waited not, but rushed in, striking him on the nose, between the eyes and in the mouth with the protruding front of their elaborate millinery creations. Once or twice he was noticed to halt an enthusiastic worshiper, gently tilt her hat backward, kiss her, place the hat back in place and send her on her way rejoicing.

Lieutenant Hobson appears to be thoroughly drilled in his part. He loses no time. There are no lingering osculations—just plain, brotherly kisses. He knows his duty, and he does it like a man. He cuts off mushy conversation by speeding the parting and welcoming the coming. He does not say "Next," but means it.

Occasionally women shook hands with him who had determined not to kiss him, but temptation overcame them, and at the last moment they furnished amusement by relenting, turning back and taking what was theirs without the asking. The general salutation was: "Lieutenant, I have read so much about you. Oh, I'm happy to meet you!" and the naval hero was ready for the next. Meanwhile the crowd of men shouted cheers of encouragement—"Don't weaken, lieutenant!" "Kiss them to a standstill!" and other like remarks, punctuated with yells and shrill whistling.

Lieutenant Hobson in his talk did not dwell at any length on his own exploit in sinking the Merrimac. He told how well the Spanish treated him, how he was released and how he hoped the war would result in a great and powerful navy for the United States. He complimented the Spanish on their bravery and Illinois upon the record of her sons on land and sea. His voice was not quite strong enough to be heard with advantage in the big Auditorium, but he acquitted himself with much credit. —Special New York World.

UNION PAPERS.

All Union papers of East Liverpool are known to the various craft and unions of the city by the printing of the above Union Labels at the head of their columns

THE Democrats, who have been hoping Admiral Dewey could be induced to carry their flag during the next campaign, are disconsolate. The admiral's relatives say he has not voted for almost half a century, but he is a Republican.

FAST driving is a nuisance at any time, but it is much more to be condemned in winter. No one would complain if Liverpool was provided with a speedway, but when its level streets are not long the police should see that pedestrians are not imposed upon.

THE whole country hears with regret of the illness of Mr. Dingley. He has for years been a prominent figure in congress and his work for the Republican party has been conscientiously carried out. His retirement at this time would be unfortunate, since he is a strong man, a leader with influence.

THERE is no reason to believe that Uncle Sam will not quickly whip the Philippine insurgents into submission if he decides that peace can be secured in no other way. Spain had Aguinaldo soundly thrashed before Admiral Dewey sailed into Manila bay, and what Spain has done in the way of fighting, this country can do with little difficulty.

GAMBLING.

Mayor Bough deserves warm commendation for his battle against gambling and gambling in East Liverpool. The curse of gaming is a fearful one when it takes possession of the heart and life of a human being, and is second only in its debasing power and evil influence to the curse of the rum or alcohol habit. They are twin devils, magic powers in the hands of Satan, and annually carry thousands down to disaster, death and hell. Old men, middle aged men and young men of East Liverpool are victims to the gaming habit, and it is high time that our law abiding citizens should awaken to a knowledge of the fact. More than one business man of this city is in the toils and embrace of this monster of chance. Many young men in our midst are taking lessons out of this devil's book, and the lessons thus taught surely unfit them for legitimate business and render them dangerous as employees for positions of trust and honor. Prominent merchants, all over the land, have had this fact demonstrated to their sorrow and financial loss, and local business men will do well to see that they have no gamblers in their employ. As for the professional gamblers and proprietors of gambling halls, they are simply law breakers, outlaws and criminals, unfit to associate with and to be avoided by every honest man or woman. The gambling halls must cease their nefarious work in this city. Every honest, right-minded and good citizen will commend and sustain our chief magistrate in his war against the gambling dens. Finally, there is gaming and gaming. Turn on the light.

Again Shows Great Courage.

Dewey's desire to return to the United States shows that either he has not been kept informed as to the Hobsonizing process or that he is even a braver man than has been supposed.—Chicago Record.

ASKED TO BE LOCKED UP

They Were Accommodated and Evidence Developed.

BREWERY HAD BEEN ROBBED

So They Were Held on Suspicion—Two Boys, Arrested For Stealing Umbrellas, Were Fined—The Amount Was Paid and They Were Released.

John Purpuri and Edward Hoover went in Mayor Bough's office Saturday afternoon and said to that official they desired to be locked up just for fun. The mayor was busy at the time and when they told him they lived in the city they were told to go home. They were very drunk, and in their top pockets were several dried herrings. Chief Johnson saw the men as they were going out, and upon hearing their desire accommodated them and put them behind the bars. The men were on their way to East Palestine, where they said they worked.

A hurried conference between the mayor and Chief Johnson then took place. The latter went to the Purpuri home in the Jolly property back of the Thomas knob factory, and in a coal house found a small keg said to contain porter, and taken from the Greenwood brewery, and a dishpan filled with string sausage, the property of William Clay, a butcher in West Market street. The articles were taken to city hall where they are being kept. These goods were stolen Friday night, and a suspicion rests upon those now in custody.

Those who robbed the brewery gained an entrance by breaking a window. The sausage was taken from a stand in front of Clay's store. The men have no charge against them as yet, but will probably have one this evening, although the men do not know why they are being held.

Frank Langley, aged 15 years, and Thomas McGuire, aged 11 years, were arrested Saturday afternoon by Officer McMillan. They were taken to jail and put in cell No. 2, where they remained until this morning when they were released after their parents arranged the payment of fines and costs amounting to $19.40 in each case. The boys were passing the store of A. S. Young Saturday and took two umbrellas from a lot standing in front of the store. A charge of larceny was placed against them by Mr. Young, who had the stolen property returned to him.

Sidney Burrows and Thomas Boyd were enjoying themselves near the Golding flint mill office yesterday afternoon by yelling like Indians. Officer Mahony gathered them in, and this morning the mayor asked each for $9.60. They could not pay and are still in jail. Boyd would not have been arrested had he left city hall when Chief Johnson wanted him, but instead he started to argue the case, which caused his arrest.

Yesterday Chief Johnson had a sign pasted on the jail door which read: "Officers will not allow any one to see prisoners today." It had reference to the people who were arrested Saturday.

No complaints were made about the fast driving yesterday and no arrests have been made as a result of any complaints.

The officers are now working on several cases which will make interesting reading when published. They will not talk about them at present.

MOTION TO QUASH

Will Be Filed in the Pryor Case This Afternoon.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—[Special]—The will of James H. Ford, late of Liverpool, has been admitted to probate, and Louis Ford appointed executor. No bond required. The appraisers are J. J. Kerr, W. K. Gaston and J. F. McGarry.

W. B. Chamberlain, executor of the estate of Jacob Chamberlain, of Palestine, has given an additional bond of $2,400 to secure the proceeds arising from sale of real estate.

John McVicker has filed a petition against E. Arter asking $430.38, due on a note secured by mortgage on 151 acres in Center township.

W. G. Steele, as assignee of William Steele, has instituted proceedings against William Steele, the parish of Trinity church, Lisbon, to quiet and perfect title to lot 161 in Lisbon.

Court convened at 10:30 this morning. A motion for a new trial in the case of Wing & Evans against Specialty Glass company was allowed.

In the Pryor murder case an application will be made this afternoon for leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty and to plead to the indictment. It is understood a motion will be made to quash the indictment on the ground that the grand jury was not properly drawn.

A marriage license was issued to David Weaver and Henrietta Akelson.

TWO JURIES.

They Were Drawn From the Wheel This Morning.

LISBON, Jan. 9.—[Special]—The grand and petit juries for the next term of court were drawn this morning. They are as follows:

Calvin, Samuel Huston, Middleton; Nelson Burrow, Robert Yates, Hanover; David Firestone, Fairfield; James Williamson, St. Clair; W. H. De Rodes, Elkrun.

DIED SUDDENLY

C. B. Simms Passed Away Saturday Night, Aged 53 Years.

Claybourne B. Simms died Saturday night at his home in Lincoln avenue from heart trouble, aged 53 years.

Deceased had been a resident of the city for many years and was very well and favorably known. Two sons, Richard and Charles, are left to mourn his loss. The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 1 o'clock from the home of his brother, B. C. Simms, Reverend Crawford officiating. Interment will be private. The friends of the deceased may view his remains at the residence of his brother between the hours of 7 and 9 this evening, and 9 and 11 tomorrow morning.

On San Juan Hill.

All is now still on San Juan hill,
And over El Caney's ground
Soft shadows float and the wood dove's note
Is the only living sound.
The palm trees stand in a dreamlike land,
And the hot winds faint and die
On the tasseled mass of the guinea grass
And the coffee bushes dry.

The tufted mirth of the patient earth
And the mystery of the trees
Are ever the same, and the war's red flame
Disturbs not the dream of these.
The trenches, ablaze through the dreadful days,
Lie bleached in the tropic sun,
And the smell of death with the stifling breath
Of the battle is passed and done.

But memory stands with outstretched hands
Alone on that alien shore.
Where the graves are made, her feet are staid—
Staid never to wander more.
Forever she stands with outstretched hands,
Her white brow bound with yew,
And over the walls of the hills she calls
And over the sea's wide blue.

Her cry is the cry of the bended sky
And the cry of the voiceless clay,
And the soundless deeps where nature keeps
The mystery of her sway.
Not a breeze but brings on its rushing wings
Her message again and again—
"They carried the height in as brave a fight
As was ever fought by men."
—Robert Burns Wilson in New York Sun.

Hobson Waltz Now.

It is now the Hobson waltz. The Atlanta girls were the ones to start the Hobson waltz, and they came very near waltzing the nation's hero to a frazzle. It was at the Capital City club, and Hobson was the lion of the occasion. Like all army and navy men, he is a perfect waltzer. When the dancing began and Hobson asked one of the girls to dance, he came very near sealing his doom. The word went round that So-and-so had danced with Hobson. Before he had had a breathing spell he was whirling around with another fair young woman. Panting for breath, he continued to dance until almost exhausted.—Special New York World.

Holds the Record as a Mail Handler.

W. H. Patton of Chattanooga, a postal route agent on the Chattanooga and Rome division of the Southern railroad, broke the record recently in an examination. He handled 10,815 cards, distributing them to postoffices in Georgia, Alabama, Tennessee, Kentucky, Virginia and Mississippi, in five hours and 27 minutes, with only 19 errors. His percentage was 99.89 out of a possible

100. Chief Clerk Welch says this beats the world's record, and is the best ever made in an examination either in the United States or England.—Memphis Commercial Appeal.

Blind Devotion.

The blind devotion with which an old servant did his duty was illustrated on one occasion when his master had a dinner party. During the dinner Henry was very nervous and made two or three blunders.

His master showed his annoyance and cast angry glances at his servant, but the poor man could not settle quietly to his work.

At last, when the dessert had been placed quietly on the table, he stole timidly behind his master's chair and said:

"Please, sir, can you spare me now? My house has been on fire for the last hour and a half!"—London Answers.

NO CHANGE IN STRIKE

Not a Car Passed Over the Street Railway.

NOTICE SENT TO ALL THE MEN

Asking Them to Call at the Office and Receive What Money Is Due Them—Motormen Attended Services Yesterday—Board of Arbitration Notified.

There is no change in the strike of street railway men other than that the state board of arbitration has taken the matter in hand and are making inquiries.

This morning Mayor Bough received a telegram from Joseph Bishop, secretary of the board, asking if there was a strike on the line here. The mayor answered, giving the facts, and it is probable the board will come here to investigate and do what it can to bring about a settlement. The board of arbitration is composed of President Selwyn N. Owen, Columbus; Secretary Joseph Bishop, Columbus; John Little, Xenia.

The only other matter of importance affects every motorman. Saturday night each one received a notice to call at the office and turn over what property of the company he had, receiving the money due him to the time of quitting. In speaking of the matter Mr. Healy said:

"The motormen left the service of the company voluntarily and they are no longer considered by us as employees. We owe them money for their services and they have property of the company in their possession. Our notice to them is a request that they call for the money due them and return the company's property."

"Before making any effort to operate our cars we wish to offer the positions available to residents of East Liverpool and Wellsville. If after a reasonable time we are not able to secure the services of local men we will be compelled to employ others."

The motormen attended services yesterday morning at the Second U. P. church. Rev. J. R. Green delivered an excellent sermon on "I have written what I have written." A meeting was held this morning, but the action taken was not made public.

Mr. Bishop Ill.

Mayor Bough this afternoon received a telegram from Secretary Bishop, of the state board, announcing that he was ill, but would be here as soon as he recovered.

IN THE CHURCHES.

Revival Services in Progress at First M. E. Church.

At the First M. E. church yesterday morning a large congregation assembled to hear Dr. Clark Crawford deliver an excellent sermon on "Faith." Revival services were held in the church last week, and 19 persons confessed conversion. Two were added to the list yesterday morning. The services last evening were interesting and impressive, eight other persons professing conversion. The church was crowded, hundreds of persons being turned away.

No services were held at the First Presbyterian church yesterday because of the illness of Doctor Lee. It was the intention to have services during this week, but the illness of the pastor prevented it. Miss Bossard, a singer of merit from Delphos, came here to take part in the meetings. She sang beautifully for the Endeavorers last night.

Prof. O. S. Reed being out of the city no preaching services were held at the Christian church. Other services were held as usual.

The revival services being conducted by Amanda Smith at the African M. E. church are being very largely attended, and last evening the church was crowded to its capacity. Commencing tomorrow at 2:30 o'clock an afternoon service will be held in the First M. E. church, and in the evening the usual meetings will be held at the African M. E. church.

Large audiences attended services at the First U. P. church yesterday. Doctor Taggart occupied the pulpit and delivered strong sermons.

Reverend Weary at St. Stephen's church last night preached on "Sanctification" to an interested audience.

The largest congregation that has been in the Methodist Protestant church since the days of Evangelist Isaac Naylor, two years ago, was seen last evening. Rev. Swift preached an interesting and instructive sermon, using for his text Mark x:49. The speaker impressed upon his hearers that all were blind, and unless they arise and go as they are called, then life will be in total darkness.

SOME LEADING QUESTIONS.

Good Citizens of East Liverpool Will Make Answer.

The following questions have been handed to a representative of the News Review, with the request that they be accorded space in this paper. They are of decided interest to many residents of East Liverpool:

"Parents, will your son be made a better man and more worthy citizen by his association with gamblers and by visiting gambling dens of any class or character?"

"Business men, when you are looking for an employe, one to whom you desire to entrust important business interests, requiring earnest effort and application of full intelligence and brain power, wide-awake and indefatigable in the pursuance of keen legitimate business traits, will you seek for him inside of or at the door of a saloon or in the inner circle of a poker or gambling joint or den?"

"Mothers, ye who love your daughters with a love second only to that which the Savior has for sinners, will you give fitting expression to that love by permitting your daughters to keep company and associate with young men who are known to be visitors to the saloons and gambling halls of East Liverpool?"

"Voters of East Liverpool, fathers, brothers, husbands and sons; ministers of the gospel and laymen in the pews; good and law-abiding citizens; professed followers of the Lord and Savior, will you continue to cast your ballots for men who advocate, uphold and sustain the saloon and the gambling hell?"

"One and all thus questioned. Will you make answer now as you will wish you had done when in the presence of the righteous Judge?"

A JANITOR

Will Be Elected Tonight For the Third Street School.

The board of education will meet in regular session in the directors' room at the Central building this evening at 7:30 o'clock.

A large number of bills are to be paid, and a janitor for the Third street school will be selected. Not much other business is to be transacted and no committees, except that on pure water, are to report.

COLD AT CITY HALL.

The Lock Is Broken and the Main Door Is Open.

A lock should be placed on the large door opening into the hall at city hall. Several days ago the lock was broken and since that time the entire building has been cold. The court room on the first floor cannot be heated under the existing conditions, and the only room that is warm in the building is Clerk Hanley's office.

Make it an Investment.

Your printing bills are oftentimes an item of expense. Why not make them an investment by getting your printing at the News Review. Good material and up-to-date workmanship will serve as an excellent trade-drawing magnet. The other kind will not.

The Smoky Chimney.

In the designing and construction of houses it has always been the especial fad of Mr. Willis Polk, architect, to build a roomy fireplace, where great logs can burn, and he has always plumed himself on the fact that the fireplaces never fail to draw.

When he erected his bachelor bungalow at Tiburon, the fireplace was the chief pride and glory of the establishment. He told his friends about the solid comfort he enjoyed sitting before the blazing logs, and to still further arouse their envy Polk one night gave a party.

To his infinite chagrin, the chimney smoked abominably and the bungalow was filled to stifling. After they had thoroughly guyed the disconsolate Willis the disgusted guests went home to cough it off.

Next day Polk made a careful examination of chimney and hearth, satisfied himself that everything was now as it should be and then gave another party. That abominable chimney again spoiled it all. It smoked and smoked. Willis was in despair, but the next day it was all right again. At intervals after that Polk entertained friends, and he found that the fireplace never drew when he had company, although at other times it worked perfectly. So he set a little trap, which finally solved the puzzle. It was a little cracker box, placed over the top of the chimney, which caused all the trouble.

Some of his friends had thus thoroughly covered up the chimney every time the young architect had planned an entertainment.—San Francisco News Letter.

Opium.

Like most of nature's products opium is classified in grades. The growers of India, in white turbans and gowns, sit in the blazing sun waiting for their opium to be sorted, when they go to market. The unripe poppy seed pod has been cut into five times and the milky sap dried in the sun and kneaded into cakes, the best of which are covered with dried leaves, and thus brought to market.

Opium of the first class must be tough, smooth and a rich brown shade, bitter to taste and strong of scent.

In 1892 54 per cent of the suicides in India were from the use of opium, and one statistician credits 90 per cent of the women suicides to the same drug. However, twelve-thirteenth of the opium of India is sent to China for smoking. During Victoria's reign the Chinese have paid into the British treasury for Indian opium $1,250,000,000.

The Chinese government does all in its power to check the opium habit, the punishments common in the Chinese army for this habit being extreme. For the first offense a man may have his upper lip cut, for the second he may be decapitated. For the last 60 years on an average a half ton of opium has been sent to China from India every hour.—Atlanta Constitution.

OYSTER HAD A QUEER CHUM

Live Fish Found Between Its Shells by a Cook.

The cook in the cafe in the New York Times building in New York was opening Rockaway oysters the other night. He gave a yell, dropped his knife and jumped away from the bar. As he had pried apart the shell of an exceptionally large specimen the oyster apparently jumped three feet from the shell and began flopping about the bar.

"Oh, Lord!" groaned one of the loungers. "My wife told me I'd see things if I didn't stop drinking. This is my finish."

"Shut up!" snapped a more observing one. "That's no oyster. It's a fish."

It was a sea bass, a little over two inches long and beautifully marked. It lay gasping on the bar. Somebody put it in a tumbler of water. It is supposed that while the oyster was feeding the bass swooped down on it, to be caught when the bivalve closed its shell. Thereupon it ate up the oyster.

STRUCK BY THE PONY

WHILE NEAR THOMPSON PLANT

He Is a Trackwalker Employed by the Railroad Company to Go Over the Line Between This Place and Dry Run, and Was Starting When Accident Happened.

Thomas Cochran, employed by the Cleveland and Pittsburgh company as track walker between this place and Dry Run, was seriously injured at the Thompson pottery this morning by being struck by the pony, in charge of Engineer Workman and Conductor Jordan, as it was entering the siding at that place.

Cochran had just started on his first trip, and was walking very close to the north rail of the siding. As he thought the pony was going east on the main track he did not change his path. The engine struck him in the legs knocking him down, and the bumpers struck him in the small of the back. The pony was stopped and the injured man, who lay as if dead, was taken to his home in Calcutta road by the patrol.

Doctor Noble, the company physician at Wellsville, was summoned and came to the city on the 7:57 train. An examination of the man proved that a number of bones were broken, and internal injuries sustained. This afternoon his condition was such that he will recover.

Such accidents as these are common on all roads, and are caused by people walking too close to the track. The space between the freight platforms is used by many people during the day as a thoroughfare, and that more accidents do not happen is something short of a miracle.

SNOW BALL BATTLES.

No One Was Hurt, but There Was Much Amusement.

Small boys and young men have taken advantage of the snow to indulge in snow ball battles wherever they believed they were free from the interference of the police. At times this was taken to include the Diamond, and Saturday evening a crowd engaged in the sport without injury to anyone, as passing pedestrians were not disturbed.

Sunday afternoon a tall man was vigorously assaulted by a crowd of small boys in West Market street. He became angry, but was compelled to retreat. A number of similar cases are reported.

BIG BRICK PLANT.

Will Be Built by Captain Porter and the Carnegie Company.

It is stated that Capt. John Porter, the brick manufacturer, has become associated with a number of officials of the Carnegie Steel company, and purchased a lot of valuable clay land at Port Homer. It is their intention to build the largest brick manufacturing plant in the country.

Mr. Porter was questioned about the matter yesterday and refused to deny or confirm the statement. Later developments show the story to be substantially true.

Packing Department Resumes.

The packing department of the Standard pottery will resume work tomorrow, after a two weeks' shut down. The firm has a large number of orders on hand and other departments will resume within a short time.

Escaped Serious Injury.

Dr. Bert George, yesterday afternoon while coming out of the Columbian club, slipped on the stairs and fell to the bottom. He was considerably shaken up by the accident but not injured.

Little Improvement.

Everson Macrum, who has been in the city for some time, is still ill at the home of his father, N. G. Macrum in Second street. His eyes continue to annoy him greatly.

George Potter Ill.

George Potter, of Avondale street, is suffering from a severe attack of the grip. He is unable to leave his room, although his condition is much improved today.

Professor Armstrong Here.

Prof. Gordon Armstrong, of the high school, who has been spending his vacation with relatives in the southern part of the state, returned to the city Saturday evening.

—E. A. Albright, of East Palestine, spent Sunday in the city.

JOHNSON'S NOSE PETRIFIED

Surgeon Finds a Klondiker Whose Nasal Organ Has Turned to Stone.

A man with a stone nose is the latest freak to turn up at the city dispensary in St. Louis. About 1 o'clock the other afternoon an individual giving his name as Joseph Johnson, 52 years old, walked into the office of Dr. Marc Hughes and applied for treatment. Pointing to his nose, he said there was something the matter with it, but he had not the slightest idea what it was. He said he could smell perfectly. Indeed his sense of smell, he declared, was abnormally good. Still he suspected something was wrong, because when he accidentally scratched it with a pin it was very hard and had no feeling.

The physician made an examination and found that his patient was suffering with hypertrophy of the nose, with analgesia. He was very much surprised, for it was the first well developed, chronic case he had ever seen, and he became deeply interested. While the patient sat in the chair Dr. Hughes got up and took down his medical books and compared the case to be sure of all its symptoms. The more he examined the more deeply interested did he become. All of the signs were present. The nose was dark, almost purple, and was extremely hard, like stone. While the patient could smell and realize when there was pressure upon it, he had not the slightest feeling in it.

The disease is a nervous affliction, and in cases so strangely developed as that of Johnson is incurable. The treatment is by electricity. As they had not the appliances in the office and as the case was incurable, the doctor dismissed his patient, directing him to some thoroughly equipped hospital. Joseph Johnson came from the north. He was formerly of Colorado, where he was a miner. During the gold fever he went to Klondike and came back last spring. This summer he spent fishing in the lakes of the north, and he came to St. Louis on a little fisherman's boat. Being very tired and worn, he stopped in the city and spent the night at the Salvation Army barracks. — New York Journal.

EARTH'S NEW MOTION.

French Scientist Explains Observed Variations in Latitudes.

From observations extending over a period of seven years M. Albrecht has demonstrated that the earth has a new movement in addition to the recognized 11. The twelfth movement is that of the terrestrial pole to the extent of 15 to 17 minutes per annum, giving rise to a slight variation of latitudes, which has been observed in all countries.

M. Albrecht attributes this displacement more especially to the variation of the equilibrium produced by the movement of the ocean's atmosphere. The newly discovered movement is supposed to have been a potent agent in affecting the relative distribution of land and water in the equatorial zone, which theory is corroborated by the actual state thereof. M. Albrecht says:

"One of the results of the change in the position of the polar axis and the variations of the intensities of centrifugal force on the equatorial zone would be that for points diametrically opposed the decrease in centrifugal force at one point would necessarily imply an increase at the opposite point, so that if a subsidence took place in one elevation it should be the result in the other, so that wherever the equator traverses land representing elevation it should be found traversing the ocean or low land at the opposite end of the diameter corresponding to this elevated land surface." — Paris Cablegram Chicago Inter Ocean.

A Regular Polygot.

A gentleman in a rural district drew down upon his head a storm of adverse criticism by marrying a second wife shortly after the demise of his first. Two of those good ladies who look generally upon the surface of things and who are ever ready with condemnation were discussing the disgraceful affair. "Why, my dear, there's his poor wife hardly cold in her grave, and he goes and marries another!" "Dreadful!" declared the other. "I never heard of such a thing." "I should think not indeed," went on No. 1 angrily. "Marrying wife after wife like that—why, the man's a regular polygot!" — Cornhill Magazine.

The Last of the Patches.

I was born in 1837, and I have personal recollections of a lady in the early forties using them. The curate of — lodged in a farmhouse contiguous to my father's place. His wife was a tall, fine, handsome woman, dressed in black when I first saw her, and had patches—"beauty spots" they were called—on her forehead, cheek (left, I think) and chin. I told my mother on returning home, and she replied they were "beauty spots" and "the fashion." I have a most vivid recollection of seeing her and her husband on the occasion. A handsomer couple you would rarely meet. — Notes and Queries.

West Virginia is twice as large as Massachusetts, twice as large as Maryland and as large as Connecticut, Rhode Island, Delaware, New Jersey and Vermont combined.

In proportion to its size, a fly walks about 85 times as fast as a man.

WONDERS OF LIQUID AIR

Strange Experiments Before American Chemical Society.

CHARLES E. TRIPLER'S EXHIBIT.

Copper Immersed in the Steaming Fluid Became Soft and Steel Grew Brittle as Glass—Immersed Rubber Ball Froze and Then Cracked—Audience Given a Cold Bath—Diamond Burned in Oxygen.

At the session of the American Chemical society in the College of the City of New York the other evening Charles E. Tripler gave an interesting demonstration of the manufacture and properties of liquid air. Among those present was Professor Raoul Pictet of Geneva, who was one of the first scientists to liquefy oxygen.

Great interest was manifested by the spectators in the extraordinary experiments made by Mr. Tripler. Several gallons of liquid air were brought into the laboratory, and Mr. Tripler sprinkled it over the crowd. The liquid, which is extremely cold to the touch, evaporated in a moment.

Curious effects of the liquid air on different metals were shown. Copper immersed in the steaming fluid in a few moments became soft. Steel grew brittle as glass and was easily broken. Mr. Tripler filled a tin cup with the liquid, gave the cup a squeeze, and it fell at his feet in fragments.

A piece of steel bicycle tubing plunged into the liquid and then struck with a hammer crumbled to pieces. A rubber ball dipped into liquid air froze white and hard, and when thrown to the floor cracked like an eggshell.

Whisky poured into a glass containing liquid air at 312 degrees F. froze in a few moments. Alcohol requires a temperature 200 degrees below zero to freeze it, but Mr. Tripler formed an icicle out of a glass of alcohol by pouring it into the extraordinary fluid.

To show the paradoxical nature of the liquid Mr. Tripler filled a teakettle with it and placed it on a lighted gas stove. Then he poured a glass of water into the kettle. As the heat of the stove increased the liquid air grew colder, until the water was taken from the kettle in the form of a lump of ice.

"This is the air we breathe, nothing less," said Mr. Tripler. "It is oxygen and nitrogen, and the nitrogen boils off first." He obtained pure oxygen by pouring the liquid from one glass to another to hasten evaporation. Then, placing some of the liquid in a rock salt cup he showed that oxygen gas is magnetic, the fluid attaching itself to a magnet overhead.

Professor R. Ogden Doremus, at the close of the session performed an interesting experiment by burning a diamond in liquid oxygen. He placed the diamond in a coil of platinum and passed an electric current through the coil until the diamond became white hot. Plunged into the liquid oxygen, the little gem burned away with a brilliant glow. — New York Herald.

RARE OLD BIBLE.

Volume Published by John Elliot, the Apostle to Indians, Found.

William W. Tooker of Sag Harbor has added to his collection of Indian relics an Eliot Bible. This rare book was translated into the Indian language and published by Rev. John Eliot, the apostle of the Indians of North America, in 1680.

The Bible is one of the very few of that edition in existence. It is prized highly by the collector of antiquities. The imprint shows the Bible to have been printed in Cambridge, "For the Right Honorable Corporation in London, for the propagation of the Gospel among the Indians in New England, in 1680."

The book is bound in heavy leather, and, considering its age, is well preserved. The Bible was found in the garret of a New Jersey farmer's house. — Special Philadelphia Press.

UNION LABELS.

It should be a deep-rooted principle of all union workmen and union sympathizers, and particularly those members of the different organizations of East Liverpool, to buy nothing but Union Label goods, in preference to all others. And why not? If we ask fair wages for our labor, why should we buy goods made at unfair wages by others? The Union Label in every industry is a guarantee of fair wages, decent working hours, and union labor employed.

PATRONIZE UNION CIGARS.

all members of the R. C. N. P. A. can show this card. Ask for it when making your purchases.

UNION MADE BOOTS AND SHOES.

The Boot and Shoe Workers' union is the national head of the trade, and is a new combination of all the branches of boot and shoe workers. The above trade-mark when found on the sole or lining of a boot or shoe is a guarantee that the same is made by union labor. Look for the above design stamped on the sole of every pair of boots or shoes you buy.

CUSTOM TAILORS' LABEL.

The Journeymen Tailor's Label is to be found in the inside of the breast pocket of the coat, on the under side of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants. It is printed in black ink on white linen.

UNION MADE HATS.

This Label is about an inch and a half square, and is printed on buff-colored paper. It is placed on every union made hat before it leaves the workman's hands. If a dealer takes a hat from one hat and places it in another, or has any detached labels in his store, do not buy from him, as his labels may be counterfeit, and his hats may be the product of scab or non-union labor.

UNION MADE CLOTHES.

You will find the linen label attached by machine stitching to the inside breast pocket of the coat, on the inside of the buckle strap of the vest, and on the waistband lining of the pants.

BICYCLE LABEL.

"Do unto others as ye would that others should do unto you." You will endorse "Golden Rule" by buying and riding bicycles bearing this Label. The colors are as follows: The Union shield is in red, white and blue on a background of pea green, bordered by gold. The Label will be placed on the upper front side of the tube that receives the seat post.

BLUR LABEL CIGARS.

This label is printed in black ink on light blue paper, and is pasted on the clear box. Don't mix it up with the U. S. revenue label on the box, as the latter is nearly of a similar color.

TOBACCO LABEL.

The above Label, printed on blue paper, will be found on all plug tobacco and on the wrappers of chewing tobacco manufactured in union tobacco factories.

UNION BREAD AND CRACKERS.

This is a full size facsimile of the Label of the Bakers' and Confectioners' union. It is printed on fine white paper and is pasted on each loaf of union-made bread. It is an evidence that the bread is made under fair and wholesome conditions, and in clean and healthy bakeries. Following is the confectioners' and cracker Label:

SOME TIME THIS WEEK

Trust Committees Will Finish Their Work.

ORDERS CONTINUE TO COME

One Letter of Instruction Tells Local Managers to Take Care of the Business and See That Customers in Need of Ware Are Not Neglected.

The time is rapidly approaching when the potteries of the city will be placed in operation and a great many people will be given employment, although the date for a general resumption has not been announced.

When the concerns who are now parts of the American Potteries company transferred their plants to the big corporation they were each provided with instructions for the manner in which the business was to be carried on until it was ready to deal with the details of operation. The instructions provided that as soon as the stock had been taken and the appraisement completed, the committees, appointed to check this work, would examine and make their report. Then the managers were to look into the state of their business, and use their judgment as to the time for starting, each one to use the greatest care in handling trade, not permitting those customers in need of ware to suffer because orders were not filled. There are four of these checking committees, and they have done an immense amount of work since their appointment. To Saturday night they had examined eight potteries, and found the stock taking in almost every instance correct. Occasionally they met with errors, but as a rule the card on the bin examined told just what that bin contained. It is a task of no mean proportions, but will in all probability be ended by Wednesday. The reports from these committees are compiled by the force of auditors under A. P. Talliaferro, who came here from New York several weeks ago. These gentlemen are hard at it, but still have a considerable amount of work on hand. The report from each plant must be compared with the books of the company operating that particular pottery before they are sent to New York.

The matter of a permanent injunction against the American Potteries company was listed for argument in the court of Judge Smith in Cincinnati today, but it is believed here a settlement will be reached before the case comes up. It is thought the willingness with which the attorney for Bell Brothers treated with the attorneys for the other side means a desire to arbitrate.

BEGAN TO FALL.

The River Reached Its Highest Point Yesterday.

At noon yesterday the river registered 21.9 feet at the wharf, and began falling. Last night it registered 18 feet at the same point. Considerable ice came from the Allegheny river during the day, but not enough to interfere with navigation. The following boats went down:

Ed Roberts, Mariner, Clifton, Advance, Raymond Horner, Cruiser, Twilight.

The John W. Allen and Fred Wilson came up light. The packets Ben Hur, Kanawha and Keystone State arrived last night, with good consignments of freight and passengers.

The Keystone and Ben Hur will be down tonight, and the Queen City is up tomorrow with the Kanawha down.

He was picked up and carried into a nearby store where restoratives were applied, and after about an hour he was able to be assisted to his home.

A MISTAKE IN THE BIRD MARKET.

A Persian in the market place
Longed for and so took home a wren.
Yes, his was but a common case,
Such always are the ways of men

Once his, the brown bird please him not.
Almost he wished it would take wing
He loosed the cage door and forgot
The dark, unsinging, lonely thing

Night came and touched with wind and dew
(Alone there in the dim moonshine)
A rose that at the window grew—
And, oh, that sudden song divine.

His children started from their sleep.
Their orient eyes with rapture lit.
Their pale young mother hid to weep
Their father did not care a whit.

He only heard the impassioned wail
From that small prison overhead.
"My wren is but a nightingale!"
"I'll wring its noisy throat!" he said.

WHAT A WORK IS MAN!

The Human Body the Most Wonderful Thing in the World.

Human beings are of all sizes, but the tall man is less common than the short. Only one in every 208 exceeds the height of six feet. For every foot of stature a man should weigh from 26 to 28 pounds, a proportion that is not the lot of all in these hurrying, scurrying days. An average sized man weighs 140 pounds; a woman 125 pounds. Curiously enough, the mean weight and height of lunatics are below those of sane people. Another unexpected thing in this respect is that a negro's skeleton weighs more than that of an Englishman.

The vitalizing power is the blood, a drop of which takes but 22 seconds to go the round of the body. There passes through the heart once every three minutes an amount of this precious fluid equal to all that is contained in the body. The mileage of the blood circulation reveals some astonishing and undreamed of truths. It is estimated that, assuming the average speed of the heart to be 69 beats a minute, the blood travels 207 yards in 60 seconds. In other words, 7 miles an hour, 168 a day or 6,320 per year.

If a man of 84 could have one single blood corpuscle floating in his blood all his life, it would have traversed in that period no less than 5,150,808 miles. The average weight of the brain of an adult male is 3 pounds 8 ounces, of a female 2 pounds 8 ounces. The woman's brain begins to decline in weight after the age of 30, the man's not till ten years later. According to high authorities the nerves, with their branches and minute ramifications connecting with the brain, exceed 10,000,000 in number.

The palms of the hands and soles of the feet are composed of cushions of fat, in order that sudden jolts and violent blows may be successfully resisted and no injury done to the muscles and bones underneath. The muscles—of which the tongue monopolizes 11—and bones of the human structure in combination are capable of more than 1,200 different motions.

The teaching of experience indicates that accidents are far more likely to occur to the right leg and arm than to the left. Further evidence of this fact is supplied by the makers of artificial limbs. They dispose of many more appendages to the right side of the body than to the other. Statistics show that in 54 cases out of 100 the left leg is stronger than the right.

If a man could move his legs proportionally as fast as an ant, he would travel not far from 800 miles an hour.—London Mail.

A Curious Case of Somnambulism.

The modern novelist is very prone to found his plots on the doings of sleepwalkers and hypnotists, but, as usual, "truth is stranger than fiction," and his efforts are outdone by actual occurrences. Here, for example, is a true story from France of a gentleman missing from his bedroom a packet containing more than £2,000 worth of bonds. The thief could not be traced, but shortly afterward the mistress of the house, who had taken the robbery to heart even more than her husband, was taken to a doctor, for she was suffering from nervous prostration.

The doctor, a firm believer in hypnotism, was told of the robbery and, putting two and two together, hypnotized his patient and extorted a confession from her that she had taken the bonds and buried them in the garden. There, upon search being made, they were found, but the lady is as yet quite ignorant of the fact that she herself was the person who hid them.—Chambers Journal

Where Early Planting Is Desirable.

"I tell a well meaning but perhaps not yet perfectly persistent young friend, who asks me about it," said Mr. Staybolt, "that there is no such thing as an incubator that will hatch out eagles from dollars while you wait; that the only way indeed in which a money crop can be raised is by the most careful and constant cultivation, and I venture to remind him, being young and with the world yet before him, that this is a crop in which it is desirable to begin planting early in order to produce the best results."—New York Sun.

Took the Hint.

"I dearly love birds," he gently sighed, and then she didn't do a thing but hasten to the open piano and softly began singing "I wish I were a bird." They are looking for a nest now. Yonkers Statesman.

OLD SLEUTH'S CAREER.

Author of the Famous Dime Novel Detective Series.

HERO OF COUNTLESS CHILDREN.

His Real Name Was Harlan P. Halsey, and He Was Well Known as a Financier of Ability—His Stories Were All Founded on Newspaper Accounts, and He Wrote at a Marvelous Rate of Speed.

The widespread fame of the late Harlan P. Halsey of Brooklyn, the Old Sleuth of the famous dime novel detective series, was the fruit of untiring industry. It is doubtful if any American writer has been more prolific than that author. E. P. Roe, one of the few whose earnings from his literary work were greater than those of Old Sleuth, wielded a far less ready and tireless pen, for the estimated number of the detective story writer's novels is between 600 and 650. It is said that he earned nearly $500,000 in this way, and that George Munro, the publisher, paid him a salary of $20,000 a year.

Old Sleuth didn't come into being until Mr. Halsey was an experienced writer. His predecessor wrote tales of adventure, war and piracy for the weekly papers 40 years ago. He also wrote poems which were published in the daily papers. When a boy of 16, Halsey wrote a novel, of which in later years he could only remember that it was about 300 pages long and abounded in long and heroic speeches, and that he published it himself. Although he early made a living by his pen, it was not until he appeared as Old Sleuth in the story of "Old Sleuth; or, The Mystery of Bay Ridge," that he laid the foundations of his fame and fortune. The book achieved a reputation, and George Munro asked the author how soon he could turn out another like it.

"In three or four days," said the writer.

"Can you keep on writing 'em at that rate?" the publisher asked.

"Call it once a week," the other suggested.

An agreement was made, and soon the shop windows were full of the Old Sleuth detective series. The high minded, heroic and uniformly successful detective became the hero of half the schoolboys who could raise a dime to buy a copy of the series or borrow the book from a more fortunate mate. Some of the early editions appeared with gay colored covers, commonly representing the hero in the act of thrusting a revolver in the dismayed countenances of a gang of ferocious robbers or rescuing beautiful innocence from a cave of robbers, who obligingly lighted up the scene by flashes from their revolvers. In all these novels virtue was invariably and gloriously triumphant and vice landed in a ready grave, or at least in state prison, which desirable culmination did not save the stories from the reprehension of stern parents and forbidding schoolteachers. Prejudice of this sort, however, rather served to enhance the popularity of the stories.

In time the Old Sleuth series came to an end, but the author kept to his nom de plume and turned out other stories. One of these crystallized into the "Secret Service Series." Like their predecessors, these were brimful of adventure, and the crack of pistol shots might have been used to punctuate the sentences. In behalf of his tales the author was wont to remark that they were true enough to life, only the events were rather thickened. A friend once asked him where he got all his plots. "Straight from real life via the newspapers," said he. "I'm a constant reader of the papers, and I remember all the curious incidents that I read. Then when I come to write the curious incidents go into the story as they occur to me."

One day was his record for the writing of a complete tale, and he would often say that the strain was such as no man of wisdom should repeat. It was his opinion that a man couldn't do himself justice, for a story of say 150,000 to 200,000 words, in less than a week. His writing was done at a marvelous rate of speed and with no less marvelous results as to chirography. Nobody but an expert who was accustomed to the Old Sleuth style could get even a clew to the meaning of his words, and he was often puzzled himself when some word was referred to him for solution. His habit was to push the sheet of paper on which he was writing off the table as soon as it was finished and let it fall where it would. The gathering up of these scattered leaves of thought was the duty of some member of the family. His wife tells of an instance where the heroine of one tale was plunged into a deadly complication of intrigue and left to perish there by the loss of a sheet, finally to be rescued from under a neighboring bookcase, where she had fluttered just at the crisis of the adventure. Besides his detective stories the author wrote of stage matters in an equally dashing vein, and "George Christy; or, The Fortunes of a Minstrel" was a famous book in its time. He also wrote several serious historical works. In later years Old Sleuth became a publisher.

Mr. Halsey in Brooklyn was well known as a financier of ability. He was one of the principal organizers of the Hamilton Trust company and the Kings County Trust company. When Seth Low appointed him to the board of education in 1885, there was much amusement and some comment that Old Sleuth, against whom so many schoolmasters were fulminating, should become identified so prominently with educational matters; but he served for ten years and proved himself a valuable member of the board and an upbuilder of the night schools and drawing classes.—New York Sun.

STUCK IN THE SNOW.

Dangers of Traveling by Sledge in Siberia in Winter.

Traveling by sledge in Siberia in winter has its perils, as the experience of Mr. Robert L. Jefferson and his friends goes to illustrate. The incident is told in "Roughing It In Siberia."

We had chartered six sorry looking horses to drag us on to the next stage. It was night when we started. The driver, maudlin drunk, had to be helped to his seat, and we set off along the narrow roadway at the usual gallop, which, however, soon dwindled into a mere shuffle through the snow. We had gone to sleep, and some hours after our departure Gaskell woke me and said he thought something was wrong.

The sledge was at a standstill, and our shouts to the yemshik brought no response. Black darkness prevailed. I bundled out of the sledge, so benumbed that I could scarcely move. I felt along the sledge, sinking to my knees in the snow.

The driver's perch was empty, and just then I stumbled over one of the horses, which was lying buried up to its neck. It was clear that the driver had fallen from his seat, and that the horses had wandered from the track. The poor beasts were stuck fast, and a closer inspection showed one of them to be dead, literally frozen to death. If we would save ourselves from the same fate, prompt action was necessary.

The other horses were nearly succumbing. They lay flat on their stomachs and nibbled at the snow. We cut the dead animal adrift, and, using the spare rope as whips, we stood on either side of the living and lashed them till our arms ached. At length they moved, and by pushing and pulling we got the sledge turned. Then, step by step, with much floundering and many falls, we began to retrace our way.

All this in pitch darkness in a raw, cold wind and in momentary expectation of one or all of the horses dropping dead.

It was a terrible experience, but we regained the road and finally reached the village.

BLIND MAN'S BLUFF.

The Origin of This Favorite Sport of Childhood and Youth.

This favorite sport of childhood and youth is of French origin and very high antiquity, having been introduced into England in the train of the Norman conquerors. Its French name, "Colin Maillard," was that of a brave warrior, the memory of whose exploits still lives in the chronicles of the middle ages.

In the year 999 Liege reckoned among its valiant chiefs one Jean Colin. He acquired the name Maillard from his chosen weapon being a mallet, where-with in fight he used literally to crush his opponents. In one of the feuds which were of perpetual recurrence in those times he encountered the Count de Lorraine in a pitched battle, and, so runs the story, in the first onset Colin Maillard lost both his eyes. He ordered his esquire to take him into the thickest of the fight, and, furiously brandishing his mallet, did such fearful execution that victory soon declared itself for him.

When Robert of France heard of these feats at arms, he lavished favor and honors upon Colin, and so great was the fame of the exploit that it was commemorated in the pantomimic representations that formed part of the rude dramatic performances of the age. By degrees the children learned to act it for themselves, and it took the form of a familiar sport.

The blindfolded pursuer, as, with bandaged eyes and extended hands, he gropes for a victim to pounce upon, seems in some degree to repeat the action of Colin Maillard, the tradition of which is also traceable in the name, blind man's bluff.—Philadelphia Press

His Reason.

Some of the best of Dean Pignon's stories come from Halifax (not Sheffield). One of these concerns his verger, one Sagar. Imagine him, a venerable figure with gray hair, skullcap, gown and verger's staff. In ignorance they had married a man to his deceased wife's sister.

Sagar, whose business it was to settle the matter about the banns, was at once cross examined. "Oh, yes, vicar," said he, "I knowed right well! I knowed parties. 'But why did you not tell me?' I should have forbidden them." "Well, vicar, it was just this way, do you see. One of the parties was 84 and t'other 86. I says to myself: 'Lord, it can't last long. Let 'em wed, and bother the laws!'"—London News.

Remarkable Capacity.

In an address at Radcliffe the other day it was stated that the swimming tank at the new gymnasium has a capacity of 50,000 gallons.—Boston Herald.

LITTLE CLUE APPARENT.

New York Police Seem to Be Groping
In the Dark in the Poisoning Case.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—In the Barnett-
Adams double poisoning mysteries these facts were most prominent: William
J. Kinsley was examining the writing of six persons and said he strongly suspected one. All the evidence was centering upon that person. Mr. Kinsley was waiting for other specimens from the police.

Chemists did not agree about the probability of an amateur being able to compound cyanide of mercury. One said he easily could do it; another that it would be impossible.

Edmund Barnett confirmed the story
of his brother having received two poison packages. Evidence was said to have been discovered by detectives who are examining the 100,000 names on the coupons furnished by the makers of the Kuthnow powder. The nature of the evidence was not divulged.

Barnet was a member of the Knickerbocker club, the same organization to which Harry Cornish, to whom the poison was sent, which killed Mrs. Adams.

HENRY C. BARNET.

who drank it under the impression that it was bromo seltzer from a bottle sent to Cornish by mail, belonged.

Miss Addie E. Bates, the trained nurse who attended Henry C. Barnett, the Knickerbocker club member, who is alleged to have died from poison, called to see Captain McCluskey. Captain McCluskey gave out the substance of her talk, but nothing seemed to have developed except that some person named Blanche sent him flowers and a note and Barnett expressed surprise at her knowing he was sick.

There was a box marked Kuthnow in the bathroom, which the doctor took away. He afterward said it contained mercury. She thought Barnett had diphtheria.

MURDER OF BLEVIN'S.

New Castle, Pa., Officials Convinced It
Was Committed by Some Person
Acquainted With Him.

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Jan. 9.—John
Blevins, 70 years old, city treasurer of
New Castle, was found in his office at the city hall unconscious and dying
shortly after 12 o'clock Saturday night.
His head had been beaten to a jelly and the safe broken open and robbed. The room was covered with blood and there was evidence of a terrific struggle. The discovery was made by his son William,
who had become alarmed at his absence. Mr. Blevins died soon after his son reached him.

It is not known just how much money was taken, but it is thought the robbers got about $500. The two tin cash boxes had disappeared. The police are of the opinion that the crime was committed by someone who was well acquainted with the office and with whom the dead man was also well acquainted.

The city council by resolution asked Postmaster John B. Brown, who was formerly a member of the detective firm of Marshal & Brown, to assist in the hunt of the criminal, and he has consented to do so. There is no known clue to work on.

The city council and county commissioners met and each body offered $2,000, making a total of $4,000, for the arrest and conviction of the murderer or murderers.

Confessed a Terrible Murder.

SOUTH BETHLEHEM, Pa., Jan. 9.—
Llewellyn Stout, a worthless youth of
17 years, confessed that he murdered
Harvey H. Wurster, night station agent
and operator for the Philadelphia and Reading Railway company at Bangen.
Knowing the operator had a small son in his office, sneaked into his room and brained him. Then he secured the money, took it home and secreted it in a closet, where the detectives found it
by following the directions Stout had given them.

Died Aged 100 Years.

BEVERLY, Mass., Jan. 9.—William
